TO THE READER.

POET A nascitur, non fit, is a Sentence of as great Truth as Antiquity; it being most certain, that all the acquir'd Learning imaginable is insufficient to compleat a Poet, without a natural Genius and Propensity to so noble and sublime an Art. And we may without offence observe, that many very learned Men, who have been ambitious to be thought Poets, have only render'd themselves obnoxious to that Satyrical Inspiration, our Author wittily invokes :

Which made them, tho' it were in spight
Of Nature and their Stars, to write.

On the other side, some who have had very little Human Learning, ^a but were endued with a large share of Natural Wit and Parts, have become the most celebrated Poets of the Age they liv'd in. But as these last are Raræ Aves in Terris; so when the Muses have not disdain'd the assistances of other Arts and Sciences, we are then bless'd with those lasting Monuments of Wit and Learning, which *may justly claim a kind of Eternity upon Earth.

And our Author, had his modesty permitted him,
might with HORACE have said,*

Exegi Monumentum Ære perennius;

Or with OVID,

Jamque opus exegi, quod nec Jovis Ira, nec Ignis, Nec poterit ferrum, nec edax abolere Vetustas.

The Author of this celebrated Poem was of this last composition; for altho' he had not the happiness of an Academical Education, as some affirm, it may be perceiv'd, throughout his whole Poem, that he had read much, and was very well accomplish'd in the most useful Parts of Human Learning.

RAPIN (in his Reflections) speaking of the necessary Qualities belonging to a Poet, tells us, He must have a Genius extraordinary; great Natural Gifts; a Wit, just, fruitful, piercing, solid and universal; an Understanding, clear and distinct; an Imagination, neat and pleasant; an Elevation of Soul, that depends not only on Art or Study, but is purely a Gift of Heaven, which must be sustain'd by a lively Sense and Vivacity; Judgment to consider wisely of Things, and Vivacity for the beautiful Expression of them, &c.

Now, how justly this Character is due to our Author, I leave to the Impartial Reader, and those those of nicer judgments, who had the happiness to be more intimately acquainted with him.

The Reputation of this incomparable Poem is so thoroughly establish'd in the World, that it would be superfluous, if not impertinent, to endeavour any Panegyric upon it.—However, since most men have a curiosity to have some account of such Anonymous Authors, whose Compositions have been eminent for Wit or Learning; I have been desired to oblige them with such Informations, as I could receive from those who had the happiness to be acquainted with him, and also to rectify the Mistakes of the Oxford Antiquary, in his Athenæ Oxonienses, concerning him.

LIFE.

SAMUEL BUTLER, the Author of this excellent Poem, was born in the Parish of Strensham, in the County of Worcester, and baptized there the 13th of Februrary 1612. His Father, who was of the same Name, was an honest Country Farmer, who had some small Estate of his own, but rented a much greater of the Lord of the Manor where he liv'd. However, perceiving in this Son an early Inclination to Learning, he made a shift to have him educated in the Free-School at Worcester, under Mr. Henry Bright; where having past the usual time, and being become an excellent School-Scholar, he went for some little time to Cambridge, but was never matriculated into that University, his Father's Abilities not being sufficient to be at the charge of an Academical Education; so that our Author return'd soon into his native Country, and became Clerk to one Mr. Jefferys of Earls-Croom, an eminent Justice of the Peace for that County, with with whom he liv'd some years, in an easy and no contemptible service. Here, by the Indulgence of a kind Master, he had sufficient leisure to apply himself to whatever Learning his Inclinations led him, which were chiefly History and Poetry; to which, for his Diversion, he joined Music and Painting; and I have seen some Pictures, said to be of his Drawing, which remained in that Family; which I mention not for the Excellency of them, but to satisfy the Reader of his early Inclinations to that noble Art; for which also he was afterwards intirely belov'd by Mr. Samuel Cooper, one of the most Eminent Painters of his time.

He was, after this, recommended to that great Encourager of Learning, Elisabeth Countess of Kent, where he had not only the Opportunity to consult all manner of learned Books, but to converse also with that living Library of Learning, the great Mr. Selden.

Our Author liv'd some time also with Sir Samuel Luke, who was of an ancient Family in Bedfordshire; but, to his Dishonour, an eminent Commander under the Usurper Oliver Cromwell: and then it was, as I am inform'd, he compos'd this Loyal Poem. For tho' Fate, more than Choice, seems to have placed him in the service of a Knight so notorious, both in his Person and Politics, yet, by the rule of Contraries, one may observe throughout his whole Poem, that he was most Orthodox, both in his Religion and Loyalty. And I am the more induced to believe he wrote it about that time, because he had then the opportunity to converse with those living Characters of Rebellion, Nonsense, and Hypocrisy, which he so lively and pathetically exposes throughout the whole Work.

After the Restoration of King Charles II. those who were at the Helm, minding Money more than Merit, our Author found those Verses of Juvenal to be exactly verify'd in himself:

*Haud facile emergunt, quorum Virtutibus obstat
Res angusta Domi: —*

And being endued with that innate Modesty, which rarely finds Promotion in Princes Courts; he became Secretary to Richard Earl of Carbury, Lord President of the Principality of Wales, who made him Steward of Ludlow-Castle, when the Court there was reviv'd. About this time, he married one Mrs. Herbert, a Gentlewoman of a very good Family, but no Widow, as our Oxford Antiquary has reported: She had a competent Fortune, but it was most of it unfortunately lost, by being put out on ill Securities, so that it was little little advantage to him. He is reported by our Antiquary to have been Secretary to his Grace George Duke of Buckingham, when he was Chancellor to the University of Cambridge: but whether that be true or no, 'tis certain, the Duke had a great kindness for him, and was often a Benefactor to him. But no man was a more generous Friend to him, than that *Mæcen*as of all Learned and Witty Men, Charles Lord Buckhurst, the late Earl of Dorset and Middlesex, who, being himself an excellent Poet, knew how to set a just value upon the Ingenious Performances of others, and has often taken care privately to relieve and supply the Necessities of those, whose modesty would endeavour to conceal them: of which our Author was a signal Instance, as several others have been, who are now living. In fine, the Integrity of his Life, the Acuteness of his Wit, and Easiness of his Conversation, had rendered him most acceptable to all Men; yet he prudently avoided multiplicity of Acquaintance, and wisely chose such only whom his discerning Judgment could distinguish (as Mr. Cowley expresseth it)

From the Great Vulgar, or the Small.

And having thus liv'd to a good old age, admir'd by all, though personally known to few,
he

he departed this Life in the Year 1680, and was buried at the Charge of his good Friend ^b Mr. L——vil of the T——le, in the Yard belonging to the Church of St. Paul, Covent-Garden, at the West-End of the said Yard, on the North-Side, under the Wall of the said Church, and under that Wall which parts the Yard from the common Highway. And, since he has no Monument yet set up for him, give me Leave to borrow his Epitaph from that of Michael Drayton the Poet, as the Author of Mr. Cowley's has partly done before me :

*And tho' no Monument can claim
To be the Treasurer of thy Name;
This Work, which ne'er will die, shall be An everlasting Monument to thee.*

The Characters of this Poem are for the most part obvious, even to the meanest Pretenders to ^b “ Mr. W. Longueville would fain have buried Butler in Westminster Abbey; and spoke in that view to some of those Wealthy “ Persons, who had admired him so much in his life-time; offering “ to pay his Part, but none of them would contribute. Upon which “ Mr. Longueville buried him with the greatest privacy (but at the “ same time very decently) in Covent-Garden Church-yard at his “ own expence; himself and seven or eight persons more following “ the Corpse to the Grave.” (Hudibras's Life, Gen. Hist. Dict. vol.

6. pag. 299. Marg. Note.) and I will beg leave to add, that the Burial Service was read over him, by the Learned and Pious Dr.
Patrick, (afterwards Lord Bishop of Ely) then Minister of the Parish.

Learning

Learning or History ; nor can scarce any one be so ignorant, as not to know, that the chief Design thereof is a Satire against those Incendiaries of Church and State, who in the late Rebellion, under pretence of Religion, murder'd the best of Kings, to introduce the worst of Governments ; destroy'd the best of Churches, that Hypocrisy, Novelty, and Nonsense, might be predominant amongst us ; and overthrew our wholesome Laws and Constitutions, to make way for their Blessed Anarchy and Confusion, which at last ended in Tyranny. But since, according to the Proverb, None are so blind as they that will not see ; so those who are not resolv'd to be invincibly ignorant, I refer, for their further satisfaction, to the Histories of Mr. Fowlis of Presbytery, and Mr. Walker of Independency ; but more especially to that incomparable History lately published, wrote by Edward Earl of Clarendon, which are sufficient to satisfy any unbiass'd Person, that his general Characters are not fictitious : And I could heartily wish these Times were so reformed, that they were not applicable to some even now living. However, there being several particular Persons reflected on, which are not commonly known, and some old Stories and uncouth Words which want explication, we have thought fit to do do that right to their Memories, and, for the better Information of the less learned Readers, to explain them in some additional Annotations at the end of this Edition.

How often the Imitation of this Poem has been attempted, and with how little success, I leave the Readers to judge: In the Year 1663, there came out a spurious Book, call'd, The Second Part of Hudibras; which is reflected upon by our Author, under the Character of Whacum, towards the latter End of his Second Part. Afterwards came out the Dutch and Scotch Hudibras, Butler's Ghost, the Occasional Hypocrite, and some others of the same Nature, which, compar'd with this, (Virgil's Travesty excepted) deserve only to be condemn'd ad Ficum & Piperem; or, if you please, to more base and servile Offices.

Some vain Attempts have been likewise made to translate some Parts of it into Latin, but how far they fall short of that Spirit of the English Wit, I leave the meanest Capacity, that understands them, to judge. The following Similes I have heard were done by the Learned Dr. Harmer, once Greek Professor at Oxon:

c May'st thou print H— or some duller Afs,
Jorden, or him, that wrote Dutch Hudibras,
Oldham, upon a Printer, that had expos'd him, by printing a Piece.

And now I heartily wish I could gratify your further Curiosity with some of those Golden Remains which are in the Custody of Mr. L—vil; but not having the Happiness to be very well acquainted with him, nor Interest to procure them, I desire you will be content with the following Copy, which the Ingenious Mr. Aubrey assures me he had from the Author himself.

^d Serjeant Glyn declar'd, That the Protestation of the Bishops (in favour of their Rights) was High Treason. Echard's Hist. of England, vol. 2. pag. 276. He acted as Judge during O. Cromwell's Usurpation. See Thurloe's State Papers, vol. 3. pag. 332.

^e Serjeant Maynard was a Manager at the Earl of Strafford's Tryal; Echard, vol. 2. p. 216. and though upon the Declaration of no more Addresses to the King, 1647-8. he drew up a famous Argument against that Declaration; shewing, That by that Resolution, they did, as far as in them lay, dissolve the Parliament: and he knew not after that, with what Security in point of Law they could meet together, and join with them: Echard, vol. 2. p. 595. Yet he condescended during the Usurpation to act as Cromwell's Serjeant. When he waited on the Prince of Orange, with the Men of the Law, he was then near ninety, and said (as Bp. Burnet observes, History of his own Time, vol. 1. p. 803.) “ the liveliest thing that was heard

The

The Oxford Antiquary ascribes to our Author two Pamphlets, supposed falsely, as he says, to be William Pryn's; the one intitled, Mola Asinaria: or, The Unreasonable and Insupportable Burthen, press'd upon the Shoulders of this Groaning Nation, &c. London, 1659. in one Sheet 4^{to}. The other, Two Letters, one from John Audland, a Quaker, to Will. Pryn; the other, Pryn's Answer; in three Sheets in Folio, 1672.

I have also seen a small Poem, of one Sheet in Quarto, on Du Vall, a Notorious Highwayman, said to be wrote by our Author; but how truly, I know not.

PREFACE.

THOUGH somewhat has already been said in the way of Preface, by the writer of Mr. Butler's Life; yet it may not be amiss to give the Reader a short account of the purport and design of these Notes.

They are chiefly Historical, and Explanatory, with a small mixture of Critical ones by my Friends. The last are design'd to illustrate some few of the Poetical Beauties of Hudibras, and to prove that it is at least equal to the most celebrated Poems in the English Language: and it's conformity in some respects to Epic Poetry, will be evinc'd, and comparisons here and there drawn from Homer, Virgil, and Milton.

But these are so few, that it is much to be lamented, that the Poet has not yet met with an Addison, a Prior, a Pope, or a Swift, to do him justice in this respect.

The Historical and Explanatory Notes are intended to clear up the Historical parts of the Poem; which have in a great measure been pass'd over in the former Annotations.

VOL. I.

And

And the Reader, tis hop'd, will better apprehend and relish the Satire couch'd in this Poem, when he is acquainted with the Persons and Transactions, at which it is levell'd.

Though Hudibras has pass'd many Editions, the Real Persons, shadow'd under borrow'd and fictitious Names, have never yet been discover'd in any of them: This has engaged the generality of Readers to think, that those Renown'd Champions Crowdero, Orsin, Talgol, Magnano, Cerdon, Colon, and the Brave Heroine Trulla, were only Imaginary Persons; from whence many have concluded these Adventures to be Romantic and Fabulous, instead of True History: But in the Course of these Notes, I shall endeavour to obviate that Error; and hope to prove that the greatest part of the Poem contains a Series of Adventures that did really happen: all the real Persons shadow'd under fictitious Characters will be brought to view from Sir Roger L'Estrange, who being personally acquainted with the Poet, undoubtedly received the Secret from him.

Under the Person, whom he calls Hudibras, whom he makes the Hero of this Poem, the Author gives us the true Character of a Presbyterian Committee-man and Justice of the Peace, who, notwithstanding they themselves were guilty

guilty of all sorts of Wickedness, yet pretended to be so scrupulous, that they could not in Conscience permit the Country People to use the Diversions they were sometimes accusom'd to, of Dancing round a May-pole, Bear-baitings, Riding the Skimmington, and the like.

The Character therefore of the Knight might suit many of those busy, meddling, pragmatical Fellows, who were put into Committees then set up in every County, and the Commissions of the Peace, that they might oppress all such as were believed to be Friends to the King, and the Ancient Government in Church and State; and who acted like so many petty Tyrants in all Parts of the Nation: However, we can hardly doubt, but the Author had one particular Person in view, whose Adventures he gives us under the Name of Hudibras, who actually endeavour'd to suppress a Bear-beating, and set a Fidler in the Stocks, and was on that occasion vilified, and abus'd by the Mob. It has been suggested by a reverend and learned Person, to whom I shall acknowledge my obligations before I finish this Preface; That notwithstanding Sir Samuel Luke of Wood-End in the Parish of Cople, in Bedfordshire, has generally been reputed the Hero of this Poem; yet from the Circumstances of his being compared to Sir Samuel Luke, Part I. Canto 1. line 906, &c. it is scarce probable, that he was intended, it being an uncommon thing to compare a Person to himself: that the Scene of Action was in Western Clime; whereas Bedfordshire is North of London; and that he was credibly inform'd by a Bencher of Gray's-Inn, who had it from an acquaintance of Mr. Butler's, that the Person intended, was Sir Henry Rosewell of Ford-Abbey in Devonshire. These indeed would be probable Reasons to deprive Bedfordshire of its Hero, did not Mr. Butler in his Memoirs of 1649. give the same Description of Sir Samuel Luke; and in his Dunstable Downs expressly style Sir Samuel Luke, Sir Hudibras: And from the sham Second Part publish'd 1663. it appears, that the Bear-beating was at Brentford, which is West of London, and this might induce him to say, Part 1. Canto 1. v. 677.

In Western Clime there is a Town, &c.

The design of the Author in writing this Poem, was to expose the Hypocrisy and Wickedness of those, who began and carried on the Rebellion, under a Pretence of promoting Religion and Godliness; at the same time that they acted against all the precepts of Religion. But in order to understand the several Disputes between the Knight and Squire, it may be proper to give an abstract of their Forms of Church Government and Worship, which may

may be a Clue to guide us through several parts of the Poem, which to the generality of Readers may be thought not a little intricate. And first, to give some account of the Presbyterian Scheme of Church Government, as they endeavoured to have it set up here: and likewise of the Independent Scheme, (whom the Anabaptists also, such as Ralph was, agreed with in this Point, though they differ'd about Infant Baptism, who were also for a sort of Church Government, but very different from that of the Presbyterians.) I think This the more necessary, because little of it is to be found in our Histories of those Times: and without some knowledge of their several Schemes, many things, particularly the Rubs the Squire gives the Knight in this Poem, and the Disputes between them, are not to be understood.

According to the Presbyterian Scheme, every Parish was to have a Pastor or Minister, and Two Ruling Elders, who were Lay-Men, to be chosen by the Parishioners, and one or more Deacons to be chosen in the same manner, who were to receive the Alms collected at the Church Doors, and to distribute them as directed by the Minister and Ruling Elders: and they had a Scribe to register what they did. It was a standing Maxim, That in all cases, there should be Two Ruling Elders to one Minister, and these governed by the whole Parish in matters relating to Church Discipline. And if the Parish was small, as some Country Parishes are, and had not Two Persons in it fit to be Ruling Elders, it was immediately to be under the Government of the Classis. The Classis consisted of a number of Parishes to be united for that Purpose; the Ministers and Elders so united, being the Ecclesiastical Governors of all within that Precinct, having the same Power thus met in a Classis, over all Persons within that Precinct, that each Minister, and his Elders, had over the several Parishes: Then there was a Provincial Synod, or an Assembly of all the Classes in a whole County; to which Synod each Classis sent Two Ministers, and Four Ruling Elders; and above these, there was to be a National Synod, to which the Provincial Synods were to send their Deputies; amongst which there were always to be Two Ruling Elders to One Minister: but what number every Province was to send to this National Synod, is not set down in any Ordinance, I have yet seen.

The Congregational, or Parochial Eldership or Assembly, were to meet once a Week, or oftener, and were empower'd by an Ordinance of the Two Houses, dated Die Lunæ 20 October, 1645. to examine any Person complain'd of, for any Matter of Scandal recited in that Ordinance, such as Adultery, Fornication, Drunkenness, Cursing, Swearing, Gaming on the Lord's Day, or travelling on that Day without just occasion; with a multitude of other Matters, filling up one page of a book close printed in 4^{to}. “ This Eldership (says the Ordinance) shall examine upon Oath such Witnesses, “ as shall be produced before them, either for acquitting or condemning the Party so accused, “ of any of the Scandalous Crimes aforesaid, not “ Capital, upon the Testimony of two credible “ Witnesses at least: and if they are prov'd Guilty “ of the Crimes they are charged with, then is the “ Eldership to suspend them from the Lord's Supper, and Satisfaction shall be given to the Eldership of every Congregation by a sufficient Manifestation of the Offender's Repentance, before “ a Person lawfully convicted of such Matters of “ Scandal, as aforesaid, and thereupon suspended “ from the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, be “ admitted thereto. If any Man suspended from “ the Lord's Supper shall find himself griev'd by “ the Eldership of any Congregation, he shall “ have liberty to appeal to the Classical Eldership, “ and from thence to the Provincial Assembly, “ from thence to the National, and from thence “ to the Parliament. The Classical Eldership was “ appointed to meet once a Month, the Provincial Assembly twice in a Year, and the National “ Assembly, “ Assembly, when the Parliament pleased to call “ them. Thus the Parliament kept the Presby- “ terians here, under their own Rule; but in “ Scotland, the National Assembly would ac“ knowledge no Superior, in what they thought

 “ fit to call Spirituals.”

The Independents were so called, because they maintain'd, that every Congregation was a compleat Church within itself, and ought to have no Dependency as to Matters relating to Religion, on any other Assembly, Classical, Provincial, or National, nor on any Civil Magistrate. They chose their own Minister, and That choice gave him sufficient Authority to preach without any Ordination: whereas the Presbyterians required, that every Minister should be Ordain'd by laying on the hands of the Presbytery. The Independents also allow'd any Gifted Brother, that is, any one who thought himself qualified, to preach and pray in Their Assemblies himself: and though Independent Teachers got Parish Churches, and Good Livings as well as the Presbyterians, preached in them, and receiv'd the Profits of them: yet all their Parishioners were not properly their Congregation: they were their Hearers indeed, that is, such as might hear them preach, but not such unto whom they would administer Sacraments: They had a select Company for that purpose out of several Parishes, who enter'd a Covenant with Him they chose for their Minister, and with one another, to walk by such Rules as they thought proper to agree upon, and to appoint Elders, who, together with their Ministers, were to have a sort of Rule over the Congregation : I say, a Sort of Rule, because I think there lay an Appeal to the whole Congregation. In this Covenant the Rulers promised, in the presence of Christ, to rule faithfully, diligently, and courageously in the Faith, and in the Fear of God, &c. and the Ruled promise to obey their Rulers, and submit to them according to the Word of God. These Covenants have different Terms in different Congregations, for as they are all Independent one from another, no Congregation can impose a Form upon another. There is a long Covenant of this kind which was entered into by the Congregation of Mr. Richard Davis of Rothwell in Northamptonshire, printed in the year 1700. And Mr. Daniel Williams, a famous Independent Minister (who, as the Newspapers said, died worth Fifty Thousand Pounds) in a Letter which he wrote to a rich Widow who had left His Congregation, put her in mind of the Covenant she had entered into, saying, “ Did “ not you, before God and His Angels, renew “ your Baptismal Covenant, and accept Me as your
 5 pany

“ your Pastor, and solemnly engage to walk in “ Subjection to Christ’s Appointment? If you “ have forgotten it, yet know it is recorded on “ High, and not forgotten by God. And how “ often have you witnessed it at the Table of the “ Lord! Does not Christ who appointed a special “ Relation between People and their Pas- “ tors, account you to be related to me as your “ Pastor; and does he not therefore command
 “ you to obey me, as having the Rule over you;
 “ and to submit yourself to me according to “ His Word?” There is a great deal more to the same purpose. This Letter with Remarks upon it by Mr. Dorrington, was printed for Henry Clements, 1710. Thus the Independent
 Ministers, though they plead strenuously for Liberty of Conscience, yet take care to hamper the Consciences of all that join them, by imposing upon them a Covenant of Their own contriving. And that such a Covenant was used by the Independents when they first began to shew themselves, in the times of which Mr.
Butler writes, we learn from a small Pamphlet printed in the year 1647. the Title of which is,
What the Independents would have: written by John Cooke of Gray’s Inn, Barrister, which I take to have been John Cooke, who was afterward the Regicide. There he says, p. 4. concerning an Independent, “ He thinks no man will be Godly, “ unless “ unless he promises to be so, therefore wonders, that any Christian should speak against “ a Church Covenant, which is no more, than

“ to promise to do that by God’s Assistance,
“ which the Gospel requires of Him.” This is a full Proof that the Independents at that time, used what they called, A Church Covenant, as well as they have done it since, and I suppose continue to do so still. They admit all Persons to be their Hearers, but account none to be properly of their Church or Congregation, how constantly soever they attend their Prayers or Sermons, and contribute to the Maintenance of their Ministers, except they also sign that Covenant.

The Presbyterians disliked this way of Covenanting, used by the Independents, and their calling every Congregation a Church, without dependency upon any other; and also that they allow’d men to perform all Spiritual Functions, upon the Choice of the People only, without Imposition of the Hands of the Presbytery: forgetting that the Founders of their own Religion, Calvin, Beza, and others, had no other Ordination than what the Independent Ministers had. These Differences continued between them, and they treated each other as Schismatics, not only during the Rebellion, (see Note upon Part 3, Canto 2. v. 771, 772.) but also after ter the Restoration of King Charles the Second, and during the Reign of King James the Second, even till a year after the Revolution, and then they united together. Of which Union Mr. Quick, a Presbyterian Minister, in his Synodicon in Galliâ Reformatâ; vol. 2. pag. 467. gives the following account.

“ After a most lamentable Schism of above
 “ forty years continuance, it pleased God at last
 “ to touch the Hearts of the Godly Ministers of “ the Presbyterian and Independent Persuasion, “ with a deep Sense of this Great Evil, in “ separating so long the one from the other.
 “ Whereupon, several Pious and Learned Pastors
 “ in the City of London, of Both Ways, met to“ gether diverse times, and conferr’d each with “ other, about healing this Breach; and having “ frequent Consultations about it, and poured “ out many mighty and fervent Prayers unto the “ God of Grace and Peace to assist them in it;
 “ upon Friday the Sixth day of March, 1690, “ according to our Computation, most of the “ Dissenting Nonconformist Ministers in the City,
 “ and many others from the adjacent Parts of it, “ met together, and there was read to them the “ Heads of Agreement prepared by the Com“ mittee: and which had been seen and perused
 “ by many of them before: and their Assent un-
 “ to them being demanded, it was readily ac“ corded,

“ corded, and afterwards near a hundred gave in “ their Names unto this Union. This Exam“ ple was taking, and leading to all the Non- “ conforming Ministers of England, who, in ma“ ny of their respective Counties, had their “ Meetings to compose this Difference, and by “ the Blessing of God upon those their Endea“ vours, it was also upon the sight and confi-“ deration of the printed Heads of Agreement, “ among the United Ministers of London, ef“ fected: whereof notice was sent up to the “ Brethren here in London. When the London
“ Ministers first signed this Union, they unani“ mously agreed to bury, in the Grave of Obli“ vion, the Two Names of Distinction, Presby- “ terian and Independent, and to communicate “ these Articles of Union, unto all Members in “ Communion with them, in their particular “ Churches the Lord’s Day come sevensnight
“ after; and that they would at the next Meet“ ing acquaint the United Brethren, what en“ tertainment and acceptance the reading of it “ had in their Assemblies; which was done ac“ cordingly, and to general Satisfaction.” After this he gives the Heads of their Agreement, which those that are curious to know may consult the Book. It was said then, and I think it appears from the Heads of their Agreement,
That the Presbyterians yielded to the Indepen- dents

dents in almost every Point, about which they had so long contended with them. So that these United Brethren, as after this Union they styled themselves, might all properly enough be called Independents. However the Names are now promiscuously used by others, and they are called indifferently by either of those names. For though many of them are now ordain'd after the Presbyterian way, by imposition of the Hands of the Presbytery; yet if they are not so ordain'd, but

* This Directory contains no Form of Prayer, or of Administration of Sacraments: but only gives some general Rules for the Direction of Ministers, and People, how to behave in Church. As, That the People should be grave and serious, attentive to the Duty they are about: That the Minister should begin with prayer, That then he shall read a Psalm, or a Chapter or two out of the Old or New Testament, and may expound them if he pleases: Then a Psalm is to be sung, after which the Minister is to pray again, then to preach a Sermon, and to conclude with another Prayer. Baptism in Private Places is forbidden, and order'd to be done only in the Place of Public Worship. There are Directions for Ministers to instruct the Congregation in the Nature and Design of Baptism, and to pray on the Occasion, but in what Words or Form he pleases. Then he is to demand the Name of the Child, and to baptize it in the Form of Words prescribed in the Gospel. When the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is to be administered, the Minister, when his Sermon is ended, shall make a short Exhortation: The Table is to be placed, where the Communicants may most conveniently sit about it, and is to be decently cover'd. The Minister is to begin the Action with sanctifying and blessing the Elements of Bread and Wine, set before him. Then the Words of Institution are to be read out of the Evangelists, or Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians: Then the Minister is to take the Bread into his Hand, and to say thus, or something like it; I take this Bread and break it, and give it unto you, Take ye, Eat ye, this is the Body of Christ: do this in remembrance of Him. In like manner he is to take the Cup, and to say these, only chosen, and appointed to officiate by their Congregation, they are by this Agreement sufficiently qualified to officiate as Ministers in their Congregations: the Independents having always esteem'd such Ordinations indifferent; which they might use, or let alone as they pleased.

As to their Worship, contain'd in the * Directory, while the Presbyterians had the Ascendent these, or the like words; According to the Institution of Our Lord Jesus Christ, I take this Cup, and give it unto you: This Cup is the New Testament in the Blood of Christ, which is shed for the Remission of the Sins of many; Drink yet all of it. He is also order'd to communicate himself; but it is not said, before he gives it to them, or after. He is order'd to say these words to the Communicants in general, Take ye, Eat ye: so he says them but once, and gives the Bread, and also the Cup afterwards to him that is next him; and so they are handed round the Table from one to another. Then he is to put them in mind of the Grace of God in the Sacrament, and to conclude with a Thanksgiving.

When Persons are to be married, The Minister is first to pray, then to declare the Institution, Use, and Ends of Matrimony, with the Conjugal Duties. Then the Man is to take the Woman by the Right-hand, saying, I. N. take thee N. to be my married Wife, and do in the presence of God, and before this Congregation, promise, and covenant to be a loving and faithful Husband unto thee, until God shall separate us by Death. Then the Woman takes the Man by the Right-hand, and says, I. N. take thee N. to be my married Husband, and I do in the presence of God, and before this Congregation, promise, and covenant to be a loving, faithful, and obedient Wife unto thee, until God shall separate us by Death. Then, without any further Ceremony, the Minister pronounces them to be Man and Wife, and concludes with a Prayer. When he visits the Sick, he is to advise, direct, and pray with him; The Dead shall be decently attended from the House to the Place appointed for Public Burial, and then in the Parliament-Houses, the Lords and Commons made an Ordinance, dated Die Veneris 3 Januarii, 1644. For the taking away the Book of Common-Prayer, for establishing and putting in execution of the Directory for the Public Worship of God.

The Directory was drawn up by the Assembly of Divines, which was called by the Parliament, to assist and advise them in the Reformation of Religion in the year 1643, and continued to sit so long as the Presbyterians Power prevail'd. This Assembly of Divines, as it was called, consisted of Ten Peers, Twenty Members of the House of Commons, about Twenty Episcopal Divines, and an Hundred, Persons more, most of which were then immediately interr'd, without any Ceremony, praying, reading and singing both in going to and at the Grave shall be laid aside. In all these Directions for Prayer, the Minister is to make his own Prayers; there is no Form appointed: That would be to stifle the Spirit.

The Lord's Prayer is once just mentioned, and 'tis acknowledged, That it may lawfully be used as a Prayer, as well as a Pattern of Prayer, but there is no Order for the use of it on any occasion; it is barely recommended to be used, if the Minister thinks fit, and just when he pleases. My Lord Clarendon tells us, vol. 1. folio edit. That it was mov'd that the Creed and Ten Commandments should be mentioned in this Directory; but being put to the Vote, they were rejected. It was justly observed long ago, that this Directory is a Rule without Restraint; an Injunction leaving an Indifferency, to a Possibility of Licentiousness; an Office without directing to any external Act of Worship, not prescribing so much as Kneeling or Standing, which but once names Reverence, but enjoins it in no

Par-

Presbyterians, a few Independents; and some to represent the Kirk of Scotland who were very zealous Presbyterians: Few of the Episcopal Party, tho' summon'd with the rest, ever sat with them, and those few that did, soon left them. My Lord Clarendon, (V. 1. pag. 530.) says, That, except these few Episcopal Divines, “ the rest were all “ declared Enemies to the Doctrine and Disci“ pline of the Church of England; some of them “ infamous in their Lives and Conversations;
 “ most of them of very mean Parts in Learning,
 “ if not of scandalous Ignorance, and of no o“ ther Reputation than of Malice to the Church
 “ of England.” This Assembly, besides the Directory, drew up ^c several other Matters, which they address'd To the Right Honourable the Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament.

Particular; an Office that complies with no Precedent of Scripture, nor of any Ancient Church. This Directory, not being commonly to be met with, this large account is given of it, that the Reader may see, what the Presbyterians would have imposed, in the room of the Common-Prayer.

^b Mr. Selden, (Table Talk, p. 169.) gives this reason, “ That there “ must be some Laymen in the Synod, to overlook the Clergy, lest
 “ they spoil the Civil Work: just as when the Good Woman puts a “ Cat into the Milk-house to kill a Mouse, she sends her Maid to “ look after the Cat, lest the Cat should eat up the Cream.”

^c They styled one piece, The humble Advice of the Assembly of Divines, now sitting by Ordinance of Parliament at Westminster. They drew up likewise a Confession of Faith; a Larger Catechism, and a Shorter Catechism; all address'd as their Humble Advice to Both Houses of Parliament. But I do not find that the Parliament added their Authority to these Pieces.

I have given the best account I can, of the intention of our Author, in writing this Poem : and shall beg leave to add some few observations upon the Poem, and it's Author.

In the First place it may be proper to take notice of an Objection that has been made to it, by a celebrated Writer.

“ If Hudibras, (says the very Ingenious Mr. Addison, Spectator, N^o 249.) “ had been set out
“ with as much Wit and Humour, in Heroic “ Verse, as he is in Doggerel, he would have “ made a much more agreeable figure than he “ does ; tho’ the generality of his Readers are “ so wonderfully pleased with his Double “ Rhymes, that I don’t expect many will be of “ my Opinion in this particular.” This seems to contradict what he asserts just before, where he delivers it as his Opinion, That ^a Burlesque,

^a Burlesk, Ludicrus, Jocularis. A Burlesk Poem, Carmen jocularis ; G. Burlesque ; It. Burlesco. To Burlesk ; G. Burler ; It. Burlare ; Lat. Barbaris Burdare est jocularis. De quo vid. Bourde, Jocus, Junii Etymologic. Anglican. “ With regard to Burlesque, (says an ingenious French Writer, Dissertation sur la Poesie Anglois (see Gen. Hist. Dict. v. 6. p. 296.) “ The English have a Poet whose Reputation is equal
“ to that of Scarron in French, I mean the Author of Hudibras, a “ Comical History in Verse, written in the time of Oliver Cromwell :
“ it is said to be a delicate Satyr on that kind of Interregnum ; and “ that it is levell’d particularly at the Conduct of the Presbyterians, “ whom the Author represents as a senseless sett of People, Pro“ moters of Anarchy, and compleat Hypocrites. Hudibras the “ Hero of this Poem, is a Holy Don Quixote of that Sect, and the “ Re-

when the Hero is to be pull'd down, and degraded, runs best in Doggerel. And I may appeal to the Reader, whether our Hero, who was a Knight, Colonel, and Justice of the Peace, is not effectually pull'd down, and degraded, in the Character and Fortune of Sir Hudibras? However, Mr. Addison's observation is certainly just, and we cannot forbear wishing with Mr. Dryden, (see Dedication to Juvenal, p. 128.)

“ That so great a Genius (as Mr. Butler possess'd)
 “ had not condescended to Burlesque, but left that “ Task to others, for He would always have ex-“ cell'd, had he taken any other kind of Verse.”

But since Burlesque was his peculiar Talent, and he has chosen this kind of Verse, let us examine, how far he may be justified, and applauded for it. And here we cannot begin better than with the Opinion of the Great Mr. Dryden. Speak-

“ Redresser of the Imaginary Wrongs, that are done to his Dul- “ cinea. The Knight has his Rosinante, his Burlesque Adventures,
 “ and his Sancho: But the Squire of the English Poet, is of an op“ posite Character to that of the Spanish Sancho; for whereas the “ latter is a plain unaffected Peasant, the English Squire is a Taylor
 “ by Trade, a Tartuff, or finished Hypocrite by Birth; and so deep “ a dogmatic Divine, that

He could deep Mysteries unriddle,

As easily as thread a Needle,

“ as it said in the Poem. The Author of Hudibras is preferable “ to Scarron, because he has one fix'd Mark or Object: and that, by “ a surprizing effort of Imagination, he has found the Art of lead“ ing his Readers to it, by diverting them.”

ing of Mr. Butler, (Dedication to Juvenal, p. 128, 129.) he says, “ The Worth of his Poem is “ too well known to need my Commendation ;
 “ and He is above my Censure ; the Choice of his “ Numbers is fuitable enough to his Design, as “ he has managed it ; but in any other hand,
 “ the Shortness of his Verse, and the quick Re“ turns of Rhime, had debas’d the Dignity of “ Style ; His Good Sense is perpetually shining “ through all he writes ; it affords us not the “ time of finding Faults ; we pass through the “ Levity of his Rhime, and one is immediately “ carried into some admirable useful Thought :
 “ after all, he has chosen This kind of Verse,
 “ and has written the Best in it.”

To this let me add, that the Shortness of Verse, and quick Returns of Rhime, have been some of the principal Means of raising and perpetuating the Fame which this Poem has acquir’d ; for the Turns of Wit and Satirical Sayings, being short and pithy, and therefore more tenable by the memory ; and this is the reason why Hu- d “ As to the Double Rhime in Hudibras, (says the Author of the Grub-street Journal, N^o 47. see General Historical Dictionary, vol.

 6. pag. 295.) “ though some have look’d upon them as a Blemish,
 “ it is generally the Reverse, they heightening the Ridicule, that “ was otherwise in the Representation, of which many Instances may “ be produced.” (See N^o 48.)

dibras is more frequently quoted in Conversation, than the finest Pieces of Wit in Heroic Poetry.

^d As for the Double Rhimes we have Mr. Dryden's Authority, (ibid. p. 128.) that they are necessary Companions of Burlesque Writing. Besides, were they really Faults, they are neither so many as to cast a blemish upon the known Excellencies of this Poem; nor yet solely, to captivate the Affections of the generality of it's Readers: no; their Admiration is moved by a higher Pleasure, than the meer Jingle of Words; the Sublimity of Wit, and Pungency of Satire, claim our Regard, and merit our highest Applause: In short, the Poet has surprizingly displayed the noblest Thoughts in a Dress so humorous and comical, that it is no wonder, that it soon became the chief Entertainment of the King and Court, after it's publication; was highly esteemed by one of the greatest * Wits in that Reign; and still continues to be an Entertainment to all, who have a Taste for the most refined Ridicule and Satire.

* The Earl of Rocheſter ſeem'd to ſet a high value upon His approbation. Hor. Sat. 10. imitated. See Works of Lord Rocheſter and Reſcommon, 2^d edit. 1707. p. 25. and Gen. Hiſt. Diſt. vol. 6. p. 295.

*I loath the Rabble, 'tis enough for me,
If Sidley, Shadwell, Sheppard, Wycherly,
Godolphin, Butler, Buckhurſt, Buckingham,
And ſome few more, whom I omit to name,
Approve my Senſe; I count Their Cenſure Fame.*

Hudibras is then an indisputable Original; for the Poet trod in a Path wherein he had no Guide, nor has he had many Followers. Though he had no Pattern, yet he had the Art of erecting himself into a Standard, lofty and elegant. Numberless Imitators have been unwarily drawn after it: his Method and Verse he has chosen, at first view seeming so easy and inviting, they were readily list'd into the view of his Fame: but alas? how miserably have they failed in the Attempt. Such wretched Imitations have augmented the Fame of the Original, and evidenc'd the chiefest Excellency in Writing, to be in Butler; which is, the being natural and easy, and yet inimitable.

This has been long the distinguishing Characteristick of Hudibras, grounded upon an undeniable Truth, That all Imitations have hitherto proved unsuccessful. Indeed, it must be own'd that Mr. Prior has been the most happy of all the Followers of Butler, and has approach'd the nearest to his Style and Humour. Tho' He was Second to Butler, as Philips was to Milton; yet he was sensible of an apparent Disparity betwixt them, as is

“ f There is one English Poem—the Title whereof is Hudibras—
 “ it is Don Quixote, it is our Satyre Menipee blended together. I “ never met with so much Wit in one single Book as in this; which
 “ at the same time is the most difficult to be translated; who would “ believe that a Work which paints in such lively and natural Co“ lours the several Foibles and Follies of Mankind, and where we “ meet

observed in the Notes, (see the last Note on the first Canto of this Poem;) where is the ingenuous Acknowledgment he makes of his Inferiority, in a singular Compliment to our Poet.

Attempts have likewise been made to translate some parts of this Poem into the Latin Tongue: we have Three Similes of this kind by the Learned Dr. Harmer, in the Poet's Life; but he and all others have found a thorough Translation impracticable. Nay, so far spread is the Fame of Hudibras, that we are told, it has met with a general and kind reception through Christendome by all that are acquainted with the Language; and that it had been before now^r translated into most European Languages, in the last, or present age, had not the Poet by coining new Words, to make Jingle to his Verses, (called Carmen Jocularare by the Latins) rendered it so extremely difficult to make it intelligible in another Tongue. (see Dedication to an Edition of Butler's Posthumous Work.) However, he is still the unrivall'd Darling of his own Country; and his Name will be ever famed, while he continues to be read in the Closets, and quoted in the Writings and Conversation of the Politest Writers of the English Nation.

Among the many Excellencies peculiar to this Poem, a very singular one ought not to be omitted, with which it may be said to be qualified, in common with some other extraordinary Writings : I mean the Fashion that has prevail'd of prescribing them for the Cure of Distempers both in Body and Mind ; for instance, Dr. Serenus Sammonicus, a celebrated Physician, has gravely prescribed the Fourth Book of Homer's Iliad to be laid under the Head for the cure of a Quartan Ague. (see the last note on Iliad the 4th) Monsieur Saint Evremont has likewise recommended Don Quixote, as a proper Potion to give Relief to an Heavy Heart. (see Spectator, N^o 163.) Jealousy has been cured by the 170th and 171st Spectators taken in a Dish of Chocolate ; and N^o 173. 184. 191. 203. 221. with half a dozen more of these wonder-working Papers are attested to be infallible Cures for Hypochondriac Melancholy. (see N^o 547.)—Hudibras may come in for his Share of Fame with these renowned Remedies : and I am much mistaken, if he may not stand in competition with any of the Spectators for the Cure of the last mentioned Distemper. Upon these Authorities, why might not this Poem be prescribed as an infallible Cure not only of the Spleen and Vapours, but of Enthusiasm and Hypocrisy ?

Having

Having thus fet to view the Excellency of this Poem, and the universal Applause it has deservedly met with: what naturally follows but an Enquiry after the Poet, and the respect that has been paid him? And here I am apprehensive the one will prove as great a Reproach to the Nation, as the other does an Honour to it.

The Lord Dorset was the first that introduced Hudibras into reputation at Court; for Mr. Prior says (Dedicat. to his Poems) it was owing to him, that the Court tasted That Poem, it soon became the chief Entertainment of the King, who often pleasantly quoted it in conversation. From this fair Prospect therefore, we might rationally conclude, that the Poet tasted plentifully of Royal Munificence, and that he was cherished by the Great, as well as his Poem. I am sure his Wit and his Loyalty equally merited reward and encouragement: but alas! upon the strictest Enquiry, we shall find, that he met with ^b neglect instead of regard; and empty delusive Promises in the room of real Performances. A disregard of his Friends was what King Charles has been highly blamed for;

^b Unpity'd Hudibras, your Champion Friend,

Has shewn how far your Charities extend;

This lasting Verse shall on his Tomb be read:

He sham'd you living, and upbraids you dead.

(Hind and Panther, Dryden's Miscel. Gen. Hist. Dict. v. 6. p. 296.)

and

and we cannot have a stronger Instance of that disregard, than his being unmindful of Mr. Butler, whose Works had done eminent Service to the Royal Cause, and Honour to his Country. It is strange that King Charles should be thus forgetful of a Man, whose Words were so often in his Mouth, and daily afforded him a remarkable pleasure in Conversation.

We are indeed informed, that Mr. Butler was once in a fair way of obtaining a Royal Gratuity, as the following account, if true, will show.

“ Mr. Wycherley had always laid hold of any “ opportunity which offer’d, to represent to His “ Grace (the Duke of Buckingham) how well
 “ Mr. Butler had deserv’d of the Royal Family,
 “ by writing his Inimitable Hudibras; and that “ it was a reproach to the Court, that a Person of “ his Loyalty and Wit, should suffer in obscu“ rity, and under the wants He did. The Duke “ seem’d always to hearken to him with attention “ enough; and after some time undertook to re-

^a General Historical Dictionary, vol. 6. pag. 291.

^b “ King Charles the Second never order’d Butler more than one “ Gratuity, and that was 300 Pounds, which had this compliment “ paid to it, that it pass’d all the Offices without a Fee, at the solici“ tation of Mr. William Longueville of the Temple, Lord Danby be“ ing at that time High Treasurer.” A proof of the great honour and honesty of our Poet, is this, “ That upon his being order’d the Three “ hundred Pounds above mentioned by the King, he called to mind
 “ that he ow’d more than that Sum to different Persons, from whom “ he

“ commend his Pretensions to His Majesty. Mr.
 “ Wycherley, in hopes to keep him steady to his “ Word, obtained of His Grace to name a Day,
 “ when he might introduce the modest and un“ fortunate Poet to his new Patron : at last an “ appointment was made, and the place of meet“ ing was appointed to be the Roe-Buck : Mr.
 “ Duke join’d them.” But by an unlucky incident this Review was broke off, for which I refer the Reader to the Authority cited in the Margin. And it will always be remembered to the reproach of that learned Age, that this Great and inimitable Poet was suffer’d to live and die in Want and Obscurity.

The King’s excessive fondness for the Poem, and surprising^b disregard and neglect of the Author, is fully, and movingly related by Mr. Butler, (Hudibras at Court, see Remains,) who thence takes occasion to do justice to his Poem, by hinting it’s Excellences in general, ^c and paying a few

“ he had borrowed Monies, or otherwife contracted Debts : for “ which reason he intreated Mr. Longueville to pay away the whole “ Gratuity, who accordingly did so ; and Butler did not receive a “ Shilling of it.” (See Butler’s Life under the word Hudibras.
General Hist. Dict. vol. 6. pag. 299. Note.)

modest modest Compliments to himself: of which the following Lines are worth transcribing.

*Now you must know, Sir Hudibras
With such Perfections gifted was,
And so peculiar in his Manner,
That all that saw him, did him Honour;
Among the rest, this Prince was one,
Admir'd his Conversation;
This Prince, whose ready Wit and Parts,
Conquer'd both Men and Women's Hearts,
Was so o'ercome with Knight, and Ralph,
That he could never claw it off;
He never Eat, nor Drank, nor Slept
But Hudibras still near him kept;
Never would go to Church or so,
But Hudibras must with him go;
Nor yet to visit Concubine,
Or at a City-Feast to Dine,
But Hudibras must still be there,
Or all the Fat was in the Fire.
Now after all was it not hard,
That he should meet with no Reward,
That fitted out this Knight and Squire,
This Monarch did so much admire?
That he should never reimburse
The Man for th' Equipage, or Horse,
Is sure a strange ungrateful Thing,
In any body but a King.*

But

*But this Good King it seems was told
 By some that were with him too bold,
 If e'er you hope to gain your Ends,
 Caress your Foes, and trust your Friends.—
 Such were the Doctrines that were taught,
 'Till this unthinking King was brought
 To leave his Friends to starve and die,
 A poor Reward for Loyalty.*

Mr. Butler's claim to a Poet's imaginary Immortality, is in another place (Hudibras's Epitaph, Remains) as handsomely and modestly made, as by any other Poet whatsoever :

*But since his Worship's dead and gone,
 And mould'ring lies beneath this Stone,
 The Reader is desir'd to look
 For his Atchievements in his Book.
 Which will preserve of Knight the Tale,
 'Till Time and Death itself shall fail.*

Mr Oldham, (vol. 2^d, 6th edition, 1703. pag. 420.) pathetically commiserates the extraordinary Sufferings of our Poet, in a remarkable manner. In his Satyr against Poetry, he introduces the Ghost of Spenser, dissuading him from it, upon experience and example, that Poverty and Contempt were it's inseparable attendants. After Spenser has gone over his own lamentable Case, and mentioned Homer and Cowley in the same view ; He thus movingly bevails the great and unhappy Mr. Butler :
 the

*On Butler who can think without just Rage,
The Glory, and the Scandal of the Age ?
Fair stood his Hopes, when first he came to Town,
Met every-where with Welcomes of Renown,
Courtèd, and lov'd by all, with wonder read,
And Promises of Princely Favour fed ;
But what Reward for all had he at last ?
After a Life in dull Expectance past,
The Wretch, at summing up his mispent Days,
Found nothing left but Poverty and Praise ;
Of all his Gains by Verse, he could not save
Enough to purchase Flannel, and a Grave ;
Reduc'd to Want, he in due time fell sick,
Was fain to die, and be interr'd on Tick :
And well might bless the Fever, that was sent
To rid him hence, and his worse Fate prevent.*

(See more in memory of Mr. Oldham, by N.T.)
Nor does Mr. Butler stand alone in such lamentable Misfortunes : Mr. Spenser and Mr. Cowley before him, will be indelible Reproaches to the Generosity of this Nation. Mr. Dryden (Dedicat. to Juvenal,) has publish'd to the world the Hardships he labour'd under, and Mr. Otway, (Prologue to Constantine the Great) deters us from Poetry, upon the same Topics with Spenser ; but for

for the Cure of such, as are addicted to the Muses, he adventures this wholesome Advice :

*All you who have Male Issue born,
Under the Starving Sign of Capricorn ;
Prevent the Malice of their Stars in time,
And warn them early from the Sin of Rhime :
Tell them, how Spenser starv'd, how Cowley mourn'd ;*

*How Butler's Faith and Service were return'd :
And if such Warning they refuse to take,
This last Experiment, O Parents ! make :
With hands behind him, see th' Offender ty'd,
The Parish Whip and Beadle by his side ;
Then lead him to some Stall that does expose
The Authors he loves most, there rub his Nose,
'Till like a Spaniel lash'd, to know command,
He by the due Correction understand
To keep his Brains clean, and not foul the Land, }
'Till he against his Nature learn to strive,
And get the knack of Dulness how to thrive.*

But now those gloomy disencouraging Times are happily vanished, and we are got into an Age wherein the Muses chearfully rear up their awful Heads ; an Age as eminent for rewarding her Poetic Sons, as the last was notorious in depressing them : Poetry has now more bounteous Patrons, than the last Age wanted. In short, we live in an Age that will not suffer a Poetic Genius to be damp'd damp'd or extinguish'd by the want of Subsistence, or even the fear of it.

Nothing more contributes to the Honour of our Country, than this munificent Regard to Poetry: this is the Reason why we have lately seen it arrive at the Summit of Perfection; and I may truly say, an universal Love of it's Professors, is proportionably advanc'd along with it: if we lament the neglected Poets of Former Ages, we can in This congratulate double the number who now flourish, or have flourished in the midst of Fame and Veneration: those of our Age have abounded in Plenty, as much as Their's languished in Want. For poor Homer, we can boast of his admirable Translator; For Spenser, we can name his last Editor, the late Mr. Hughes, who enjoy'd a beneficial place under the Lord Chancellors Cowper and Macclesfield; and his Son Philips, (see the Guardian, N^o 32.) The late Mr. Addison, Sir Richard Steele, and Mr. Congreve, may compensate for a Dryden, and an Otway: and for Mr. Butler, we can refer to the late Mr. Prior, and Dean Swift.

Nor is the bounteous Munificence of the present Age, confined only to it's Contemporary Poets, but gratefully extends itself to those that are dead. The late Dr. Gartb's Complaint (Preface to Ovid's Metamorphosis, pag. 52. 3^d Edition) that

“ Mr. Dryden, who could make Kings immortal, and raise Triumphant Arches to Heroes, “ now wants a poor Square Foot of Stone, to
 “ Poets, that ever was upon Earth, are deposited ;” can now no longer be Popular. It was hearken’d to by the late Duke of Buckinghamshire, who, in 1720, erected a Monument of Marble for him in Westminster Abbey.

And we can now say with great satisfaction, that Mr. Butler, among the infinite number of Readers whom he constantly delighted, at length found one, who publicly adopted him for his darling Author ; and out of a grateful sense of his Merits, and Character, erected a neat Monument to his memory in * Westminster Abbey, (see a Delineation of it in Dart’s, Westm. plate 3. tom. 1. pag. 78, 79.) which, next to Hudibras, will preserve the Fame of the Poet, and the exemplary Generosity of the Patron.—It sums up his Character both justly, and elegantly.

* Mr. Sam. Wesley, wrote the following Lines upon the setting up of Mr. Butler’s Monument in Westminster Abbey. (Poems on several Occasions, 4^{to} 1736. pag. 62.)

*While Butler, needy Wretch, was yet alive,
 No Gen’rous Patron would a Dinner give :
 See him when Starv’d to death, and turn’d to Dust,
 Presented with a Monumental Bust.
 The Poet’s Fate is here in Emblem shown,
 He ask’d for Bread, and he receiv’d a Stone.*

SAMUELIS BUTLERI,
 Qui Strenshamiae in agro Vigorn. nat. 1612, obiit Lond. 1680.

Vir doctus imprimis, acer, integer;
 Operibus Ingenii, non item præmiis, foelix:
Satyrici apud nos Carminis Artifex egregius;
 Quo simulatae Religionis Larvam detraxit,
 Et Perduellium scelera liberrime exagitavit:
 Scriptorum in suo genere, Primus et Postremus.

Ne, cui vivo deerant ferè omnia,
 Deesset etiam mortuo Tumulus,
 Hoc tandem posito marmore, curavit
 JOHANNES BARBER, Civis Londinensis, 1721.

Which is thus translated by the Author of Westmonasterium in tom. i. p. 79.

Sacred to the Memory of
 SAMUEL BUTLER,
 Who was born at Strensham in Worcestershire, 1612.
 And dy'd at London, 1680.

A Man of extraordinary Learning, Wit, and Integrity;
 Peculiarly happy in his Writings,
 Not so in the Encouragement of them:
 The curious Inventor of a kind of Satire amongst us,
 By which he pluck'd the Mask from Pious Hypocrisy,
 And plentifully exposed the Villany of Rebels:
 The First and Last of Writers in His Way.

Lest He, who (when alive) was destitute of all things,
 Should (when dead) want likewise a Monument,
 JOHN BARBER, Citizen of London, hath taken care, by placing this Stone over him, 1721.

Nothing now remains, but to make my acknowledgements to those Gentlemen, who have kindly ^f assisted me :

And, in the first place, I am highly indebted to the worthy and ingenious Mr. Christopher Byron of Manchester, for a great number of excellent Notes. No less to the late Rev. and learned Dr. Thomas Brett, for some Historical Notes, &c. communicated to me by my worthy and learned Friend, the Rev. Dr. William Warren, President of Trinity-Hall, with some Notes of his own. No less to the Rev. and learned Mr. William Warburton, for his curious and Critical Observations, which were procured for me by my learned and worthy Friend the Rev. Mr. James Tunstall, B. D. Public Orator of the University of Cambridge, and Fellow of St. John's College.

The following Reverend, worthy, and learned Gentlemen, are likewise intitled to my best acknowledgements. The Rev. Mr. William Smith, Rector of St. Mary's Bedford; the Rev. Mr. William Smith, of Harleston, in Norfolk; the late Mr. Samuel Wesley of Tiverton; the Rev. Dr. N. Dr. Dickins, Fellow of Trinity Hall, and Professor of Civil Law in the University of Cambridge; Dr. Heberden, M. D. Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge; the Rev. Mr. Professor Chapelow; Rev. Mr. Mickleburgh, B. D. Rector of Land Beech; Mr. Ward, Rhetoric Professor of Gresham College; William Cole, Esq; of King's College; the Rev. Mr. Thomas Herring, Fellow of Bennet College; Rev. Mr. Davies of Shaftsbury; and Mr. Coxeter of London.

I am likewise highly oblig'd by that admirably Learned Physician, Dr. Mead, for the Loan of an Original Picture of Mr. Butler (by Mr. Soest, a famous Dutch Painter) for the Engraver's use: and by Charles Longueville, Esq; for an offer of the same kind: and no less by the ingenious Mr. Wood, Painter, in Bloomsbury Square.

As the Notes of my worthy Friends highly deserve applause: I hope Their Excellency, will in some measure atone for the too great length, and other imperfections of my own: for which (as I cannot throw them into a Table of Errata) I sincerely beg the pardon of every candid Reader.

HUDIBRAS.

The ARGUMENT of THE FIRST CANTO.

*Sir HUDIBRAS his passing Worth,
The Manner how he sally'd forth;
His Arms and Equipage are shown;
His Horse's Virtues, and his own.
Th' Adventure of the Bear and Fiddle
Is sung, but breaks off in the middle.*

CANTO I.

WHEN Civil Dudgeon first grew high,
And Men fell out they knew not why;
When hard Words, Jealousies and Fears
Set Folks together by the ears,

ARGUMENT, ver. ult. Is sung, but breaks off in the middle.] A ridicule on Ronsarde's Franciade, and Sir William Davenant's Gondibert. (Mr. Wr.)

CANTO, ψ. 1. When Civil Dudgeon, &c.] To take in Dudgeon, is inwardly to resent some Injury or Affront, and what is previous to actual Fury. It was alter'd by Mr. Butler in an Edition 1674, to Civil Fury; (whether for the better or worse the Reader must be left to judge.) Thus it stood in Edit. of 1684, 1689, 1694 and 1700. Civil Dudgeon was restor'd in the Edition of 1704, and has continued so ever since.

ψ. 2. And Men fell out they knew not why.] It may be justly said They knew not why; since (as Lord Clarendon observes, Hist. of the Rebellion, vol. 1. fol. edit. p. 52.) “The like peace and plenty and “universal tranquillity was never enjoyed by any Nation for ten years “together, before those unhappy Troubles began.” See the like observation by ABP Bramhall, Serpent Salve; Works in folio, p. 592.

ψ. 3. When hard words, &c.] By hard words, he probably means the Cant words used by the Presbyterians and Sectaries of those times ; such as Gospel-walking, Gospel-preaching, Soul-saving, Elect, Saints, the Godly, the Predestinate, and the like ; which they apply'd to their own Preachers, and themselves ; likewise Arminians, (some call'd them Ormanists ; see Dr. Walker's Sufferings of the Episcopal Clergy, part 2. p. 252) Papists, Prelatists, Malignants, Reprobates, wicked, ungodly, and carnal-minded ; which they applied to all Loyal persons, who were desirous of maintaining the establish'd Constitution in Church and State : by which they infused strange fears and jealousies into the heads of the People, and made them believe there was a form'd design in the King and his Ministers, to deprive them of their Religion and Liberties ; so that as soon as the Parliament met, and the Demagogues had assum'd a licentiousness in speech, they first rais'd Mobs to drive the King from his Palace, and then regular Forces to fight (as they falsely and wickedly pretended) for their Religion ; they set the People against the Common Prayer, which they made them believe was the Mass-book in English ; and nick-named it Porridge. See Bastwick's Letter to Mr. Aquila Wicks, Nelson's Collections, vol. 1. p. 503. Mercurius Rusticus, No 111. p. 100. 191. and the Letbargy of the Church of England ; see Reformato precisely character'd by a Church-warden, p. 6. Publ. Libr. Cambridge, xix. 9. 7. They enrag'd them likewise against the Surplice, calling it a Rag of Popery ; the Whore of Babylon's Smock, and the Smock of the Whore of Rome. See a Tract intituled, A Rent in the Lawn Sleeves, 1641. p. 4. and A Babylonish Garment ; see Reformato precisely character'd, p. 8.

ψ. 6. As for Punk.] Sir John Suckling has express'd this Thought a little more decently, in the Tragedy of Brennoralt.

“ Religion now is a young Mistress here,

“ For which each Man will fight, and die at least ;

“ Let it alone a while, and 'twill become

“ A kind of married Wife, People will be “ Content to live with it in quietness.”

(Mr. W.)

ψ. 8. Tho' not a Man of them knew wherefore.] The greatest Bigots are usually Persons of the shallowest Judgment, as it was in those wicked times, when Women and the meanest Mechanics became zealous Sticklers for Controversies, which none of them could be suppos'd to understand. An ingenious Italian in Queen Elisabeth's days, gave this Character of the Disciplinarians their Predecessors, “ That “ the Common People were wiser than the wisest of his Nation ; for “ here the very Women and Shopkeepers were better able to judge
“ of Predestination, and what Laws were fit to be made concerning “ Church Government, than what were fit to be obeyed or demon“ lish'd ; that they were more able (or at least thought so) to raise
“ and

Whose Honesty they all durst swear for,
 Tho' not a Man of them knew wherefore :
 When Gospel-Trumpeter, surrounded

“ and determine perplex'd Cases of Conscience; than the most learn“ ed Colleges in Italy; that Men of slightest Learning, or at least
 “ the most ignorant of the common People, were made for a New “ or a Super-, or Re-Reformation of Religion. And in this they “ appear'd like that Man, who would never leave to whet and whet
 “ his knife, till there was no Steel left to make it useful.” Hooker's Life, by Walton, p. 10. prefix'd to his Eccles. Polity.

y. 9. When Gospel Trumpeter, surrounded.] The Presbyterians
 (many of whom, before the War, had got into Parish Churches) preach'd the People into Rebellion; incited them to take up Arms and fight the Lord's Battles, and destroy the Amalekites, Root and Branch, Hip and Thigh; (Coleman before the Commons, April 30, 1643. p. 24.) and to root out the Wicked from the Earth; that was, in their sense, all that lov'd the King, the Bishops, and the Common Prayer: They told the People afterwards, that they should bind their Kings in chains, and their Nobles in links of iron;
 see Cheyne's Fast Sermon before the Lords, Mat. 26. 1645. p. 53.
Century of eminent Presbyterian Preachers, 1723. p. 7. and one Du- rance pray'd to God at Sandwich, “ That the King might be “ brought in Chains of Iron to his Parliament;” Edward's Gan- græna, part. 2. p. 131, 134. part 3. p. 97. both which they literally did. And it has been fully made out, that many of the Re- gicides were drawn into the Grand Rebellion, by the direful Imprecations of seditious Preachers from the Pulpit: This some of them own'd, and in particular Dr. South tells us, “ That he had it from “ the Mouth of Axtell the Regicide, that he with many more, went “ into that execrable War, with such a controlling horror upon “ their Spirits, from those public Sermons, especially of Brooks and “ Calamy.” see a Specimen of their seditious Passages, Cent. of eminent Presbyterian Preachers, chap. 1. p. 3, 5, 6.) “ that they “ verily believed, they should have been accursed by God for ever
 “ if they had not acted their part in that dismal Tragedy, and “ heartily done the Devil's work.” Sermons, vol. 1. p. 513. And in this sense is that remarkable Expression of the Doctor to be taken,
 vol. 5. Sermon 1. “ That it was the Pulpit that supplied the Field “ with Swordsmen, and the Parliament-house with Incendiaries.” Sir Roger L'Estrange (Reflection on Fab. 67. part 1) girds them notably upon this head: “ A Trumpeter (says he) in the Pulpit, is the very “ Emblem of a Trumpeter in the Field, and the same Charge holds “ good against both; only the Spiritual Trumpet is the most pern-“ cious Instrument of the two: for the latter serves only to rouse the “Courage of the Soldiers without any Doctrine or Application upon the Text; whereas the other infuses Malice over and above, and preaches Death and Damnation both in one, and gives the very chapter and verse for it.” (see Mr. Addison’s remark upon this and the following lines, Spectator N^o 60. and Description of Persons under Musical Instruments, Spect. N^o 153.)

γ 10. With long-ear'd Rout, to Battle sounded.] Their Ears appear’d to greater advantage from the shortness of their Hair; whence they got the name of Round-heads, (see Lord Clarendon’s History of the Rebellion, vol. 1. p. 267.) Mr. Cleveland, in his Hue and Cry after Sir John Presbyter, describes him to be,

With Hair in Character, and Lugs in Text,

And Mr. Dryden, Hind and Panther,

And pricks up his predestinating Ears.

“His Barber shall so roundly indent with his head, that our Eyes may as well see his Ears, as our Ears hear his Doctrine.” Reformado precisely charactered, p. 12. Publ. Libr. Cambridge, xix. 9. 7.

The Committee Man curried, a Comedy, by S. Sheppard, 1647, Act 1. Royal Libr. Cambridge.

I have heard of one H-ll, a Precisian of this Cut, who, after the Restoration, rebuking an Orthodox Clergyman for the Length of his Hair: in answer to him, he reply’d, “Old Prig, I promise you to cut my Hair up to my Ears, provided you will cut your Ears up to your Hair.”

γ. 11, 12. And Pulpit, Drum Ecclesiastick,—Was beat with Fist, &c.] Alluding to their vehement Action in the Pulpit, and their beating it with their Fists, as if they were beating a Drum. The Author of A Character of England, in a Letter to a French Nobleman, 1659. p. 15. observes, “that they had the action of a Thrasher rather than of a Divine.” And ’tis remark’d, (see Letter sent to London, from a Spy at Oxford, to Mr. Pym, &c. 1643. p. 4.) of John Sedgewick; “That he thrash’d such a sweating Lecture, that he put off his Doublet: and by Dr. Echard, (see Contempt of the Clergy, p. 56.) “That the Preacher shrunk up his shoulders, and stretched himself, as if he was going to cleave a bullock’s head.” Their Action

Entitle him, Mirroure of Knighthood ;
That never bow'd his stubborn Knee
To any thing but Chivalry ;

in the Pulpit, and precise, hypocritical behaviour in other respects, is alluded to in the following lines :

*Both Cain and Judas back are come,
In Vizards most divine ;
God blefs us from a Pulpit Drum,
And preaching Catiline !* (Sir J. Birkenhead revived, p. 5)

The Mock Majesty of placing the Epithet after the Substantive, and the Extreme appositiveness of the Simile, may make it well deserve to be quoted, without any consideration of the Rhyme at all.

ŷ. 12. Instead of a Stick.] The speaking a Stick as one word, with the stress upon a, seems not blameable : for the change of Accent only heightens the Burlesque, and consequently is rather an excellency than a fault.

ŷ. 13. Then did Sir Knight, &c.] Our Author to make his Knight appear more ridiculous has dress'd him in all kind of fantastic Colours, and put many Characters together, to finish him a perfect Coxcomb.

ŷ. 14. And out he rode a Colonelling.] The Knight (if Sir Samuel Luke was Mr. Butler's Hero) was not only a Colonel in the Parliament-Army, but also Scoutmaster General in the Counties of Bedford, Surrey, &c. (Walker's Hist. of Independency, part 1. p. 170.) This gives us some light into his Character and Conduct : For he is now entering upon his proper Office, full of pretendedly pious, and sanctified Resolutions for the Good of his Country ; his Peregrinations are so consistent with his Office and Humour, that they are no longer to be called fabulous, or improbable. The succeeding Cantos are introduced with large Prefaces, but here the Poet seems impatient till he get into the Description and Character of his Hero. (Mr. B.)

ŷ. 15. A Wight he was, &c.] Wight often used for Person, by Chaucer, Spencer, and Fairfax in his Godfrey of Bulloign, &c. &c.

ŷ. 16. Mirroure of Knighthood.] There was a Book so called, (see Don Quixote, vol. 1. c. 6. p. 48.) and Don Quixote is so call'd by Cervantes, (vol. 1. b. 2. c. 1. p. 77.) Mirroure of Chivalry, (vol. 2. c. 2. p. 26, 29. vol. 3. c. 7. p. 65. vol. 4. c. 56. p. 557, 616. Motteux's edit. 1706.) and Palmerin, in Beaumont and Fletcher's Knight of the Burning Pestle, act. 1. see likewise History of Valentine and Orson, c. 41. p. 178.

ŷ. 17, 18. That never bow'd his stubborn Knee—To any thing but Chivalry.] i. e. he kneeled to the King, when he knighted him, but seldom upon any other occasion.

Nor put up Blow, but that which laid

 Either for Chartel, or for Warrant :

 And styl'd of War as well as Peace.
 (So some Rats of amphibious nature,

ψ. 19, 20. Nor put up Blow, but that which laid—Right Worshipful on Shoulder-blade.] Alluding to the Blow the King laid on his Shoulder with a Sword, when he Knighted him ; to this he refers 2^d Part, Canto 1. ψ. 235, 236.

*Tb' old Romans freedom did bestow, and to some of the other Ceremonies of Knighthood : Part 1. Canto 2. ψ. 742, 743.

*Was I for this intituled Sir,
 And girt with rusty Sword and Spur ?*

In the time of Charles the Great, the way of Knighting by the Colaphus, or giving a Blow on the Ear, was used in sign of sustaining future hardships, (see Ashmole's History of the Garter, p. 36.) The Accolade, or ceremony of embracing the Knight (a ceremony often mention'd by the Writer of Amadis de Gaul) was first perform'd by the Emperour Charles the Great, upon Knighting his Son Lewis Debonair. (Ashmole id. ib.) The customary way of Knighting at this time, (see Sir William Segar's book, entitled, Of Honour Civil and Military, lib. 2. chap. 2. p. 74.) is as follows : “ He that is to be made Knight, is stricken by the Prince with “ a Drawn Sword upon his Back or Shoulder ; the Prince saying, “ Soys Chevalier, (Soy Chivaler, à Nome de Dieu ; Guillim, part 2. “ p. 226.) and in times past, was added Saint George : And when “ the Knight riseth, the Prince saith Avance.” This is the manner of dubbing Knights at this present, and the word dubbing was the old word, and not creating (see Ashmole, p. 40. Selden's Titles of Honour, 2^d edit. 2^d part, chap. 1, 2. Historical Essay on Nobility, 2^d edit. vol. 2. p. 554.) Mowbray Duke of Norfolk upon Bolnbroke's Challenge, (see Shakespear's King Richard the Second, Act. 1. p. 258. Mr. Theobald's first edit. vol. 3. 1733.) and throwing down his Gantlet, says, “ I take it up, and by this Sword I swear—Which gently

 35 Which made some take him for a Tool
 That knaves do work with, called a Fool.

“ gently laid my Knighthood on my Shoulder,— I'll answer “ thee in any fair Degree, or Chivalrous Design of Trial.” Sir Kenelm Digby tells us (see Discourse concerning the Cure of Wounds by the Powder of Sympathy, p. 105.) that when King James the First, who had an Antipathy to a Sword, dubb'd him Knight, had not the Duke of Buckingham guided his hand aright, in lieu of touching his Shoulder, he had certainly run the point of it into his Eyes. (see the manner in which the Innkeeper dubb'd Don Quixote Knight, part 1. book 1. chap. 3.)

ŷ. 22. Either for Chartel] Chartel signifies a Letter of Defiance or Challenge to a Duel, in use when Combats were allowed to decide difficult Controversies, not otherwise to be determined by Law, (see Cowel's and Manley's Interpreters, and Jacob's Law Dictionary.) A
 'Tryal (and the last) of this kind, was intended between the Marquis of Hamilton, and the Lord Rea, in the year 1631, but the King put an end to the dispute. (Echard's History of England, vol. II. p. 97.)
 In this sense Lord Roos uses the word, in his Answer to the Marquis of Dorchester's Letter, Feb. 25, 1659. p. 5. “ You had better have “ been drunk, and set in the Stocks, for it, when you sent the Post “ with a whole packet of Chartels for me.” (see an account of Duelling, Tatler No 93. and of Tryals of Titles in this way, Salmon's Hist. of Herefordshire, p. 178, 179, 180, 181. Mexeray produces one instance of a Combat in tryal of a Person's Innocency as early as the year 628. see Hist. of France, translated by Bulteel, p. 4.

ŷ. 23. Great on the Bench, Great in the Saddle.] In this Character of Hudibras, all the abuses of human Learning are finely satyriz'd:
Philosophy, Logic, Rhetoric, Mathematics, Metaphysics, and School-
Divinity. (Mr. W.)

ŷ. 24. That cou'd as well bind o'er, as swaddle.] Swaddle, bang, sudgel, or drub, see Bailey's Dictionary.

For't has been held by many, that
 As Montaigne, playing with his Cat,
 Complains she thought him but an Afs,
 40 Much more she wou'd Sir Hudibras;
 (For that's the Name our valiant Knight
 To all his Challenges did write.)
 But they're mistaken very much,
 'Tis plain enough he was not such.
 45 We grant, altho' he had much Wit,
 H'was very shy of using it;
 As being loth to wear it out,
 And therefore bore it not about;

† 38. As Montaigne, playing with his Cat,—Complains she thought him but an Afs] “When I am playing with my Cat (says Montaigne, Essays, book 2. chap. 12.) “who knows whether she hath more sport “in dallying with me, than I have in gaming with her? we entertain one another with mutual Apish Tricks,” &c. How artfully is this simple humour in Montaigne ridiculed in a pretty Simile? But we are in a more refined Age than that which Butler lived in, and this humour is rather applauded than condemned. See an Account of Isaac Bickerstaff's playing with his Cat. Tatler. (Mr. B.)

† 40. Much more she wou'd Sir Hudibras.] Jeffrey of Monmouth (Bishop of St. Asaph) makes mention of a British King of this Name, who lived about the time of Solomon, and reigned thirty-nine years; he composed all Diffensions among his People, and built Kaerlem or Canterbury, Kaerguen or Winchester, and the Town of Paladur now Shaftsbury: (see his British History translated by Thompson, c. 9. p. 48. Robert of Gloucester's Chronicle, by Hearne, vol. 1. p. 28. Fabian's Chronicle, part 1. c. 12. fol. edit. 1516. Spenser's Fairy Queen, book 2, canto x. 5. 25. vol. 2. p. 315. Hughes's edit. Somner's Antiq. of Canterbury, 4to. 1640. p. 3. (I am of opinion that Mr. Butler rather alludes to one of Spenser's Knights, (see Fairy Queen, book 2. canto 2. § 17.)

whose Mouth he observes, was slit up to his Ears, and in it were seven Tongues each of them cleft into seven parts, and he talk'd with all the seven at once, of different Matters and in divers Languages : see Milton's description of the Confusion of Languages, Paradise Lost, book 12. l. 48. &c.

* y. 103. Or Cerberus himself, &c.] Cerberus ; a Name which Poets give to a Dog with three Heads, which they feign'd Door-keeper of Hell, that carcs'd the unfortunate Souls sent thither, and devour'd them that would get out again ; yet Hercules tied him up, and made him follow. This Dog with three Heads denotes the past, the present, and the Time to come ; which receive, and, as it were, devour all things. Hercules got the better of him, which shews that heroick Actions are always victorious over Time, because they are present in the Memory of Posterity.

y. 109. Cou'd coin and counterfeit new Words.] The Presbyterians coin'd a great number, such as Out-goings, Carryings-on, Nothingness, Workings-out, Gospel-walking-times, &c. which we shall meet with hereafter, in the Speeches of the Knight and Squire, and others in this Poem ; for which they are banter'd by Sir John Birkenhead, (Paul's Church-yard, cent. 1. class 1. The Author of the Spectator (N^o 458.) observes, “ That those swarms of “ Sectaries that over-ran the Nation in the time of the Great Re- “ bellion, carried their Hypocrisy so high, that they had converted “ our whole Language into a jargon of Enthusiasm.”

y. 111. 112. Words so debased and hard, no Stone—Was hard enough to touch them on.] Thus it stands in every Edition that I have met

ψ. 115. That had the Orator, &c.] This and the three following Lines, not in the two first editions of 1663, but added in the edit. 1674. Demosthenes is here meant, who had a defect in his Speech.

ψ. 120. Than Tycho Brabe—] An eminent Danish Mathematician. At Gottorp there was a large Globe Celestial within, and Terrestrial without, made after a Design of Tycho Brabe ; twelve Persons might sit round a Table within-side of it, and make Celestial Observations in the turning of it ; see Northern Worthies, in the Lives of Peter the Great, &c. 1728, p. 34. see further Account of Tycho Brabe, Collier's Hist. Dictionary.

Ib. ——— or Erra Pater.] William Lilly the famous Astrologer of those times, so called by Mr. Butler, Memoirs of the year 1649, and 1650. The House of Commons had so great a regard to his Predictions, that the Author of Mercurius Pragmaticus, (N^o 20.) stiles the Members, the Sons of Erra Pater. Mr. Butler probably named him so, from an old Astrologer, of whose Predictions John Taylor the Water Poet makes mention, in the Preface to his Cast over the Water, Works, p. 156. and in Mr. Reading's Catalogue of Sion College Library, there is a Tract, intitled, Erra Pater's Predictions. The Elder Loveless (in Beaumont and Fletcher's Scornful Lady, act 4. scene 1.) calls Abigail, Dirty December, with a Face as old

(See Younger Brother, by Beaumont and Fletcher, act 1. sc. 2.) and the Writer of A Letter sent to London from a Spy at Oxford, 1643. p. 13. says, " Surely the Devil ow'd us a shame, that " none of us were skill'd in the Book of Fortune, Erra Pater, or " Booker's Almanack." Some are of opinion, that by Erra Pater he meant the Wandering Jew, (named Job. Buttadæus) See an Account of him in the Philosophical Transactions : Sir Thomas Browne's Vulgar Errours. London Spy, vol. 2. book 3. Lett. 1. vol. 7. b. 4. ψ. 125, 126. And wisely tell, what Hour o' th' Day—The Clock does strike by Algebra.] There are many Algebraic Questions to which Mr. Butler may probably allude ; see an odd Account of the measuring of Time, in Mr. Scot, (Discovery of Witchcraft, book 16. chap. 5. p. 478.) and of a Movement, that Measures Time after a particular Manner, Philosophical Transactions, vol. 14.  No matter whether right or wrong,
 They might be either said, or sung.
 His Notions fitted things so well,

* ψ. 131. Whatever Sceptick, &c.] Sceptick; Pyrrho was the Chief of Sceptick Philosophers, and was at first, as Apollodorus saith, a Painter, then became the Hearer of Driso, and at last the Disciple of Anaxagoras whom he follow'd into India, to see the Gymnosophists. He pretended that Men did nothing but by Custom; that there was neither Honesty nor Dishonesty, Justice nor Injustice, Good nor Evil. He was very solitary, lived to be 90 Years old, was highly esteemed in his Country, and created Chief Priest. He lived in the time of Epicurus and Theophrastus, about the 120th Olympiad. His followers were call'd Pyrrhonians; besides which, they were named the Ephecticks and Aphoreticks, but more generally Scepticks. This Sect made their chiefest Good to consist in a Sedateness of Mind, exempt from all Passions; in regulating their Opinions, and moderating their Passions, which they call'd Ataxia and Metriopatia; and in suspending their judgment in regard of Good and Evil, Truth and Falshood, which they call'd Epoche. Sextus Empiricus, who lived in the second Century, under the Emperor Antoninus Pius, writ ten Books against the Mathematicians or Astrologers, and three of the Pyrrhonian Opinion. The Word is derived from the Greek σκέπτεσθαι, quod est, considerare, speculari.

1b. — enquire for] inquere for in all Editions to 1689. inclus.

ψ. 132 For ev'ry why, he had a wherefore.] i. e. He could answer one Question by another, or elude one difficulty by proposing another. (Mr. W.) see Ray's English Proverbs, 2^d edit. pag. 348. Shakespear's Comedy of Errors, act. 2. vol. 3. p. 17. Mr. Theobald's edit. 1733.

ψ. 139, 140. His Notions fitted things so well—That which was which he cou'd not tell.] This Satire is against those Philosophers, who took their Ideas of Substances, to be the Combinations of Nature, and not the arbitrary Workmanship of the Human mind; and that the Essence of each sort is more than the Abstract Idea; see Mr. Lock on the Names of Substances. This must give one a great Idea of our Author's penetration in Metaphysical Enquiries. (Mr. W.)

* ψ. 143.

140 That which was which he cou'd not tell;
 But oftentimes mistook the one
 For th' other, as great Clerks have done,
 He cou'd reduce all Things to Acts,
 And knew their Natures by Abstracts;
 145 Where Entity and Quiddity,
 The Ghosts of defunct Bodies fly;
 Where Truth in Person does appear,
 Like Words congeal'd in Northern Air.

* ψ. 143. He cou'd reduce, &c.] The old Philosophers thought to extract Notions out of Natural Things, as Chymists do Spirits and Essences; and, when they had refined them into the nicest Subtleties, gave them as insignificant Names, as those Operators do their Extractions: But (as Seneca says) the subtiler Things are render'd, they are but the nearer to Nothing. So are all their Definitions of Things by Acts, the nearer to Nonsense. This and the following line added 1674.

ψ. 145, 146. Where Entity and Quiddity,—The Ghosts of defunct Bodies fly.] He calls the abstracted Notions of Entity and Quiddity, very properly the Ghosts of Bodies; thereby lashing the too nice distinctions of Metaphysicians, who distinguish Body, Entity, and Substance so finely from each other; that they say, the two latter Ideas or Notions may remain, when the Body is gone and perished; and so while Hudibras was pulling down Popery, he was setting up Transubstantiation.

* ψ. 147. Where Truth, &c.] Some Authors have mistaken Truth for a real Thing, when it is nothing but a right Method of putting those Notions or Images of Things (in the understanding of Man) into the same State and Order, that their Originals hold in Nature; and therefore Aristotle says, Unumquodque sicut se habet secundum esse, ita se habet secundum veritatem. Met. L. 2.

ψ. 148. Like Words congeal'd in Northern Air.] See an Explication of this passage, and a merry account of Words freezing in Nova Zembla, Tatler N^o 254. and Rabelais's Account of the bloody Fight of the Arimaspians and Nephelebites, upon the confines of the Frozen Sea. (vol. 4. chap. 56. p. 229. Ozell's edit. 1737.) To which Mr. John Donne probably refers, in his Panegyric upon T. Coryat, and his Crudities.

*It's not that French, which made his Giants see Those uncouth Islands, where Words frozen be,
 Till by the Thaw next Year they're Voice again.*

These Schoolmen spun their Arguments very fine, and to a great length; and used such nice Distinctions, that they are here justly compared to Cobwebs. Mr. Pope (see Essay on Criticism) speaks of them with great contempt.

*Once School Divines this zealous Isle o'erspread;
 Who knew not Sentences, was deepest read;
 Faith, Gospel, all seem'd made to be disputed,
 And none had sense enough to be confuted.
 Scotists, and Thomists now in peace remain
 Amidst their kindred Cobwebs in Duck lane.*

Bishop

As he that hight Irrefragable;
 A second Thomas, or at once
 To name them all, another Dunce:

Bishop Sanderson (see 2^d Lecture upon promissory Oaths, translated by the Royal Martyr, and reprinted by Mr. Lewis, 1722, p. 34.) makes mention of one "Paul Cortesius, who, whilst following Thomas and Scotus, and many more, he compiled Commentaries upon the Four Books of Sentences;" growing weary of the terms used by the Schools, as less Ciceronian, for Church chose rather to say Senate; for Ecclesiastical Laws, Senate Decrees; for Predestination, Presignation; for Ordination of Priests, Initiation; for Angel, Genius; Bishop, Flamen; and the like.

¶ 153, 154. A second Thomas, or at once—To name them all, another Dunce.] Thus they stood in the two first Editions of 1663, left out in those of 1674, 1684, 1689, 1700, and not restored till 1704.

* Thomas Aquinas, a Dominican Friar, was born in 1224, studied at Cologne and at Paris. He new modell'd the School-Divinity, and was therefore called the Angelick Doctor, and Eagle of Divines. The most illustrious Persons of his time were ambitious of his Friendship, and put a high value on his Merits, so that they offer'd him Bishopricks, which he refused with as much Ardor as others seek after them. He died in the fiftieth year of his age, and was canonized by Pope John XXII. We have his Works in 18 Volumes, several times printed.

* Johannes Duns Scotus was a very Learned Man, who lived about the end of the thirteenth, and beginning of the fourteenth Century. The English and Scots strive which of them shall have the honour of his Birth. The English say, he was born in Northumberland; the Scots alledge he was born at Duns in the Mers, the neighbouring County to Northumberland, and hence was called Duns Scotus: Moreri, Buchanan, and other Scotch Historians are of this opinion, and for proof cite his Epitaph;

Scotia me genuit, Anglia suscepit, Gallia edocuit, Germania tenet.

He died at Cologne, Novemb. 8, 1308. In the Supplement to Dr. Cave's Historia Literaria, he is said to be extraordinary learned in Physicks, Metaphysicks, Mathematicks and Astronomy; that his Fame was so great when at Oxford, that 30000 Scholars came thither to hear his Lectures: That when at Paris, his Arguments and Authority carried it for the immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin; so that they appointed a Festival on that account, and would admit no Scholars to Degrees, but such as were of this mind. He was a great opposer of Thomas Aquinas's Doctrine, and, for being a very acute Logician, was called Doctor Subtilis, which was the reason also, that an old Punster always called him the Lathy Doctor.

*And with as delicate a hand,
 Cou'd twist as tough a Rope of Sand.*

Mr. Smith of Harleston is of opinion, that Mr. Butler alludes to the following Story. A Gentleman of Paris, who was reduced in Circumstances, walking in the fields in a melancholy manner, was met by a Person in the habit of a Doctor of the Sorbon; who enquiring into his case, told him, that he had acquired so much by his Studies, that it was in his power to relieve him, and he would do it, provided the Gentleman would be at his devoirs, when he could no longer employ him; the agreement was made, and the Cloven Foot soon began to appear; for the Gentleman set the Sorbonist to fill a Sieve with Water, which he performed after stopping the holes with Wax: Then he ordered him to make a Rope of Sand, which the Devil not being able to do scratch'd his Head, and march'd off in confusion. I meet with a ludicrous and parallel instance (Facet. Facetiar. hoc est Joco-seriorum Fascicul. Nov. de peditu, ejusque speciebus, p. 27.) Cum quidam a Dæmone valde urgeretur, ut se ei dederet; assentit tandem, si Diabolus tria præstet; petit igitur primo magnam vim auri; data est a Diabolo. secundo ut invisibilis fieret; et ipsum Diabolus docuit: Tertiâ vice cum maximè anxius esset, quidnam peteret, quod Diabolus præstare non posset: ei forte fortuna præ nimio metu elabatur Diphthongus (species peditus) hunc mihi modo

This College has been rebuilt with an extraordinary Magnificence, at the charge of Cardinal Richlieu, and contains Lodging for thirty-six Doctors, who are called the Society of Sorbon. Those which are received among them, before they have received their Doctor's Degree, are only said to be of the Hospitality of Sorbon. Claud. Hemeraus de Acad. Paris. Paradise was seated in Heaven, and that Adam was cast down from thence to this Earth, when he transgressed: see Life of Mahomet, pre-first Discoverers of it, and near that part of the World where Paradise was situated according to some Writers. Torquemeda's Spanish

 what Milton has done, who represents Adam relating his Dream in a passage inexpressibly charming, book 8. ψ 46 to 484. see some-

Paradise, introduces Surley, asking Mammon the following Question ; Surley, “ Did Adam write in High-Dutch ? ” Mammon, “ He did,

ψ. 181. If either of them had a Navel.] Several of the Ancients have supposed, that Adam and Eve had no Navels ; and among the Moderns, the late learned Bishop Cumberland was of this Opinion ; “ All other Men (says he) being born of Woman have a

γ. 182. Who first made Musick malleable :] Pythagoras ex Malleorum Ictibus diverse concrepantibus, Musicæ septem Discrimina Vocum invenit. Wolfii Lexicon Memorab. part 1. 390. "Macrobius, in his second book, (see Spectator N^o 334.) relates, that Pythagoras passing by a Smith's Shop, found that the Sounds from the Hammer were either more Grave or Acute, according to the different Weights of Hammers. The Philosopher to improve this hint suspends different Weights by Strings of the same bigness, and found in like manner that the Sounds answered to the Weights. This being discovered, he finds out those Numbers which produced Sounds that were Consonants ; as that two Strings of the same substance and tension, the one being double the length of the other, give that interval which is called Diapason, or an Eighth. The same was also effected from two Strings of the same length and size ; the one having four times the tension of the other. By these steps, from so mean a beginning, did this Great Man reduce what was only before noise, to one of the most delightful Sciences, by marrying it to the Mathematicks, and by that means, caused it to be one of the most abstract and demonstrative of Sciences." See Dr. Long's Astronomy, 1742, p. 341.

γ. 189. For his Religion, &c.] Mr. Butler is very exact in delineating his Hero's Religion ; it was necessary that he should be so, that the Reader might judge, whether he was a proper Person to set up for a Reformer, and whether the Religion he professed, was more eligible than that he endeavour'd to demolish ; whether the Poet has been just in the Portrait, must be left to every Reader's observation. γ. 193, 194. Of Errant Saints, whom all Men grant,—To be the True Church Militant.] Where Presbytery has been established, it has been usually effected by force of Arms, like the Religion of Mahomet : Thus it was established at Geneva in Switzerland, Holland, Scotland, &c. In France for some time ; by that means it obtained a toleration ; much Blood was shed to get it established in England ; and once during that Grand Rebellion, it seem'd very near gaining an Establishment here ; and in the years 1645, 1646, several Ordinances of Lords and Commons in Parliament, were made for that Purpose ; and these Ordinances for the Presbyterian Government and Discipline, were begun to be put in execution in the Cities of London and Westminster, and Parts adjacent ; but the Independents, by Cromwell's Artifices gaining an ascendant in the Parliament-house, put a stop to their proceedings, and hindered their gaining the Settlement they had so long sought for : and if they could get full power, 'tis to be fear'd they would tolerate no other Religion : This was their practice in Scotland, whilst they had power to do it ; and they endeavoured to hinder it in England, whilst they had encouragement from the Two Houses at Westminster ; declaring, “ That to “ make a Law for Toleration, was establishing Iniquity by Law : ” nay, they asserted, “ That a Toleration was the appointing a City “ of Refuge in Men's Consciences for the Devil to fly to, a Tole- “ ration of Soul-Murder, the greatest Murder of all others.” (see Dr. Bennet's Introduction to his Abridgement of the London Cases, p. 6.) and 'tis observ'd by Dr. Bruno Ryves, Mercurius Rusticus, N^o 9. p. 102, “ That where Puritanism prevails, it cancels all Obligations “ both of Religion and Nature.” Mr. Rapin Thoyras was of the same opinion, (See Dissertations sur les Whigs & Tories, as quoted by the Author of A Plea for the Sacramental Test, 1736) by his declaring, “ That it is certain, that if ever the Presbyterians are in a “ condition to act, without being opposed, they will never be con- “ tented, till they have totally destroyed the Hierarchy, and in ge- “ neral the whole Church of England.” (See their professed dislike of a Toleration ; Sir Roger L'Estrange's Dissenters Sayings, part 1. 2. A Century of eminent Presbyterian Preachers, 1723, c. 5. p. 66.)

ψ. 199, 200. Prove their Doctrine Orthodox—By Apostolick Blows and Knocks, &c.] Many instances of that kind are given by Dr. Walker, in his Sufferings of the Episcopal Clergy. But I will take the liberty of giving one instance from Mr. Clement Walker. (see History of Independency part 2. p. 254.) “ Sunday 9th of September 1649, at the “ Church of St. Peter's-Paul's-Wharf, Master Williams reading “ Morning Service out of the Book of Common Prayer, and having prayed for the King, (as in that Liturgy established by Act of “ Parliament he is enjoined) six Soldiers from Saint Paul's Church “ (where they quarter) came with Swords and Pistols cock'd, into “ the Church, commanding him to come down out of the Pulpit, “ which he immediately did, and went quietly with them into the “ Vestry, when presently a Party of Horse from St. Paul's, rode “ into the Church with Swords drawn, and Pistols spann'd, crying “ out, Knock the Rogues on the Head, shoot them, kill them ; and presently shot at random at the crowd of unarm'd Men, Women, “ and Children ; shot an old Woman into the Head, wounded grievously above forty more, whereof many are likely to die ; frightened Women with Child, and rifled and plundered away their “ Clokes, Hats, and other Spoiles of the Egyptians, and carried “ away the Minister to Whitehall, Prisoner.” (Mr. B.)

ψ. 207, 208. A Sect, whose chief Devotion lies—In odd perverse Antipathies.] The Religion of the Presbyterians of those Times consisted principally in an opposition to the Church of England, and in quarrelling with the most innocent Customs then in use, as the eating Christmas-Pies and Plumb-Porridge at Christmas, which they reputed sinful. *His Head is full of Fears and Fictions,
 His Conscience form'd of Contradictions ;
 Is never therefore long content
 With any Church or Government ;
 But fancies every thing that is,
 For want of mending much amiss.*

They were at that time much of the temper and disposition of those Disciplinarians in Queen Elizabeth's days ; four Classes of whom complained to the Lord Burleigh, (then Lord Treasurer) against the Liturgy then in use : he enquired whether they would have it quite taken away ? They said, No : he ordered them to make a better. The First Classis made one agreeable to the Geneva form ; this the Second disliked, and corrected in six hundred particulars, that had the misfortune to be quarrell'd at by the Third Classis ; and what the Third resolved on, was found fault with by the Fourth. (Fuller's Church History, lib. 9. p. 178. Vindication of Conformity to the Liturgy, 1668, p. 24. Lord Bishop of St Asaph's Answer to Mr. Neale's first vol. of the History of the Puritans, p. 282.) and 'tis observ'd of Queen Elizabeth, (see Salmon's History of Great Britain, p. 13.) that she was often heard to say, that She knew very well what would content the Catholics, but that She never could learn what would content the Puritans.

Y. 213, 214. That with more care keep Holy-day,—The wrong, than others the right way.] They were so remarkably obstinate in this respect, that they kept a Fast upon Christmas-day : (see Mr. Neale's History of the Puritans, vol. 3. p. 168. from Rushworth) and in 1647, they made an ordinance for abolishing that, and other

(see the remarkable behaviour of the Mayor of Canterbury on Christmas-day 1648. Hist. of Independency, part 1. p. 92, 93, and Mr. Ed. Bowles's Letter to Thurloe, State Papers, vol. 6. p. 711.) Sir John Birkenhead, (Paul's Church-yard, cent. 2. class 4. No 99.) puts this query, Whether the Parliament had not cause to forbid Christmas, when they found their publick acts under so many Christmas-pies? The Scots Presbyterians gave more early proof of their Obstinacy in this respect; for when King James the First desired the Magistrates at Edinburgh, to feast the French Ambassadors before their return to France; the Ministers to shew their rebellious Authority, proclaimed a Fast to be kept the same day. (see Bishop Bramhall's Fair Warning, 4^{to} edit. p. 27. Vindication of the Church of England, in Answer to Mr. Pierce's Vindication of the Dissenters, 120, part. 1. p. 136.

All Plumbs the Prophets Sons despise

 Treason's in a December Pye,
 And Death within the Pot:

 Whose Sports we now shall see no more,
 'Tis turn'd into Good Friday. (ib. p. 36.)

Ben Johnson banters this Preciseness, in his Character of Rabby Busy, (Bartholemew Fair, act. 1. sc. 3.) They would at that Time declare a Man incapable of serving in Parliament, for having Bays in his Windows, or a Minc'd-pye at Christmas; (see a Tract intituled, Treason arraign'd; in Answer to another, intituled, Plain English, 1660, p. 20.) and Warner, who was afterwards Lord Mayor, raised a Tumult in Christmas about Rosemary and Bays. (Hist. of Independency, part. 1. p. 83.) E. H. Esq. notwithstanding (see his Petition in the Spectator, No 629.) sets forth, that he was remarkable in the Country, for having dared to treat Sir P. P. a cursed Sequestrator, and three Members of the Assembly of Divines, with Brawn and Minc'd-pyes upon New-year's Day.

y. 232. Like Mahomet's, were Asfs.] By the Asfs is meant the Alborak, a Creature of a mix'd Nature between an Asf and a Mule, which Mahomet said he rode upon in his Night Journey to Heaven, (See his Life prefixed to the Alchoran, by Sieur de Ryer; Turkish Spy, vol. 2. c. 26.) Abul Fæda (de vitâ Mohammedis, c. 18. p. 33.) owns, That it was controverted among the Doctors, whether this Night Journey of Mohammed was real, or only imaginary and in a Dream.

Thus was he gifted and accouter'd,

(see Sales's preliminary Discourse to the Alcoran, sect. 2. p. 51. see more, id. ib. S. 4. p. 116.) It is farther fabled of him, that he had a tame Pigeon that used to pick Seeds out of his Ear, that it might be thought to whisper and inspire him. Scot's Discovery of Witchcraft, book 12. chap. 15. pag. 252. see note by Mr. Warburton, upon Venus's Pigeons, or rather Widgeons. Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice, act. 2. ψ. 235, 236. As if Hypocrisy and Nonsense,—Had got the Advowson of his Conscience.] Dr. Bruno Ryves (Mercurius Rusticus, N^o 16. p. 190.) gives a remarkable Instance of a Fanatical Conscience, in a Captain, who was invited by a Soldier to eat part of a Goose with him; but refused, because he said it was stolen: but being to march away, he who would eat no stolen Goose, made no scruple to ride away upon a stolen Mare; for plundering Mrs. Bartlet of her Mare, this hypocritical Captain gave sufficient testimony to the World, that the Old Pharisee, and New Puritan have Consciences of the self-same temper, “To strain out a Gnat, and swallow a Camel.” (How would such a wretch have fared under the Discipline of Charles XII, King of Sweden, who commanded two brave Soldiers to draw lots for their Lives, and him to be shot, upon whom the Lot fell, for taking some Milk and Curds from a Child; and a Dragoon to be shot upon the spot for ill using his Host, who attempted to prevent his killing some Fowls, Gustavus Adlerfeld's Military History of Charles XII. vol. 2 p. 288, &c.) see the pretended Sanctity of those Hypocrites fully exposed, Continuation of the Friendly Debate, p. 268, &c. Oldham's Satyr against Vertue, 8. 6.

ψ. 241. His tawny Beard, &c.] Mr. Butler, in his description of Hudibras's Beard, seems to have had an eye to Jaques's description of the Country Justice, in Shakespeare's Play, As you like it, act 2. vol. 2. p. 220. It may be asked, Why the Poet is so particular upon the Knight's Beard, and gives it the preference to all his other Accoutrements? The Answer seems to be plain; the Knight had made a Vow

- In Cut and Die so like a Tile,
 A sudden view it wou'd beguile :
 245 The upper part whereof was Whey;
 The nether Orange mix'd with Grey.
 This hairy Meteor did denounce
 The fall of Scepters and of Crowns :
 With grisly Type did represent 250 Declining Age of Government ;
 And tell with Hieroglyphick Spade,
 Its own Grave and the State's were made.
 Like Sampson's Heart-breakers, it grew
 In time to make a Nation rue ;
 255 Tho' it contributed its own Fall, a Vow not to cut it till the Parliament had subdued the King ; hence it became necessary to have it fully described : This Beard, and that of Philip Nye, mentioned by the Knight in his Epistle to his Mistress, might probably be two of the most remarkable Beards of the times. So learned Taliacotius, from holding a Nose in it's hand—He wrote a Treatise in Latin call'd Chirurgia Nota; in which he teaches the art of ingrafting Noses, Ears, Lips, &c. with the proper Instruments and Bandages; this Book has passed through two editions. Many are of opinion, that Taliacotius never put his ingenious contrivances in practice, they imagine that such Operations are too painful and difficult to be attempted, and doubt of the success: however, Taliacotius is not singular in his doctrine, for he shews in lib. 1. cap. 19. that Alexander Benedictus, a famous writer in Surgery, described the operation for lost Noses before him; as does that great Anatomist Vesalius: and Ambr. Pareus mentions a Surgeon that practised this Art with success in several instances: our own Countryman Mr. Charles Barnard (Serjeant Surgeon to Queen Anne) asserts, That it has been practised with wonderful dexterity and success, as may be proved from Authorities not to be contested, whatever Scruples some who have not examined the History, may entertain concerning either the truth or possibility of the fact—so that it is a most surprising thing, that few or none should have since attempted to imitate so worthy and excellent a pattern. Wotton on Ancient and Modern Learning, c. 36. (Dr. H.) see an humorous description of Taliacotius, and his practice, Tatler, No 260.) Dr. Fludd, a Rosicrucian Philosopher, and Physician, mentioned y. 541. has improved upon this Story. (Defence of Weapon-Salve; or the Squeezing of Parson Foster's Sponge, 1635, p. 132.) he informs us (as he pretends from unexceptionable Authority) of a certain Nobleman in Italy, who lost a great part of his Nose in a Duel; he was advised by one of his Physicians to take one of his Slaves, and to make a wound in his Arm, and to join the little remainder of his Nose to the wounded Arm of his Slave, and to continue it there for some time, till the Flesh of the Arm was united to his Nose. The Nobleman prevailed upon one of his Slaves, on the promise of his Freedom and a Reward, to consent to the Experiment; by which the double Flesh was united, and a piece of flesh was cut out of the Slave's Arm, which was so managed by a skilful Surgeon, as to serve for a natural Nose: the Slave being rewarded and set free, went to Naples, where he fell sick and died ; at which instant a Gangrene appeared upon the Nobleman's nose : upon which that part of the Nose which belonged to the dead Man's arm, was by the advice of his Physicians cut off ; and being encouraged by the above-mentioned experiment, he was prevailed upon to have his own Arm wounded in like manner, and to apply it to the remainder of his Nose, which he did ; a new Nose was cut out of it, which continued with him till death. See Sir Kenelm Digby's discourse concerning Powder of Sympathy, 1660. p. 115.

ψ. 285, 286. But when the Date of Nock was out,—Off drop'd the sympathetic Snout.] Nock signifies Notch, or Nick. (Skinner's Etymol. Ling. Anglican.) Sir Roger L'Estrange (Key to the second and third Parts) says, that, “ by Nock is meant Oliver Cromwell,” alluding probably, as he was a Brewer, to Notch the Brewer's Clerk, in Ben Johnson's Masque of Augurs ; see Note canto 2. ψ. 690.

ψ. 289. For as Æneas bore his Sire, &c.] * Æneas was the Son of Anchises and Venus ; a Trojan who, after long Travels, came into Italy, and, after the Death of his Father in law Latinus, was made King of Latium, and reign'd three Years ; his Story is too long to insert here, and therefore I refer you to Virgil's Æneis. Troy being laid in Ashes, he took his aged Father Anchises upon his Back, and rescued him from his Enemies ; but being too solicitous for his Son and Household Gods, he lost his Wife Creusa : which Mr. Dryden in his excellent Translation thus expresseth :

*Haste, my dear Father ('tis no time to wait),
 And load my Shoulders with a willing Freight.
 Whate'er befalls, your Life shall be my Care,
 One Death, or one Deliv'rance, we will share.
 My Hand shall lead our little Son, and you
 My faithful Consort, shall our Steps pursue.]*

We meet with a like instance of filial Piety in Oppius's carrying off his aged Father upon that dreadful proscription of 300 of the Senatorian, and about 2000 of the Equestrian Rank, during the second Triumvirate. (See Echard's Roman History, book 3. c. 3.) Mr. George Sandys (Notes upon the 14th book of Ovid's Metamorphosis, p. 248. edit. 1640.) produces two other instances ; the first in the Piety of those Women, who when Conrade III. besieged Guelfus Duke of Bavaria, in the City of Stensberg, having their Lives granted them upon the Surrender of the City, with as much of their Goods as they could carry about them ; took up their Husbands and Sons on their backs, and by that honest deceit, preserved them from Slaughter ; (see likewise Spectator, N^o 499.) The like liberty being given at the taking of Cales by the Earl of Essex, (who was willing to secure the Honour of the Women) a Spanish Lady neglecting every thing else that was precious, though young and beautiful, bore away her old and decrepit Husband, whom before she had hidden.

ψ. 291, 292. Our Knight did bear no less a Pack,—Of his own Buttocks on his Back :] Thersites in Homer seems to have been in some respects of the same Make.

*His Figure such as might his Soul proclaim,
One Eye was blinking, and one Leg was lame ;
His Mountain Shoulders half his Breast o'erspread ;
Thin Hairs bestrew'd his long mis-shapen Head ;
Spleen to Mankind his envious Heart possess'd,
And much he hated all, but most the best.* Mr. Pope.

He would have been a fashionable subject in Richard the Third's days, who set up half the Backs of the Nation : and high Shoulders as well as high Noses, were the top of the Fashion, Spect. N^o 32.

ψ. 299. As White-pot.] This Dish is more peculiar to the County of Devon, than to any other, and on that account is commonly call'd Devonshire White-pot.

 fondness in those times for Buff; when probably lived that whimfical Fellow, call'd Captain Buff; (see Baynard's History of Cold

This humour is merrily banter'd by Mr. Holdsworth. “ A Man, says Tim, (Dialogue betwixt Timothy and Philatheus, 2^d edit. vol. 1. p. 245.) must be very romantic indeed, to suppose, good natural corporeal men can subsist his house should be turn'd to Gold. Nor quite on so light a Diet, as famous British King of that name, in the sixth Century; who instituted an Order of Knights, call'd the *Knights of the Round Ta-

 To shoot at Foes, and sometimes Pullets ;

That he is generally look'd upon as the first that ever sate down to a whole roasted Ox, (which was certainly the best way to preserve the Gravy) and it is farther added, that he and his Knights sate about it at his Round Table, and usually consumed it to the very bones before they would enter upon any debate of moment. mentioned by Romance Writers. See Amadis de Gaul, and Amadis of Greece; or the Knight of the Burning Sword.

ψ. 379. It was a serviceable Dudgeon.] Curio speaking of the Justice (see Coxcomb, act 5. Beaumont and Fletcher's Works in folio, 1679, part 2. p. 334.) says, "And his Justice be as short as his Memory, a Dudgeon Dagger will serve him to mow down Sin with-
 "all." Bailey says, that Dudgeon Dagger signifies a Small Dagger; and in this sense it is used by our Poet. The great Gun at Guynes in Henry the Sixth's time was called Dygeon. See Higden's Polychronicon by Treviza, lib. ult. cap. 20. fol. 336.

ψ. 382. It would scrape Trenchers.] Hudibras's Dagger puts me in mind of Scrub, Squire Sullen's Servant, (see Farquhar's Beau's Stratagem) who had a new Office and Employment for every day in the Week: "A Monday (says he) I drive the Coach, of a Tuesday I
 "drive the Plow, on Wednesday I follow the Hounds, a Thursday
 "I dun the Tenants, on Friday I go to Market, on Saturday I draw
 "Warrants, and on Sunday I draw Beer."

ψ. 383. Toast Cheese.] Like Corporal Nims's Sword: (Shakespeare's King Henry V. act 2. vol. 4. p. 20.) "I dare not fight, (says he) but "I will wink and hold out mine iron; it is a simple one, but what
 "though? it will toast cheese, and it will endure cold as another
 "man's Sword will, and there's an end."

ψ. 387. It had been 'Prentice to a Brewer, &c.] A banter upon O. Cromwell, (and others) who, though of a good Family, was a Brewer

Two aged Pistols he did stow,
 Among the Surplus of such meat
 As in his Hose he could not get.
 395 These wou'd inveigle Rats with th' Scent,
 To forage when the Cocks were bent;
 And sometimes catch 'em with a Snap,
 As cleverly as the ablest Trap.
 They were upon hard Duty still,
 400 And ev'ry Night stood Centinel,
 To guard the Magazine i'th' Hose
 From two-legg'd and from four-legg'd Foes.
 Thus clad and fortify'd, Sir Knight,
 From peaceful Home set forth to fight.

Brewer at Huntingdon; to which Mr. Butler alludes, in his Poem, intitled, Oliver's Court, see Remains.)

*Who sicker than the City Ruff,
 Can change his Brewer's Coat to Buff,
 His Dray-cart to a Coach, the Beast
 Into two Flanders Mares at least:
 Nay hath the art to murder Kings,
 Like David, only with his Stings.*

He is girded likewise by the Author of a Poem, intitled, Sir John Birkenhead revived, p. 36.

*'Tis Nol's old Brewhouse now I swear:
 The Speaker's but his Skinker,
 Their Member's are like the Council of War, Carmen, Pedlars, Tinkers.*

See two Songs, intitled, The Protecting Brewer, and The Brewer. Coll. of loyal Songs, vol. 1. No 72. 85. reprinted in 1731. And the Writer of a Tract, intitled, A Parly between the Ghosts of the late Protector, and the King of Sweden in Hell, 1660, p. 12. merrily observes, that having form'd a Conspiracy against Beelzebub, "They met in a certain blind Dog-hole, where a poor Fellow sold Cock-Ale for Six-pence a Bottle, and Three Pipes of Gunpowder instead of Tobacco, for Two pence: this Man the Protector had serv'd with Drink, when he was a Brewer." ψ. 407.

405 But first with nimble active Force
 He got on th' Outside of his Horse,
 For having but one Stirrup ty'd
 T' his Saddle, on the further Side,
 It was so short, h' had much ado
 410 To reach it with his desp'rate Toe.
 But after many Strains and Heaves,
 He got up to the Saddle-eaves.
 From whence he vaulted into th' Seat,
 With so much Vigour, Strength, and Heat,
 415 That he had almost tumbled over
 With his own Weight, but did recover,
 By laying hold on Tail and Main;

ψ- 407. For having but one Stirrup ty'd—T' his Saddle, &c.] Julius Cæsar was so excellent a Horseman, in his Youth, “That being mounted on the bare back, without Saddle or Bridle, he could make his Horse run, stop, and turn, and perform all his Airs with his hands behind him.” Montaigne's Essays, b. i. c. 48. p. 426.

ψ. 411, 412, 413. But after many Strains and Heaves—He got up to the Saddle-eaves;—From whence he vaulted into th' Seat.] The Knight was of very low stature, and as his Horse was sturdy, large, and tall (ψ. 423.) and he furnish'd with so many Accoutrements, no wonder he had great difficulty in mounting him: we must not imagine this to be fiction, but true in fact: for the Figure our Hero made on Horseback was so remarkable as to be thus introduced by another celebrated Satyrist and Poet, by way of comparison. “List (says Cleveland) a Diurnal-maker, a Writer, and “you smother Jeffery in Swabber Slobs.” (Jeffery was the Queen's Dwarf. See Abstract of Dr. Bulwer's Artificial Changeling. British Librarian, 1747. No 6. p. 370.) “The very name of Dabbler over-sets him; he is swallow'd up in the Phrase, like Sir Samuel Luke in a great Saddle: nothing to be seen but the giddy Feather in his Crown.” From hence we apprehend the fine Raillery of this preceding part of his Character,

*Great on the Bench, great in the Saddle;
 That cou'd as well bind o'er as swaddle.* (Mr. P.)

ψ. 423. The Beast was sturdy, large, and tall.] In canto 2. ψ. 694. he calls him; —Steed of Bones and Leather.
 And in part 2. canto 3. ψ. 496. Leathern Bare-bones.

Which oft he us'd instead of Rein.

But now, we talk of mounting Steed,

420 Before we further do proceed ;

It doth behove us to say something

Of that which bore our valiant Bumkin.

The Beast was sturdy, large, and tall,

With Mouth of Meal, and Eyes of Wall ;

425 I wou'd say Eye, for h' had but one,

As most agree, tho' some say none.

He was well stay'd, and in his Gate

Preserv'd a grave, majestick State.

At Spur or Switch no more he skipt,

430 Or mended Pace, than Spaniard whipt :

which Description nearly resembles that of Don Quixote's Rosinante, " whose Bones, (Cervantes observes, vol. 1. chap. 1. p. 6.) stuck out " like the Corners of a Spanish Real:" (and yet the Don, vol. 2. p. 263. styles him, The Glory of Horse-flesh) ; or Shakespear's Description of Petruchio's Horse, (see Taming the Shrew, act. 3. vol. 2. p. 316.) and Grandpree's Description of the English Horses before the Battle of Agincourt, (Shakespear's King Henry 5th, act. 4. vol. 4. p. 72.) and is far from coming up to the beauty of Cain's Horse, as described by Dubartas, (Divine Weeks, p. 370.) or the Dauphin's Horse, (Shakespear's Henry 5th, act. 3. vol. 4. p. 56.) or the Strength of Hector's Horse Galathee, Destruction of Troy, 3^d book, chap. 11. Alexander's Bucephalus, or Garagantua's Mare, (Rabelais, vol. 1. book 1. chap. 16.) or those famed Horses of Knights Errant, (Don Quixote, vol. 4. chap. 90. p. 385. See Guardian, N^o 86.)

ψ. 430. Or mended Pace than Spaniard whipt :] Alluding to the Story in the Fable (Sir Roger L'Estrange's Fables, vol. 2. fab. 142. of the Spaniard under the Lash, who made a point of Honour of it, not to mend his pace for the saving his Carcase, and so march'd his stage with as much gravity as if he had been upon a Procession : inſomuch that one of the Spectators advised him to conſider, that the longer he was upon the way, the longer he muſt be under the ſcourge, and the more haſte he made, the ſooner he would be out of his pain. " Noble Sir, (ſays the Spaniard) I kiſs your hand for " your courteſy, but it is below the Spirit of a Man to run like a " Dog ; if ever it ſhould be your fortune to fall under the ſame Diſ- " cipline, you ſhall have my conſent to walk your courſe at what " rate

- And yet so fiery, he wou'd bound,
 As if he griev'd to touch the Ground :
 That Cæsar's Horse, who, as Fame goes,
 Had Corns upon his Feet and Toes,
 435 Was not by half so tender hooft,
 Nor trod upon the Ground so soft.
 And as that Beast would kneel and stoop
 (Some write) to take his Rider up :
 So Hudibras his ('tis well known)
 440 Would often do to set him down.
 We shall not need to say what lack
 Of Leather was upon his Back :
 For that was hidden under Pad,
 And Breech of Knight gall'd full as bad.
 445 His strutting Ribs on both sides show'd
 Like Furrows he himself had plow'd :

“rate you please yourself; but in the mean time with your good favour, I shall make bold to use my own liberty.” (See Don Quixote, part 1. b. 3. c. 9. p. 246.)

ψ. 431, 432. And yet so fiery, he wou'd bound,—As if he griev'd to touch the Ground :] See Description of Don Quixote's Rosinante, (vol. 1. chap. 4. p. 28.)

ψ. 433. That Cæsar's Horse, who, as Fame goes,—Had Corns upon his Feet and Toes.] * Julius Cæsar had a Horse with Feet like a Man's Utebatur equo insigni ; pedibus prope humanis, & in modum digitorum ungulis fissis. Suet. in Jul. c. 61.] *Plin. ψ. 457. A Squire he had, whose Name was Ralph.] Sir Roger L'Estrange (Key to Hudibras) says, this famous Squire, was one Isaac Robinson, a zealous Butcher in Moor-Fields, who was always contriving some new Querpo Cut in Church Government : but in a Key at the end of a Burlesque Poem of Mr. Butler's 1706, in folio, p. 12. 'tis observ'd, “That Hudibras's Squire was one Pemble a Taylor, “and one of the Committee of Sequestrators.” As Mr. Butler borrow'd his Knight's name from Spenser, 'tis probable, he named his Squire

For underneath the Skirt of Pannel,
 'Twixt ev'ry two there was a Channel.
 His draggling Tail hung in the Dirt,
 450 Which on his Rider he wou'd flurt ;
 Still as his tender Side he prickt,
 With arm'd Heel, or with unarm'd, kickt :
 For Hudibras wore but one Spur,
 As wisely knowing, cou'd he stir
 455 To active Trot one Side of's Horse,
 The other wou'd not hang an Arse.

A Squire he had, whose Name was Ralph,
 That in th' Adventure went his half.
 Though Writers, for more stately Tone,
 460 Do call him Ralpho, 'tis all one :
 And when we can with Metre safe,
 We'll call him so ; if not, plain Raph ;

Squire from Ralph the Grocer's Apprentice, in Beaumont and Fletcher's Play, call'd, The Knight of the Burning Pestle. It might be ask'd how it comes to pass, that the Knight makes choice of a Squire of different Principles from his own ; and why the Poet afterwards says,

*Never did trusty Squire with Knight,
 Or Knight with Squire, e'er jump more right :
 Their Arms and Equipage did fit,
 As well as Vertues, Parts and Wit.* y. 625, &c.

when there is so manifest a disagreement in the principal part of their characters? To which it may be answer'd, That the end they propos'd by those Adventures was the same, and tho' they differ'd about Circumstantials, they agreed to unite their Forces against the Establish'd Religion. The Poet by this piece of management, intended to shew the joint concurrence of Sectaries against all Law and Order at that time. Had the Knight and his Squire been in all Occurrences of one Opinion, we should never have had those eloquent Disputes about Synods, Oaths, Conscience, &c. which are some of the chief Beauties in the Poem ; besides, this conduct was necessary to give an agreeable diversity of Character to the principal Hero of it. (Mr. B.)

(For Rhyme the Rudder is of Verses,
With which, like ships, they steer their courses.)

- 465 An equal Stock of Wit and Valour
He had laid in, by Birth a Taylor.
The mighty Tyrian Queen, that gain'd
With subtle Shreds a Tract of Land,
Did leave it with a Castle fair
470 To his great Ancestor, her Heir;
From him descended cross-legg'd Knights,

y. 466. By Birth a Taylor.] The Taylor's Taste was no contemptible one in those times, if what the Author of a Tract, intitled, The Simple Cocker of Agawam in America, 1647, p. 29. be true; who observes, "That there were numbered between Temple-Bar and Charing-Cross Eight Thousand of that Trade." The description of a Taylor, by the Author of A Tale of a Tub, p. 65. is very humorous, and agreeable to this of Mr. Butler. "About this time it happened, that a Sect arose, whose Tenets obtained, and spread far in the Grand Monde; and among every body of good fashion. They worshiped a sort of Idol, who, as their Doctrine delivered, did daily create Men by a kind of manufactory Operation. This Idol they placed on the highest part of the House on an Altar erected about three foot: He was shewn in the posture of a Persian Emperor, sitting on a superficies, with his Legs interwoven under him: this God had a Goose for his Ensign, whence it is that some Men pretend to deduce his original from Jupiter Capitolinus: at his left hand beneath his Altar, Hell seemed to open, and catch at the Animals the Idol was creating. To prevent which, certain of his Priests hourly flung in pieces of the unformed Mass or Substance, and sometimes whole Limbs already enlivened; which that horrid Gulph insatiably swallow'd, terrible to behold. The Goose was also held a Subaltern Divinity, or Deus minorum gentium, before whose Shrine was sacrificed that Creature, whose hourly food is Human Gore, and who is in so great repute abroad, by being the delight and favourite of the Egyptian Cercopithecus. Millions of these animals were slaughter'd every day to appease the hunger of that consuming Deity: The chief Idol was worshiped also as the Inventor of the Yard and Needle: whether as the God of Seamen or on account of certain other Mystical Attributes, hath not been sufficiently clear."

y. 467, 468. The mighty Tyrian Queen who gain'd,—With subtle Shreds, a Tract of Land, &c.] The passage referr'd to in Virgil, is thus translated by Mr. Cotton (Virgil Travestie, book i. p. 31.)

Fam'd for their Faith, and warlike Fights
 Against the bloody Canibal,
 Whom they destroy'd both great and small.
 475 This sturdy Squire, he had, as well
 As the bold Trojan Knight, seen Hell,
 Not with a counterfeited Pass
 Of Golden Bough, but true Gold-Lace.
 His Knowledge was not far behind
 480 The Knight's, but of another kind,

*At last she came, with all her People,
 To yonder Town with the Spire Steeple;
 And bought as much good feeding ground for Five Marks, as some would give five Pound for;
 Where now she lives, a House-wife wary,
 Has her Ground stock'd, and keeps a Dairy.*

Thebes was built in the same manner, according to Lidgate. See History of Thebes, Chaucer's Works, folio 354. And Thong-Castor in Lincolnshire by Hengist the Dane. See Jeffery of Monmouth's British History, book 6. chap. 11. p. 185. Robert of Gloucester's Chronicle by Mr. Hearne, p. 115.

ψ. 471. From him descended cross legg'd Knights,] The Knights Templars had the Effigies laid on their Tombs, with their Legs across. See Note upon part 3. canto 3. ψ. 761. He alludes to the Taylor's posture in sitting,

ψ. 472. Fam'd for their Faith,] Obligated to trust much in their way of trade. (Mr. W.)

ψ. 476, 477, 478. As the bold Trojan Knight, seen Hell,—Not with a counterfeited Pass—Of Golden Bough, &c.] He alludes to Aeneas's consulting the Sibyl, concerning the method he should take to see his beloved Father Anchises, in the Shades below; who has the following answer: Aeneid 6.

*Receive my Counsel. In this neighbour Grove
 There stands a Tree, the Queen of Stygian Jove
 Claims it her own: thick Wood and gloomy Night
 Conceal the happy Plant from Human sight.
 One Bough it bears, but, wond'rous to behold,
 The ductile Rind, and Leaves of radiant Gold;
 This from the vulgar Branches must be torn.*

And to Fair Proserpine, the Present born. Mr. Dryden.

Taylor's call that place Hell, where they put all they steal.

And he another way came by't :
 Some call it Gifts, and some New-light,
 A liberal Art, that costs no Pains
 Of Study, Industry, or Brains.
 485 His Wit was sent him for a Token,
 But in the Carriage crackt and broken.
 Like Commendation Nine-pence crookt
 With—To and from my Love—it lookt.
 He ne'er consider'd it, as loth
 490 To look a Gift-horse in the Mouth :
 And very wisely wou'd lay forth
 No more upon it than 'twas worth.
 But as he got it freely, so
 He spent it frank and freely too.

ψ. 481. And he another way came by't, &c.] The Independents and Anabaptists (of which Sect Ralph probably was) pretended to great Gifts as they call'd them, by inspiration : and their Preachers, tho' they could scarce read, were call'd Gifted Brethren.

ψ. 485. His Wits were sent him.] In all editions, to 1704 inclusive.

ψ. 487, 488. Like Commendation Nine-pence crookt—With—To and from my Love—it look't.] Until the year 1696, when all Money not mill'd, was call'd in, a Nine-penny piece of Silver was as common as Six-pences or Shillings, and these Nine-pences were usually bent as Six-pences commonly are now, which bending was call'd, To my Love, and from my Love, and such Nine-pences the ordinary Fellows gave or sent to their Sweethearts, as Tokens of Love. (Dr. B.) The Shilling (see Tatler's Dream, N^o 240.) in the account of it's Rambles, says ; “ My Officer (a Recruiting Serjeant in the Rebel“ lion) chancing one Morning to walk abroad earlier than ordinary, “ sacrificed me to his Pleasures, and made use of me to seduce a Milk-“ maid ; the Wench bent me, and gave me to her Sweetheart, ap“ plying, more properly than she intended, the usual form of, To my “ Love, and from my Love.” (See Rosalin's Compliment, Shakespear's Love's Labour lost, act 1. vol. 2. p. 110.)

ψ. 495. For Saints themselves, &c.] The Author of a Tract, intitled, Sir John Birkenhead reviv'd, p. 29. girds those pretended Saints in the following manner :

If

495 For Saints themselves will sometimes be,
 Of Gifts that cost them nothing, free.
 By Means of this, with Hem and Cough, Prolongers to enlighten'd Snuff,
 He cou'd deep Mysteries unriddle,
 500 As easily as thread a Needle.
 For as of Vagabonds we say,
 That they are ne'er beside their way;
 Whate'er Men speak by this New Light,
 Still they are sure to be i'th'right.
 505 'Tis a Dark-Lanthorn of the Spirit,
 Which none see by but those that bear it;
 A Light that falls down from on high,
 For spiritual Trades to cozen by:

*If these be Saints, it's vain indeed
 To think there's Good or Evil;
 The World will soon be of this Creed,
 No God, no King, no Devil.
 Of all those Monsters which we read
 In Africa, Inde, or Nile;
 None like to those, now lately bred
 Within this wretched Isle.
 The Cannibal, the Tigre fell,
 Crocodile and Sycophant,
 The Turk, the Jew and Infidel
 Make up an English Saint.*

¶ 507, 508. A Light that falls down from on high,—For spiritual Trades to cozen by:] Mercers, Silkmen, Drapers, &c. have a peculiar Light which comes from the top of their Shops, by which they shew their Goods to advantage (call'd I think, a Sky-light) to this he probably alludes; designing, at the same time, to sneer such a Preacher, as Dr. Echard makes mention of, (Contempt of the Clergy, p. 49.) who preaching about the Sacrament, and Faith, tells his Hearers, "That Christ is a Treasury of all Wares and Commodities; and therefore opening his wide throat, cries aloud: Good People, what do you lack, what do you buy? Will you buy any Balm of Gilead, and Eye-salve; any Myrrhe, Aloes, or Cassia? Shall I

An Ignis Fatuus, that bewitches,
 510 And leads Men into Pools and Ditches,
 To make them dip themselves, and found
 For Christendom, in dirty Pond;
 To dive like Wild-fowl, for Salvation,
 And fish to catch Regeneration.

“fit you with a Robe of Righteousness, or with a white Garment? See “here! what is it you want? Here’s a very choice Armory: Shall I “shew you an Helmet of Salvation, a Shield, or Breast-plate of Faith?
 “Will you please to walk in, and see some precious Stones, a Jasper, a “Sapbyre, a Chalcedony? Speak, what do you buy? Now for my part “says Dr. Echard) I must needs say, and I much fancy I speak the “mind of thousands; that it had been much better for such an im“prudent and ridiculous Bawler as this was, to have been con“demn’d to have cried Oysters and Brooms, than to discredit at this “unfancified rate his Profession, and our Religion.”

§. 509. An Ignis Fatuus,—] A Jack o’ Lantern, or Will with the Wisp. This appears chiefly in Summer nights in Church-yards, Meadows, and Bogs; and is thought to be a viscid substance, or fat exhalation kindled in the air to a thin flame, without any sensible heat, often causing people to wander out of the way. See accounts of the Meteor, call’d The Ignis Fatuus, from Observations made in England by Mr. William Derham, Fellow of the Royal Society, and others in Italy, communicated by Sir Thomas Derham, Baronet, F. R. S. which differ from that of Mr. Francis Willoughby, and Mr. Ray; who took these Ignes Fatui, to be the shining of a great number of the Male Glowworms in England, or the Pyraustæ in Italy, flying together. Philosophical Transactions, vol. 36. N^o 411. p. 204, &c.

§. 511. To make them dip themselves, &c.] Alluding to Ralpho’s Religion, who was probably an Anabaptist or Dipper; the different ways of administering Baptism, by the Sectaries of those times, is exposed in a Satyr against Hypocrites, p. 9.

Men say, there was a sacred Wisdom then,
 That ruled the strange opinions of these Men;
 For by much washing Child got cold i’ th’ head,
 Which was the cause so many Saints snuffed,
 On, cry’d another Sect, let’s wash all o’er,
 The Parts behind, and eke the Parts before—

ŷ. 515. — and plays upon the Nose of Saints, &c.] They then affected to speak through the nose.

ŷ. 517, 518. And speaks through hollow empty Soul,—As through a Trunk, or whisp'ring Hole,] Alluding probably to the mistaken notion, that the Oracles at Delphos and other places were delivered in that manner. (See a confutation of that opinion, Baltus's Answer to Fontenelle's History of Oracles, translated by Mr. Bedford, p. 119. 127.) or to the Brazen Head in Don Quixote, (vol. 4. chap. 62. p. 628.) where the person who gave answers, did it through a Pipe, from the chamber below, and by the hollowness of the Trunk, received their questions, and delivered his answers in clear articulate words; or the Brazen Head in the History of Valentine and Orson, chap. 18, 19.

ŷ. 520. But spirit'al Eaves-droppers can hear,] They are tax'd as encouragers of such, by the Writer of A Letter sent to London from

So Phæbus, or some friendly Muse,
 Into small Poets Song infuse :
 Which they at second hand rehearse
 Thro' Reed or Bag-pipe, Verse for Verse.

525 Thus Ralph became infallible,
 As three or four-legg'd Oracle, a Spy at Oxford, to Mr. Pym, Mr. Martyn, &c. 1643. p. 14. "It is a rare piece of wisdom (says he) in you, to allow Eves-droppers, and promoting Knaves, to be as Mouse-traps to catch words, undo all such as wish well to the King, and hang as many as dare to drink Prince Robert's (Rupert's) health." Eves-droppers are criminal in the eye of the Law, and punishable in the Court Leet by Fine, by Stat. of Westminster, c. 33. See Mr. Jacob's Law Dictionary.

ψ. 521. So Phæbus, &c.] There is a near relation between Poetry and Enthusiasm; somebody said well, that a Poet is an Enthusiast in jest, and an Enthusiast a Poet in good earnest: it is remarkable that Poetry made Milton an Enthusiast, and Enthusiasm made Norris a Poet. (Mr. W.)

ψ. 525, 526, 527.  As well as they themselves do Words :

¶ 545. In Rosy-crucian Lore as learned,] The Author of a Tale of a Tub, makes the following observation upon the Rosicrucians, (p. 191.) “ Night being the universal Mother of Things, wise Philosophers hold all Writings to be fruitful in the proportion they are “ dark, and therefore the true Illuminated, (a name of the Rosicrucians) that is to say, The darkest of all, have met with such numberless Commentators, whose Scholastic Midwifry hath delivered “ them of Meanings, that the Authors themselves perhaps never “ conceived, and yet may be very justly allowed the lawful Parents “ of them. The Words of such Writers being just like Seeds, however scatter’d at random, when they light upon such fruitful “ Ground, will multiply far beyond either the hopes, or the imagination of the Sower.” As Alchymists, or Pretenders to the Grand Secret of Transmutation of Metals, Lemery (Preface to his book of Chymistry) gives the following Definition of their Art : Ars sine arte, cujus Principium mentiri, Medium laborare, & Finis mendicare. An Art without an Art, whose Beginning is Lying, and whose Middle is nothing but Labour, and whose End is Beggary. And as such they are banter’d by the Author of the Guardian, N^o 166, and Sir Roger L’Estrange, in the Fable of the Alchymist (part 2. Fab. 13.) “ A Chymical Pretender (says he) who had written a discourse plausible enough on the Transmutation of Metals, and turning Brass “ and Silver into Gold, thought he could not place such a Curiosity “ better than in the hands of Leo the Tenth, and so he made His “ Holiness a Present of it. The Pope received it with great Humanity, and with this Compliment over and above ; Sir, (says he) “ I should have given you my Acknowledgments in your own Metal, but Gold upon Gold would have been false Heraldry ; so that “ I shall rather make you a return of a dozen empty Purses to put “ your Treasure in : for though you can make Gold, I don’t find “ that you can make Purses.” (See Ben Johnson’s Masque of the Fortunate Isles, vol. 1. p. 132. edit. 1640. Alchymist, act 2. sc. 3. vol. 2. p. 545. *J. ŷ. 547. He understood the Speech of Birds] Dr. Shuckford observes, (Connection, vol. 1. b. 2. p. 107. 2^d edit.) " That the Author of the " latter Targum upon Esther, reports, that Solomon understood the " Language of Birds, and sent a Bird of a Message to the Queen of " Sheba; and Mahomet was silly enough to believe it; for we have " the same Story in his Alchoran." That this opinion was ancient, appears from the following account, Inveterata fuit Gentilium opinio, inter se colloqui Bruta, & eorum sermones a multis intelligi: unde Ars Orwixn, vel interpretandi Voces Animalium; in quâ excelluisse dicuntur apud Veteres, Melampus, Tiresias, Thales Milesius, Apollonius Thyaneus. " A certain experienced Boatman made thither presently, took up " the Bird, and restored it to the King to whom he knew it belong- " ed, hoping for as great a Reward as the Bird had promised. The " King agreed that he should have as the Bird anew should say; " and the Bird answers, Give the Knave a Groat."

 " becomes Flesh; 9 is in a fescuple proportion to 6; in Twelve
 " days more the Embryo is form'd; 12 is double to 6: Here then " are these Stages, 6, 8, 9, 12; 6 is the first perfect number, because " it is the sum of 1, 2, 3, the only numbers by which it can be di" vided: now if we add these four numbers 6, 8, 9, 12, together,
 " the sum is 35, which multiplied by 6, makes 210, the number " of days from the Conception to the Birth; which is just Seven " months allowing 30 days to a month. A like proportion must be " observed in the larger period of Nine months; only 10, the sum
 " of 1, 2, 3, 4, added together, must be added to 35, which makes " 45; that multiplied by 6, gives 270, or nine times 30, the num" ber of days in larger births."

ψ. 605. Cast the Nati-vity o' th' Question,] Mr. Smith of Harleston, is of opinion, that when any one came to an Astrologer to have his Child's Nati-vity cast, and had forgot the Hour and Minute when it was born, which were necessary to be known, in order to the erecting a Scheme for the purpose; the Figure-caster looking upon the Enquirer as wholly influenced, entirely guided by the Stars in the affair, took the position of the Heavens the minute the question was ask'd, and form'd his Judgment accordingly of the Child's future
 Fortune; just as if the Child had been born the very same moment that the Question was put to the Conjurer.

This Ralpho knew, and therefore took
The other Course, of which we spoke.

Thus was th' accomplish'd Squire endu'd
With Gifts and Knowledge, per'lous shrewd,
625 Never did trusty Squire with Knight,
Or Knight with Squire e'er jump more right,
Their Arms and Equipage did fit,
As well as Vertues, Parts, and Wit :
Their Valours too were of a rate,
630 And out they sally'd at the Gate :
Few Miles on Horseback had they jogged,
But Fortune unto them turn'd dogged ;
For they a sad Adventure met, can the Stars. What makes the obscurity, is the using the word dispose in two senses ; to signify influence, where it relates to the Stars ; and [deceive] where it relates to the Astrologers. (Mr. W.)

ψ. 622. The other Course—] i. e. Religious Impostures ; by which the Author finely insinuates, that even Wise men at that time were deceived by those Pretences.

This Ralpho knew, and therefore took — (Mr. W.)

ψ. 625, 626. Never did trusty Squire with Knight—Or Knight with Squire, &c.—] 'Twas Cervantes's observation upon Don Quixote, and Sancho Pancha ; (vol. 3. chap. 2. p. 18.) “ That one would “ think that They had been cast in the same Mold.”

ψ. 637, 638. We should, as learned Poets use,—Invoke th' Assistance of some Muse.] The Poet cannot permit the usual Exordium of an Epic Poem to pass by him unimitated, though he immediately ridicules the Custom. The Invocation he uses is very satyrical, and reaches abundance of Writers ; and his compliance with the Custom, was owing to a strong propensity he found in himself to ridicule it. (Mr. B.) See Invocation of the Muses, Byshe Art of Poetry, 7th edit. p. 70, &c. and a Sneer upon this Custom, Mr. S. Wesley's Poems, 2^d edit. p. 157. See original of Exordiums. ψ. 641. We think, &c.] It should be They think, i. e. the Criticks, for the Author in ψ. 645. one that fits our purpose most, declares the Muses are not all alike. (Mr. W.)

ψ. 645.

Of which anon we mean to treat ;

635 But ere we venture to unfold
 Atchievements so resolv'd and bold,
 We shou'd, as learned Poets use,
 Invoke th' Assistance of some Muse :
 However Criticks count it sillier
 640 Than Jugglers talking to Familiar :
 We think 'tis no great matter which,
 They're all alike, yet we shall pitch
 On one that fits our purpose most,
 Whom therefore thus do we accost.

These Gentlemen might in Mr. Shakespeare's Style, (see his Play intituled, Much ado about Nothing, vol. 1. p. 478.) be born under a Rhyming Planet, and yet the Mill of the Dutch Mechanic (Spectator, N^o 220.) for making Verses, might have served their purpose full as well. They certainly fall under the Censure of Cervantes, (see Preface to the fourth volume of Don Quixote.)

Ib.—Pryn.] Anthony Wood gives the following account of Mr. Pryn's elegant Apparatus for the sollicitation of the Muses.—
 “ His custom was, when he studied, to put on a long quilted Cap,
 “ which came an inch over his Eyes—seldom eating any dinner,
 “ would every three hours or more be manching a roll of Bread ;
 “ and now and then refresh his exhausted Spirits with Ale brought “ him by his servant.” Athen. Oxon. vol. 2. col. 315. (Mr. W.)
 Mr. Cowley, in his Miscellanies (see Dunciad Varior. 1729, Note on verse 101. book 1.) speaks of him as follows :

——— One lately did not fear
 Without the Muses leave to plant Verse here,
 But it produc'd such base, rough, crabbed, hedge-
 Rhymes, as e'en set the Hearers ears on edge :
 Written by William Pryn Esqui-re the Year of our Lord Six hundred thirty three.

And force them, tho' it was in spite
 Of Nature, and their Stars, to write ;

 Call'd to this day the Homer of the Isle.*

Another Poet speaks of Withers and Pryn in the following Manner,

*When each notch'd Prentice might a Poet prove,
 Warbling thro' the Nose a Hymn of Love ;
 When sage Geo ge Withers, and grave William Pryn, Himself might for a Poet's share put in.*

ψ. 649. — sullen Writs,] For Satyrical Writings, well expressed, as implying, That such Writers as Withers, Pryn, and Vicars. had no more than Ill-nature towards making a *Satyr*ist, (Mr. W.)

 But Judgment knows to use them in their kinds.

 Yet dare I not put on a Poet's Name ;
 And I dare write with Thee at any time,
 For what thou dar'st, in either Prose or Rime :
 For thou of Poesie art the very scum,
 Of riff-raff rubbish Wit the total sum ;

 To those that dwell therein well known,
 Therefore there needs no more be said here,
 We unto them refer our Reader :
 For Brevity is very good,
 670 When w'are, or are not understood.
 To this Town People did repair
 On Days of Market, or of Fair ;
 And to crack'd Fiddle, and hoarse Tabor,
 In Merriment did drudge and labour :
 675 But now a Sport more formidable
 Had rak'd together Village Rabble :
 'Twas an old Way of recreating,
 Which learned Butchers call Bear-baiting,

*And tho' you overcame the Bear,
 The Dogs beat you at Brentford Fair ;
 Where sturdy Butchers broke your Noddle.*

ψ. 678. Which learned Butchers call Bear-baiting.] This Game is usher'd into the Poem with more solemnity than those celebrated ones in Homer and Virgil. As the Poem is only adorn'd with this Game, and the Riding Skimmington, so it was incumbent on the Poet to be very particular and full in the Description : and may we not venture

 As he believ'd he was bound to do
 In Conscience and Commission too.

And massacred your Bears.*

The Rump ululant, Collect. of Loyal Songs, vol. 2. p. 247. There was an Ordinance of Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament for suppressing of public Play-houses, dancing on the Ropes, and Bear-baiting, die Sabbati 17 Julii 1647, and ’twas an article in their instructions to the Major-Generals afterwards in the year 1655, amongst other unlawful Sports (as they call’d them) to suppress Bear-baitings, Mercurius Politicus, N^o 289. p. 5852. That probably might be deem’d a malignant Bear, which was forced upon old Mr. Jones, Vicar

For what Design, what Interest

 They fight for no espoused Cause,

 Nor for a thorough Reformation,
 Nor Covenant, nor Protestation,

Vicar of Wellingborough in Northamptonshire, by Lieutenant Grimes a desperate Brownist: “ which running between his legs took him “ upon her back, and laying aside the untractableness of her nature “ grew patient of her burthen: but when the Rebels dismounted
 “ him, and one of their Ringleaders bestrid the Bear, she dismount“ ed her Rider; and, as if she had been robb’d of her Whelps, did “ so mangle, rend and tear him with her teeth and paws, that the “ presumptuous wretch died of his wounds soon after.” Mercurius Rusticus, N^o 9. p. 94.

* ψ. 758. Or force, we averruncate.] Another of the same kind, which, though it appear ever so learned and profound, means nothing else but the weeding of Corn.

ψ. 761. They fight for no espoused Cause.] Alluding to the clamours of the Rebels, who falsely pretended, that their Liberty, Property, and Privileges were in danger. For this they are justly banter’d by a *Satyr*ist of those times, (Sir J. Birkenhead reviv’d, p. 7.)

For Liberty and Privilege,
 Religion and the King,
 We fought, but oh, the Golden Wedge
 That is the only thing:
 There lies the Cream of all the Cause:
 Religion is but Whig,
 Pure Privilege eats up the Laws,
 And cries, for King—a fig.

See their Clamours admirably well banter’d in Mr. Cleveland’s Character of a London Diurnal, Works, 1677. p. 111, 112.

ψ. 762. Frail Privilege.—] Mr. Warburton is of opinion that FRAILD Privilege, that is broken, violated, would have been better, since it alludes to the impeachment of the Five Members, which was then thought to be the highest Breach of Privilege; and was one of the most professed Causes for taking arms.

ψ. 764.—nor Protestation.] This Protestation, with the design and consequences of it, may be seen in Lord Clarendon’s Hist. of the Rebellion, vol. 1. p. 198. and Mr. Echard Hist. of England, vol. 2. p. 232.) observes, “ That there was one Clause that was look’d on “ as

765 Nor Liberty of Consciences,
 Nor Lords and Commons Ordinances;
 Nor for the Church, nor for Church-Lands,
 To get them in their own no hands;
 Nor evil Counsellors to bring

“ as a Preservative against any Alteration against Church Govern“ ment : but to undeceive all persons as to that Clause ; the Com“ mons made such an Explanation, to shew that the Bishops and the “ Church were to receive no real Benefit by it.” Mr. Allen Blaney, Curate of Newington, Surrey, was summon’d before the Parliament for preaching against the Protestation. Nelson’s Collections, vol. 2.
 p. 288.

§. 765. Nor for free Liberty of Conscience,] Thus the two first Editions read : the word Free was left out in 1674, and all the subsequent Editions ; and Mr. Warburton thinks for the worse. Free Liberty being a most beautiful, and satirical Periphrasis, for Licenti- ousness, which is the Idea the Author here intended to give us.

§. 766. Lords and Commons Ordinances.] The King being driven from the Parliament, no Legal Acts of Parliament could be made :
 therefore, when the Lords and Commons had agreed upon any Bill, they published it, and required Obedience to it, under the Title of,
An Ordinance of Lords and Commons. And sometimes, An Ordinance of Parliament. (Dr. B.) See these Ordinances proved illegal, by the Members of the University of Oxford, in a Tract, intitled : Reasons of the present Judgment of the University of Oxford concerning the Solemn League and Covenant, &c. publish’d in the year 1646, p. 46.
 Mr. Cleveland speaking of these Ordinances (Character of a London Diurnal) merrily observes, “ That an Ordinance is a Law still-born ; “ dropp’d before quicken’d with the Royal Assent. ’Tis one of the “ Parliament’s By Blows, (Acts only being Legitimate) and hath no
 “ more Sire, than a Spanish Jennet that is begotten by the Wind.”
 See Walker’s Hist. of Independency, part 1. p. 15. edit. 1661.

§. 767, 768. Nor for the Church, nor for Church-Lands,—To get them into their own hands.] The way of sequestering, and invading Church-Livings by a Committee for that purpose, is well known.
 It was so notoriously unjust and tyrannical, that even Lilly the Sidrophele of this Poem, could not forbear giving the following remarkable Instance. “ About this time (1646) says he, the most fa“ mous Mathematician of all Europe, Mr. William Oughtred, Parson
 “ of Aldbury in Surrey, was in danger of Sequestration by the Com“ mittee of, or for, Plunder’d Ministers ; (Ambodexters they were) “ several considerable Articles were deposed, and sworn against “ him, material enough to have sequestered him ; but that upon his

 " my own Friends, who in such numbers appear'd in his behalf,
 " that though the Chairman, and many other Presbyterian Mem" bers were stiff against him; yet he was clear'd by the major num" ber. The Truth is, he had a considerable Parsonage, and that on" ly was enough to sequester any moderate Judgment. He was also " well known to affect His Majesty. In these times many worthy " Ministers lost their Livings or Benefices for not complying with " the Three-penny Directory. Had you seen (O Noble Squire) what " pitiful Idiots were prefer'd into sequester'd Church Benefices, you " would have been griev'd in your soul; but when they came be" fore the Classis of Divines, could these Simpletons only say, They " were converted by hearing such a Sermon, such a Lecture of that " godly man Hugh Peters, Stephen Marshal, or any of that Gang, he " was presently admitted." Lilly's Life, p. 58, 59. (Mr. B.) They questration upon Sir William Hunks's Estate after his death; though he never was questioned for Delinquency during his life. History of Independency, part 1. p. 128.

y. 769, 770. Nor evil Counsellors—to justice, &c.] Alluding to the unreasonable Clamours of the Members at Westminster, against the King's Friends, whom they stiled Evil Counsellors, and order'd a Committee, October 1641, to prepare Heads for a Petition to the King against them, (Nelson's Collections, vol. 2. p. 510.) which Persons they mark'd out as Delinquents, with a request previous to the Treaty of Newport in the Isle of Wight, to have them excepted from Pardon. And these were such as were unwilling to give up the Constitution. (See their Names, Impartial Examination of Mr. Neal's third Volume of the History of the Puritans, p. 333, 334, 335.)

y. 773. Th' Ægyptians worship'd Dogs.] Anubis, one of their Gods, was figur'd with a Dog's Face. (See Montfaucon's Antiquity explain'd, vol. 2. part 2. b. 1. p. 197.) The Worship of the Egypti- ans is expos'd by Juvenal, Sat. 15. lin. 1, &c.

Others to Ibis, that on Serpents preys.

And where maim'd Memnon's magic Harp is heard;
Where these are mould'ring, let the Sots combine

Her Dogs have Temples, but the Goddess none.
'Tis mortal Sin an Onion to devour,
Each Clove of Garlick is a sacred pow'r.
Religious Nations sure, and bless'd abodes,
Where ev'ry Orchard is o'er-run with Gods!
To kill is Murder, Sacrilege to eat
A Kid or Lamb, Man's Flesh is lawful meat.

Mr. Dryden.

The Egyptians likewise worship'd Cats, see an instance of their extreme Severity in punishing a noble Roman with Death, who kill'd a Cat by mistake: notwithstanding the Egyptian Nobility interposed in his behalf. See an account of Egyptian Deities, from Athenæus, in Dr. Lightfoot's Miscellanies, chap. 55. Works, vol. 1. p. 1027. Mr. Purchase gives from Saint Jerome, and Ortelius, one remarkable instance. Crepitus Ventrîs inflati, Pelusiata religio est. (Pilgrims, vol. 5. book 6. chap. 4. p. 641.)

ψ. 775. Others ador'd a Rat—] the Ichneumon, the Water-Rat of the Nile. Diodorus Siculus mentions this, (Rer. Antiquar. lib. 2. chap. 4. p. 36. Vid. Voss. de Idololatriâ, lib. 3. p. 1131, 1132.) The Ichneumon was a great enemy to the Asp and Crocodile, (vid. Diodori Siculi, id. ib. p. 37.) Plinii Nat. Hist. lib. 4. cap. 34, 35.) The manner of destroying them is described by Dubartas, (Divine Weeks, p. 200.) in the following manner.

Thou mak'st the Ichneumon, whom the Memphis adore,
To rid of Poison's Nile's manured Shore:
Altho' indeed he doth not conquer them,
So much by Strength, as subtile Stratagem. —
So Pharaoh's Rat ere he begins the fray
'Gainst the blind Aspick, with a cleaving Clay
Upon his Coat he wraps an earthen Cake,
Which afterwards the Sun's hot beams do bake:
Arm'd with this Plaister, th' Aspick he approacheth;
And in his Throat his crooked Teeth he broacheth;

The Indians fought for the Truth
Of th' Elephant and Monkey's Tooth ;

*While the other bootless strives to pierce and prick
Through the hard temper of his Armour thick.
Yet knowing himself too weak with all his wile
Alone to match the scaly Crocodile,
He with the Wren his ruin doth conspire ;
The Wren, who seeing him press'd with Sleep's desire,
Nile's Pois'ny Pyrate, press the slimy shore,
Suddenly comes, and hopping him before,
Into his Mouth he skips, his Teeth he pickles,
Cleanseth his Palate, and his Throat so tickles,
That charm'd with Pleasure, the dull Serpent gapes
Wider and wider with his ugly Chaps :
Then like a shaft the Ichneumon instantly
Into the Tyrant's greedy Gorge doth fly,
And feeds upon that Glutton, for whose Riot,
All Nile's fat Margent could scarce furnish Diet.*

And Mr. Rollin (Ancient Hist. of the Egyptians, &c. 2^d edit. vol. 1. p. 42) observes, that he is so great an enemy to the Crocodile, that he destroys his Eggs, but does not eat them. And many, to defend that Faith,

 But no Beast ever was so flight,
 For Man, as for his God, to fight.

 Themselves and us better than so.

 The Rage in them like Boute-feus;
 'Tis our Example that instils
 In them th' Infection of our Ills.
 For, as some late Philosophers

 With Man, take after him, as Hogs

*Slave, I have set my Life upon a Cast,
 And I will stand the Hazard of the Dye.*

ψ. 786.—like Boute-feus. * Boute-feus is a French word, and therefore it were uncivil to suppose any English Person (especially of Quality) ignorant of it, or so ill-bred as to need any Exposition.

ψ. 795, 796, 767. We read in Nero's time, the Heathen,—When they destroy'd the Christian Brethren.—They sew'd them in the Skins of Bears, &c.] This is confirm'd by Tacitus, (Annal. lib. 15. p. 168. Lugd. Batav. 1589.) Et pereuntibus addita ludibria, ut Ferarum tergis contexti, laniatu Canum interirent. When they destroy'd the Christian Bretbren,

They'd sew'd them in the Skins of Bears,

And then set Dogs about their ears :

From whence, no doubt, th' Invention came,

800 Of this lewd antichristian Game.

To this, quoth Ralpho, verily

The Point seems very plain to me :

It is an antichristian Game,

Unlawful both in Thing and Name.

“ subject to Six years Excommunication, who carry about Bears, or “ such like Creatures for Sport, to the hurt of simple People.” Our Knight was not the only stickler in those times against Bear-baiting.
 Colonel Pride a Foundling and Drayman, was likewise a Hero in these kind of Exploits ; as we learn from a Ballad upon him ; which having describ'd his zeal against Cock-fighting, goes on thus :

But flush'd with these Spoils, the next of his Toils

Was to fall with wild-beasts by the ears ;

To the Bearward he goeth, and then open'd his Mouth,

And said, Oh ! are you there with your Bears ?

The Crime of the Bears was, they were Cavaliers,

And had formerly fought for the King ;

And had pull'd by the Burrs the Round-headed Curs,

That they made their Ears to ring.

(Collection of Loyal Songs, reprinted 1731. vol. 1. p. 184.) Indeed the Rebels seem'd enemies to all kinds of public Diversions, if we may believe a merry Cavalier, who triumphs at the approach of a free Parliament, in the following words.

A Hound and a Hawk no longer

Shall be tokens of Disaffection :

A Cock-fight shall cease

To be Breach of the Peace ;

And a Horse-race an Insurrection.

- 805 First for the Name, the Word Bear-baiting
 Is carnal, and of Man's creating :
 For certainly there's no such Word
 In all the Scripture on Record :
 Therefore unlawful, and a Sin ;
- 810 And so is (secondly) the Thing,
 A vile Assembly 'tis, that can
 No more be prov'd by Scripture, than Provincial, Classick, National,
 Mere human Creature-Cobwebs all.

¶. 806. Carnal, and of Man's creating.] This is a Banter upon the Members of the Assembly of Divines, who in their Note upon Genesis, chap. 1. ver. 1. libel the King for Creating of Honours. (See Mr. Butler's Remains, p. 226.)

¶. 807, 808. For certainly there's no such Word—In all the Scripture on record.] “ The Disciplinarians held, That the Scripture of “ God is in such sort the rule of human Actions, that simply, “ whatever we do, and are not by it directed thereto, the same is “ Sin. Hooker's Ecclesiastical Policy, book 2. §. 2. Of this stamp were the French Huguenots mentioned by Montlue, who were so nicely scrupulous, that they made a conscience of paying their Landlords their Rents, unless they could shew a Text for it. (L'Estrange's Fables, part 2. fab. 26.) In a Tract printed in those times, intitled, Accommodation discommended, as incommodious to the Commonwealth;
 p. 3. are the following words. “ First, Accommodation is not the lan“ guage of Canaan, and therefore it cannot conduce to the peace of “ Jerusalem. 2. It is no Scripture word: now to vilify the Ordi- “ nances which are in Scripture, and to set up Accommodation, which “ is not in Scripture ; no not so much as in the Apocrypha, is to re“ linquish the Word, and follow the Inventions of Man, which is “ plain Popery.” Mr. Cowley, in his Tract, intitled, A Puritan and Papist, published in the times, (and reprinted 1681-2. p. 6.) exposes them, for their folly in this respect :

What mighty Sums have they squeez'd out o' th' City,
Enough to make them poor, and something witty ;
Excise, Loan, Contributions, Pole-Monies,
Bribes, Plunder, and such Parliament Privilege ;
Are words which you ne'er learn'd in Holy-Writ,
Till the Spirit of your Synod mended it.

815 Thirdly, It is idolatrous;
 For when Men run a whoring thus
 With their inventions, whatsoe'er
 The Thing be, whether Dog or Bear,
 It is Idolatrous and Pagan,

820 No less than worshiping of Dagon.

Quoth Hudibras, I smell a Rat;
Ralpho, thou dost prevaricate:
 For though the Theses, which thou lay'st
 Be true ad amussim, as thou say'st;

ψ. 811. A wile Assembly 'tis, &c.] Meaning the Assembly of Divines composed chiefly of Presbyterians; for pretending that their Form of Church Government, by Classical, Provincial, and National Assemblies, was founded on the Authority of Scripture, when no such Words as Classical &c. are to be met with there. (Dr. B.) Sir John Birkenhead (see Assembly-man, p. 22.) speaks of them as follows. "Weigh him single, and he has the Pride of Three Tyrants, the Forehead of Six Goalers, and the Fraud of Six Brokers; and take them in the bunch, and the whole Assembly are a Club of Hypocrites, where six Dozen of Schismatics spend two hours for four Shillings apiece." What opinion the learned Mr. Selden had of them appears from the following account. "The House of Parliament once making a question, whether they had best admit Bishop Usher to the Assembly of Divines? he said, they had as good enquire, whether they had best admit Inigo Jones, the King's Architect, to the Company of Mouse-trap makers." *Append. ad Libr. 825 (For that Bear-baiting should appear
Jure divino lawfuller
 Than Synods are, thou dost deny,
Totidem verbis; so do I:)

Yet there is a Fallacy in this:

830 For if by sly Homœosis,
Tussis pro crepitu, an Art

 Thou would'st sophistically imply,
 Both are unlawful, I deny.

835 And I (quoth Ralpho) do not doubt
 But Bear-baiting may be made out
 In Gospel times, as lawful as is Provincial, or Parochial Classis:
 And that both are so near of kin,

ψ. 851. Thou wilt at best but suck a Bull.] Alluding to that proverbial saying; As wise as the Waltham Calf, that went nine miles to suck a Bull. The Cynick said of two impertinent Disputants, (See Spectator No 138) “The one of these Fellows is milking a Ram, and the other “ holds

- And not know which is which, unless
 You measure by their Wickedness :
 845 For 'tis not hard t' imagine whether
 O' th' two is worst, tho' I name neither.
 Quoth Hudibras, thou offer'st much,
 But art not able to keep touch.
 Mira de lente, as 'tis i' th' Adage,
 850 Id est, to make a Leek a Cabbage ;
 Thou wilt at best but suck a Bull,
 Or Shear-Swine, all Cry and no Wool ;
 For what can Synods have at all,
 With Bear that's Analogical ?
 855 Or what relation has debating
 Of Church-Affairs, with Bear-baiting ?
 A just Comparison still is
 Of Things ejusdem generis.
 And then what Genus rightly doth 860 Include and comprehend them both ;

" holds the Pail." This and the following line thus alter'd 1674.

*Thou canst at best but overstrain
 A Paradox, and thy own Brain.*

Thus they continued in the editions 1684, 1689, 1700, restored in 1704, in the following blundering manner, Thou'lt be at best but such a Bull, &c. and the blunder continued, I believe, in all the editions to this time.

 Nor time to argue out the Case :
 For now the Field is not far off,
 Where we must give the World a proof

 Nor shall they be deceiv'd, unless
 We're flurr'd and outed by Success :
 Success, the Mark no mortal Wit,

 For whatfo'er we perpetrate,
 We do but row, w'are steer'd by Fate,
 Which in Success oft disinherits,
 For spurious Causes, noblest Merits.

 Of great and mighty Resolutions :

mouth Shakespear (See Richard the Third, act 1. vol. 5. p. 422.) puts the following Words :

*But then I sigh, and with a piece of Scripture
 Tell them, that God bids me do good for evil ;
 And thus I cloke my naked Villany,
 With old odd ends stolen forth of Holy Writ,
 And seem a Saint when most I play the Devil.*

Mr. Cowley (See Cutter of Coleman-street, act 1. sc. 2.) describes them in the character of Barebottle, the Soap-boiler ; “ He was a very

In the MS. Collections of my worthy friend the Rev^d Dr. Philip Williams, late President of Saint John's College, Cambridge, and now Rector of Harrow in Suffolk, vol. 3.  Not slow Approaches, like a Virgin.
 This said, as yerst the Phrygian Knight,
 So ours, with rusty Steel did smite

Sir Samuel Luke, to Mr. Pym, intimating that the Earl of Essex's Forces had beat the King's Garrison out of Newport, Oct. 29, 1643. and a letter in the same volume (N^o 67. Novemb. 2.) desiring the weekly Sum of 1000*l.* for the Garrison of Newport, to be raised in the Counties of Bedford, Hertford, and Northampton, and another in vol. 4. I cannot but think, that the Writer of Mr. Butler's short Life, is mistaken in his observation; "That Sir Samuel Luke, to his dishonour, was an eminent Commander under the Usurper Cromwell." For Sir Samuel Luke, and his Father Sir Oliver Luke, are both in the list of the Secluded Members, who were turn'd out, or forcibly kept out of the House, to make way for the King's Tryal and Murder.  Until the Wooden Horse of trusty Sinon Foal'd a whole Litter of mad Colts in Harness,
 As furious as the Host of Holofernes.*

See Don Quixote, vol. 4. chap. 41. 394.

℥. 925, 926. So have I seen, with armed Heel,—A Wight bestride a Common-weal, &c.] Alluding probably to that harmless inoffensive Person Richard Cromwell; who was dispossest'd of the Government as Protector, in a small time; which is hinted at by the following Loyal Songsters.

*But Not a Rank Rider gets first in the Saddle,
 And made her show tricks, and curvet, and rebound;
 She quickly perceiv'd he rode widdle-waddle,
 And like his Coach-horses, threw his Highness to ground.
 Then Dick being lame, rode holding by the Pummel,
 Not having the wit to get hold of the Rein;
 But the Jade did so snort at the sight of a Cromwell,
 That Poor Dick and his Kindred turn'd Footmen again.*

While still the more he kick'd and spurr'd,
The less the fullen Jade has stirr'd.

The Notes upon this Canto cannot be better concluded, than with a Compliment paid to Mr. Butler, by a Poet, who was the best imitator of the Life and Spirit of Hudibras. It is a good defence of our Poet, for abruptly breaking the thread of his narration at the end of this Canto.

*But shall we take the Muse abroad,
To drop her idly on the road;
And leave our Subject in the Middle,
As Butler did his Bear and Fiddle?
Yet he, consummate Master, knew
When to recede, and where pursue:
His noble Negligences teach
What other Folks despair to reach;
He perfect Master climbs the Rope,
And ballances your Fear and Hope.
If after some distinguish'd Leap
He drops his Pole, and seems to slip;
Straight gath'ring all his active Strength,
He rises higher half his length;
With wonder you approve his Slight,
And owe your Pleasure to your Fright.
But like poor Andrew I advance
False Mimic of my Master's Dance,
A-round the Cord a-while I sprawl,
And then, tho' low, in Earnest fall.*

The ARGUMENT of THE SECOND CANTO.

*The Catalogue and Character
Of th' Enemies best Men of War ;
Whom, in a bold Harangue, the Knight

And takes the Fidler prisoner,

CANT. ψ. 1, 2. There was an ancient sage Philosopher,--That had read Alexander Ross over.] This Verse runs the same fate with the eleventh of the first Canto, in being censured by Mr. Addison, (Spectator, N^o 60.) for being more frequently quoted than the finest pieces of Wit in the whole; as he gives no reason why this Couplet does not deserve a quotation, so his Censure lets us know what a value

 Is in them all, but Love and Battles?
 O' th' first of these w' have no great matter
 To treat of, but a World o' th' latter;
 In which to do the Injur'd Right,

Certes our Authors are to blame,
 For to make some well-founding Name
 A Pattern fit for modern Knights

Men of Wit have upon it: (Mr. B.) Alexander Ross was a Scotch Divine, (and one of the Chaplains to King Charles I.) who wrote a Book, intitl'd, A view of all Religions in the World, from the Creation to his own time: which Book has had many Impressions; the 6th was published in the year 1696.

The Spectator speaking (N^o 26.) of the Tombs in Westminster-Abbey, says "They put me in mind of several Persons mentioned in Battles of Heroic Poems, who have sounding Names given them for no other reason, but that they may be kill'd, and are celebrated for nothing but being knock'd on the head."

Mr. Gayton in his Notes upon Don Quixote, chap. 5. p. 5, 6. observes, "That a Knight without a Lady, is like a Fiddle without a Bridge, a Body without a Head, a Soldier without a Sword, a Monkey without a Tail, a Lady without a Looking-glass, a Glass without a Face, a Face without a Nose."

ψ. 15, 16. Like those that a whole Street do raze,—To build a Palace in it's place.] Alluding probably to the building of Somerset-house in the Strand, in the reign of King Edward VI. for which one Parish Church, and three Episcopal Houses in the Strand were pull'd

ψ. 22. Just like the Manhood of Nine Taylors.] Nine Taylors, 'tis commonly said, make a Man : The Spectator (N^o 28.) alluding to this saying, observes the impropriety of seeing a Taylor at the Sign of a Lion. See how Sir R. L'Estrange proves a Taylor to be No Man, from the usual way of interpreting Scripture in those times. (part 1. fab. 494.) Petruchio (See Shakespear's Taming the Shrew, vol. 2. p. 335.) uses his Taylor with as much contempt, as if he had really been but the Ninth part of a Man. “ Thou Thread (says he) thou Thimble, “ thou Yard three-quarters, Half-yard Quarter, Nail,—thou Flea, “ thou Nit, thou Winter cricket thou ! braved in mine own House “ with a Skeen of Thread : Away, thou Rag, thou Quantity, thou “ Remnant, &c. I shall so bemeete thee with thy yard, as thou shalt “ think of prating whilst thou livest.”

ψ. 23, 24. So a Wild Tartar, when he spies—A Man that's handsome, valiant, wise, &c.] The Spectator makes the like observation, (N^o 126.) “ that the wild Tartars are ambitious of destroying a “ Man of the most extraordinary Parts and Accomplishments, as “ thinking, that, upon his decease, the same Talents, whatsoever Post “ they qualified him for, enter of course into his Destroyer.”

 It is a heavy Case no doubt,
 A Man should have his Brains beat out,

 As Men kill Beavers for their Stones.
 35 But as for our Part, we shall tell
 The naked Truth of what befel;
 And as an equal Friend to both

(see the strange Effects of an Ointment made of it, Notes upon Creech's Lucretius, book 6. p. 710.) 'twas a very ancient Opinion that the Beaver, to escape the Hunter, bit off his Testicles. see Æsop's 29th Fable. To this Juvenal alludes, sat. 12 l. 34, 35, 36.

 And were invented first from Engines,

 So let them be, and, as I was saying,
 They their live Engines ply'd, not staying the Old Romans ; since I never read, they made use of the Tramel, or any other Art, to pace their Horses.

ψ. 55, 56. For as whipp'd Tops, and bandy'd Balls,—The Learned hold, are Animals.] Those Philosophers who held Horses to be Machines, or Engines, might, with no greater absurdity, hold whipp'd Tops to be Animals. (Mr. D.)

ψ. 58. Mere Engines made by Geometry.] Des Cartes who died in the Court of Christina Queen of Sweden, anno 1654. (see Collier's Historical Dictionary,) taught that Horses, and other Brute Animals, had no life in them, but were mere Engines mov'd by certain Springs, like Clock-work, having neither sense, nor perception of any thing, (Dr. B.) See a Confutation of his opinion, Turkish Spy, vol. 2. letter 26. vol. 4. book 3. letter 4. vol. 4. book 4. letter 7. vol. 7. book 3. letter 8.

ψ. 59, 60. And were invented first from Engines,—As Indian Britains are from Penguins.] As Des Cartes is the Person sneer'd in the first Line ; so probably the learned Mr. Selden, (with others) may be intended in the second. He tells us, (Notes upon Drayton's Poly-Olbion, p. 148.) “ That about the year M,C,LXX, Mudoc, Brother “ to David ap Owen, Prince of Wales, made a Sea Voyage to Florida, and by probability, those names of Capo de Broton in Nor- “ rimberg, and Penguin in part of the Northern America, for a white “ Rock, and a white-headed Bird, according to the British, were Re- “ licks of this Discovery ; so that the Welsh may challenge priority “ of finding that New World, before the Spaniard, Genoa, and others “ mentioned by Lopez, Marinæus, and the rest of that kind.” Mr. Butler's Meaning seems to be hit off, in the following Note communicated to me by an admirable Lady, who, as she is endued with all the Excellencies and Perfections of her Sex, is well known to the Learned World, for some useful and valuable Tracts she has published, and for her great and uncommon Attainments in Literature :

her Name, was I at liberty to mention it, would do great Honour to my Notes.

“ The Author’s Explanation of the last line which is an Illustration of the first, must, I think, be the Clew which must lead us to the Meaning of these lines. He tells us, that some Authors have endeavour’d to prove from the Bird call’d Penguin, and other Indian Words, that the Americans are originally derived from Britains; that is, that these are Indian Britains, and agreeable to this, some Authors have endeavour’d to prove from Engines, that Horses are mere Engines made by Geometry. But have these Authors proved their Points? Certainly not. Then it follows that Horses which are mere Engines made by Geometry, and Indian Britains are mere Creatures of the Brain, Invented Creatures. And if they are only Invented Creatures, they may well be supposed to be invented from Engines, and Penguins, from whence these Authors had endeavour’d, in vain, to prove their Existence. Upon the whole, I imagine, that, in these and the Lines immediately preceding, three sorts of Writers are equally banter’d by our Author; Those who hold Machines to be Animals; Those who hold Animals to be Machines; And those who hold that the Americans are derived from Britains.”

Mr. Warburton observes upon these Lines, “ That the Thought is extremely fine, and well exposes the Folly of a Philosopher, for attempting to establish a Principle of great importance in his Science, on as slender a Foundation, as an Etymologist advances an Historical Conjecture.”

ψ. 65. The dire Pharsalian Plain.] * Pharsalia is a City of Thessaly, famous for the Battle won by Julius Cæsar against Pompey the Great, in the neighbouring Plains, in the 607th year of Rome, of which read Lucan’s Pharsalia.]

This was one Jackson a Milliner, who liv'd in the New Exchange in the Strand; He had formerly been in the Service of the Round-heads, and had lost a Leg in it; this brought him to decay, so that he was obliged to scrape upon a Fiddle from one Ale-house to another for his Bread. Mr. Butler very judiciously places him at the head of his Catalogue: for Country Diversions are generally attended with a Fidler, or Bag-piper. I would observe in this place that we have the exact Characters of the usual Attendants at a Bear-baiting, fully drawn, and a Catalogue of Warriors conformable to the practice of Epic Poets. (Mr. B.)

ψ. 113, 114. A squeaking Engine he apply'd—Unto his Neck on North-East Side.] Why the North-East Side? Do Fiddlers always, or most generally stand, or sit according to the points of the Compass, so as to answer this Description? no surely: I lately heard an ingenious Explication of this Passage, taken from the position of a Body when 'tis buried, which being always the Head to the West, and the Feet to the East, consequently the Left Side of the Neck, that part where the Fiddle is usually placed, must be due North-East. (Mr. B.) Perhaps the Fidler and Company were marching towards the East, which would occasion the same position of the Fiddle.

ψ. 115, 116. Just where the Hangman does dispose—To special Friends the Knot of Noose. The Noose I am told, is always placed under the Left Ear.

The Groom of Darius being inform'd of what was agreed on, made use of a Device which secured the Crown to his Master: for the Night before, having tied a Mare to the place where they were the next morning to meet; he brought Darius's Horse thither, and put him to cover the Mare: and therefore as soon as the Princes came thither at the time appointed, Darius's Horse at the sight of the place, remembering the Mare, ran thither, and neigh'd, whereon He was forthwith saluted King by the rest: and accordingly placed on the Throne.”

See the manner of doing it in Chambers's Cyclopædia) but Mr. Chambers gives probable Reasons, to induce us to believe, that the celebrated Roger Bacon made the Discovery, one hundred and fifty years before Schwartz was born, about the year 1216. John Mathew de Luna ascribes the first Invention of the Cannon, Arquebuss, and Pistol, to Albertus Magnus, Bishop of Ratisbon, (see Naudæus's History of Magic, translated by

This is confirmed by Aulus Gellius. (*Noct. Mr. Wright in his Observations made on travelling through France, Italy, &c. London, 1730, p. 8. makes mention of a Wedding Cavalcade in the Vale de Seiffons, “ where Mrs. Bride dressed all in white, was “ riding astride among about thirty Horsemen, and herself the only “ Female in the Company.”

Mr. Rollin observes, (see Ancient History, 2^d edit. vol. 6. p. 274, 275.) that this Story, and whatever is related of the Amazons is look'd upon by some very judicious Authors, as intirely fabulous. the Learned Mr. Tho. Baker, (see Reflections on Learning) seems to be of this opinion, But our Learned Sheringham thinks otherwise. (De Gentis Anglor. Orig.)

ψ. 394, 395. And she that wou'd have been the Mistress—Of Gundibert, &c.] * Gundibert is a feign'd Name, made use of by Sir William Davenant, in his famous Epick Poem so call'd; wherein you may find also that of his Mistress. This Poem was designed by the Author to be an Imitation of the English Drama; it being divided into five Books, as the other is into five Acts; the Cantos to be parallel of the Scenes, with this Difference, that this is deliver'd Narratively, the other Dialogue-wise. It was ushered into the World by a large Preface written by Mr. Hobbes, and by the Pens of two of our best Poets, viz. Mr. Waller and Mr. Cowley, which, one would have thought, might have prov'd a sufficient Defence and Protection against snarling Criticks. Notwithstanding which, four eminent Wits of that Age (two of which were Sir John Denham and Mr. Donne) published several Copies of Verses to Sir William's Discredit, under this Title, Certain Verses written by several of the Author's Friends to be reprinted with the second Edition of Gundibert, in 8^o London 1653. These Verses were as wittily answered by the Author, under this Title, The incomparable Poem of Gundibert vindicated from the Wit Combat of four Esquires, Clinias, Damætas, Sancho, and Jack-Pudding; Printed in 8^o London 1665. Vid. Langbain's Account of Dramatick Poets. "Rodalind, Daughter of Aribert King of Lombardy, is the Person alluded to.

*There Lovers seek the Royal Rhodalind

*Yet with as plain a Heart as Love untaught

 But of pernicious Consequence
 To Government, which they suppose

 Or what's as good, produc'd in Print:
 And if they will not take our Word,
 We'll prove it true upon Record.

*Let us with secrecy our Loves protest
 Hiding such precious Wealth from publick view;
 The proffer'd Glory I will first suspect
 As false, and shun it, when I find it true.*

ŷ. 399, 400. To Government which they suppose—Can never be upheld by Prose.] A Ridicule on Sir William Davenant's Preface to Gondibert, where he endeavours to shew, that neither Divines, Leaders of Armies, Statesmen, nor Ministers of the Law can uphold the Government without the aid of Poetry. (Mr. W.)

ŷ. 409. — Cerdon.] A one-ey'd Cocker, (like his brother Colonel Hewson) and great Reformer. The Poet observes, that his chief Talent lay in preaching. Is it not then indecent, and beyond the Rules of Decorum, to introduce him into such rough Company? No; it is probable he had but newly set up the Trade of a Teacher; and we may conclude, that the Poet did not think, that he had so much Sanctity as to debar him the pleasure of his beloved Diversion of Bear-baiting. (Mr. B.)

ŷ. 413, 414. He rais'd the Low and fortify'd — The weak against the strongest Side.] Alluding, as Mr. Warburton observes, to his Profession of a Cobler, who supply'd a Heel torn off, and mended a bad Sole. Mr. Butler in his Tale of a Cocker, and Vicar of Bray, (Remains Compleat, 1727. p. 137.) has the following Lines:

*So going out into the Streets,
 He bawls with all his might,*

The upright Cerdon next advanc't
 410 Of all his Race the valiant'st :
Cerdon the Great, renown'd in Song,
 Like Herc'les, for repair of Wrong :
 He rais'd the Low, and fortify'd
 The weak against the strongest Side :
 415 Ill has he read, that never hit
 On him, in Muses deathless Writ.
 He had a Weapon keen and fierce,
 That through a Bull-hide Shield wou'd pierce,
 420 And cut it in a thousand Pieces,
 Tho' tougher than the Knight of Greece his;

*If any of you tread awry,
 I'm bere to set you right.
 I can repair your leaky Boots
 And underlay your Soles ;
 Back-sliders I can underprop,
 And patch up all your Holes.*

Mr. Walker (Hist. of Independency, part 4. p. 70.) calls Colonel Hewson the Cocker, the Commonwealth's Upright-setter, and as such, he is humourously banter'd in a Ballad intitled, A Quarrel betwixt Towerhill and Tyburn. Collection of Loyal Songs, reprinted 1731, vol. 2. N^o 2. p. 4.

In a curious Dissertation upon Boots, written in express ridicule of Colonel Hewson. (probably shadow'd in the Character of Cerdon) is a humorous Passage which seems to explain the lines under consideration. “ The second use is a use of reproof, to reprove all those “ that are self-will'd, and cannot be perswaded to buy them wax'd “ Boots : but to such as these, Examples move more than Precepts, “ wherefore I'll give one or two.— I read of Alexander the Great,
 “ that passing over a River in Alexandria, without his Winter Boots, “ he took such extreme cold in his feet, that he suddenly fell sick of “ a violent Fever, and four days after died at Babylon. The like I “ find in Plutarch, of that Noble Roman Sertorius ; and also in Homer
 “ of Achilles, that leaving his Boots behind him, and coming bare“ foot into the Temple of Pallas, while he was worshiping on his “ knees at her Altar, he was pierced into the heel by a venom'd “ dart by Paris ; the only part of him that was vulnerable, of “ which he suddenly died : Which accident had never happen'd to “ him, (as Alexander Ross that little Scotch Mythologist observes) had “ he not two days before pawn'd his Boots to Ulysses, and so was “ forced to come without them to the Trojan Sacrifice : he also fur“ ther observes, that this Achilles, (of whom Homer has writ such “ Wonders) was but a Shoemaker's Boy of Greece, and that when “ Ulysses sought him out, he at last found him at the Distaff, spinning “ of Shoemaker's Thread. Now this Boy was so beloved, that as ✓. 436. But Preaching was his chiefest Talent.] Mechanics of all sorts were then Preachers, and some of them much followed, and admired by the Mob. “ I am to tell thee, Christian Reader” (says Dr.

For Beasts, when Man was but a Piece
 475 Of Earth himself, did th' Earth possess.
 These Worthies were the chief that led
 The Combatants, each in the Head
 Of his Command, with Arms and Rage,
 Ready, and longing to engage.
 480 The numerous Rabble was drawn out
 Of sev'ral Counties round about,
 From Villages remote, and Shires,
 Of East and Western Hemispheres:
 From foreign Parishes and Regions,
 485 Of different Manners, Speech, Religions,
 Came Men and Mastiffs; some to fight
 For Fame and Honour, some for Sight.

Persons of his own Stamp, and in his own way of thinking, in that Recreation? It is plain, that he took them to be so, by his manner of addressing them, in the famous Harangue which follows. An Answer may be given several ways: he thought himself bound in Commission, and Conscience, to suppress a Game, which he and his Squire had so learnedly judg'd to be unlawful; and therefore he could not dispense with it, even in his Brethren: he insinuates, that they were ready to engage in the same pious Designs with himself; and the Liberty they took was by no means suitable to the Character of Reformers: In short, he uses all his Rhetoric to cajole, and Threats to terrify them to desist from their darling Sports, for the plausible saving their Cause's Reputation. (Mr. B.)

✓. 485. Of different Manners, Speech, Religions.] Never were there so many different Seets and Religions in any Nation, as were then in England. Mr. Case told the Parliament, in his Thanksgiving Sermon fortaking of Chester, p. 25. (See Continuation of Friendly Debate, p. 8.)

Cumque superba foret Babylon spolianda Tropæis
Ausoniis, umbræque erraret Craſſus inultâ,
Bella geri placuit nullos habitura triumphos, &c.

Thus translated by Sir Arthur Gorges, 1614, in the same metre,

Dear Citizens, what Brainsick Charms,
What Outrage of disorder'd Arms
Leads you to feast your envious Foes ;
To see you goar'd with your own Blows ?
Proud Babylon your Force doth scorn,
Whose Spoils your Trophies might adorn ;

And

495 Doth you to these dire Actions hurry?
 What Oestrum, what Phrenetick Mood
 Makes you thus lavish of your Blood,
 While the proud Vies your Trophies boast
 And unreveng'd walks — Ghost?
 500 What Towns, what Garrisons might you
 With Hazard of this Blood subdue,

And Crassus' unrevenged Ghost, Roams wailing through the Parthian Coast.

γ. 496.] What Oestrum, &c. * Oestrum is not only a Greek Word for Madness, but signifies also a Gad-Bee or Horse-Fly, that torments Cattle in the Summer, and makes them run about as if they were mad.

γ. 498. While the proud Vies, &c.] This refers to the great Defeat given to Sir William Waller, at the Devises, of which the Reader may meet with an account, in Lord Clarendon's History of the Rebellion, vol. 2. p. 224, 225, 226. and in Mr. Echard's History of England, vol. 2. p. 420. and the Blank is here to be fill'd up with the Word Waller's; and we must read Waller's Ghost: for though Sir William Waller made a considerable Figure among the Generals of the Rebel Parliament, before this Defeat, yet afterwards he made no Figure, and appear'd but as the Ghost or Shadow of what he had been before, (Dr. B.) The Devises, called De Vies, Devises, or the Vies, Camden's Wiltshire Coll. 88, edit. 1695. Sir John Denham speaking of the bursting of eight Barrels of Gunpowder, whereby the famous Sir Ralph Hopton was in danger of being kill'd. (See Loyal Songs against the Rump, reprinted 1731. vol. 1. p. 107.) has the following Lines:

*You heard of that Wonder, of the Lightning and Thunder,
 Which made the Lye so much the louder;
 Now list to another, that miraculous Brother,
 Which was done by a Firkin of Powder.
 Oh what a damp, it struck thro' the Camp!
 But as for honest Sir Ralph,
 It blew him to the Vies, without Head or Eyes.*

Which now y'are bent to throw away
 In vain, untriumphable Fray?
 Shall Saints in civil Bloodshed wallow
 505 Of Saints, and let the Cause lie fallow?
 The Cause, for which we fought and swore
 So boldly, shall we now give o're?
 Then because Quarrels still are seen

Y. 503. In vain untriumphable Fray.] A pleasant allusion to the Roman Custom, which denied “a Triumph to a Conqueror in Civil War. (Mr. W.) The reason of which was, because the Men there slain were Citizens and no Strangers, which was the reason that neither Nasica having vanquish'd Gracchus and his Followers, nor Metellus suppressing Caius Opimius, nor Antonius defeating Catiline, were admitted to a Triumph. Nevertheless, when Lucius Sylla had surprized the Cities of Græcia, and taken the Marian Citizens, he was allow'd, triumphant-wise, to carry with him the Spoils gained in those places” (Sir William Segar's book, intitled, Of Honour Civil and Military, chap. 20. p. 140. Tatler, N^o 63.)

Y. 504, 505. Shall Saints in Civil bloodshed wallow—Of Saints, and let the Cause lie fallow?] Mr. Walker observes, (History of Independency, part 1. p. 143.) “That all the cheating, covetous, ambitious persons of the Land, were united together under the title of the Godly, the Saints, and shared the Fat of the Land between them;” and (p. 148.) he calls them the Saints who were canonized no where, but in the Devil's Calendar. When I consider the Behaviour of these pretended Saints to the Members of the Church of England, whom they plunder'd unmercifully, and to Brother Saints of other Sects, whom they did not spare in that respect, when a proper occasion offer'd, I cannot help comparing them with Dr. Rondibilis, (Rablais, book 3. chap. 34. p. 235.) who told Panurge, “That from wicked Folks he never got enough, and from honest People he refused nothing.” See Sir R. L'Estrange's Moral to the Fable of the Tub of Rats, &c. part 2. fab. 236.

Y. 514, 515.—Make War for the King—against himself.] The Presbyterians, in all their Wars against the King, maintained still That they fought for him; for they pretended to distinguish his Political Person, from his Natural one; his Political Person they said, must be, and was with the Parliament, tho' his Natural Person was at War with them. And therefore when at the end of his Speech he charged them to keep the Peace, he does it in the Name of the King and Parliament; that is, the Political, not the Natural King.
 This

With Oaths and Swearings to begin,
 510 The Solemn League and Covenant,
 Will seem a mere God-dam me Rant :
 And we that took it, and have fought,
 As lewd as Drunkards that fall out.
 For as we make War for the King
 515 Against himself, the self-same Thing,

This was the Presbyterian Method, whilst they had the ascendant, to join King and Parliament. In the Earl of Essex's Commission the King was named, but left out in that of Sir Thomas Fairfax. (See Lord Hollis's Observation upon it, Memoirs, p. 34.) To this piece of Grimace Mr. Butler alludes, (in his Parable of the Lion and the Fox, see Remains.)

*You know when Civil Broils grew high,
 And Men fell out they knew not why;
 That I was one of those that went
 To fight for King and Parliament.
 When that was over, I was one
 Fought for the Parliament alone :
 And though to boast it argues not,
 Pure Merit me a Halbert got ;
 And as Sir Samuel can tell
 I us'd the Weapon passing well.*

(Serjeant Thorpe, one of their iniquitous Judges, took great Pains to establish this Distinction, in his Charge to the Grand Jury at York Assize, May 20, 1648, p. 11. penes me.) Mr. Richard Overton (in his Appeal from the Degenerate Representative Body the Commons of England—to the Body represented, 1647, p. 18.) plays their own Artillery upon them. “ There is a difference (says he) between their Parliamentary “ and their own Personal Capacity, and their Actions are answerably “ different; therefore the rejection, disobedience, and resistance of “ their Personal Commands, is no rejection, disobedience, or resist- “ ance of their Parliamentary Authority; so that he that doth re- “ sist their Personal Commands, doth not resist the Parliament; nei- “ ther can they be censured, or esteemed as Traytors, Rebels, Di- “ sturbers, or Enemies to the State; but rather as Preservers, Con- “ servers, and Defenders thereof.” (See more, Impartial Examination of Mr. Neal's 2^d vol. of the History of the Puritans, p. 377. Impartial Examination of his 3^d vol. p. 305. Preface to a Tract, intitled, A Looking-glass for Schismatics, 1725.) The fanatical Jesuites (1687) seems to have borrow'd this Distinction, from these

Some will not stick to swear we do
 For God, and for Religion too ;
 For, if Bear-baiting we allow,
 What Good can Reformation do ?
 520 The Blood and Treasure, that's laid out,
 Is thrown away, and goes for nought.
 Are these the Fruits o' th' Protestation,
 The Prototype of Reformation,
 Which all the Saints, and some, since Martyrs,
 525 Wore in their Hats like Wedding Garters,

Jesuitical Fancies. The Pope himself being suspected as a favourer of Molinos (or what was called the Heresy of the Quietists) “ on the “ 13th of February, some were deputed from the Court of the Inquisition, to examine him, not in the quality of Christ's Vicar, or St. Peter's Successor ; but in the single quality of Benedict Odescalchi.” (Baker's History of the Inquisition, p. 430.)

ψ. 519, What good can Reformation do?] This was the Cant of some of them, even in their publick Sermons. “ The People of “ England (says Richard Kentish, Fast Sermon before the Commons, “ November 24, 1647. p. 17.) once desired a Reformation, coveted for a Reformation, but now they hate to be Reformed.” Their way of Reforming is sneer'd by the Author of An Elegy, upon the incomparable King Charles I. 1648. p. 11.

Brave Reformation and a through one too,
 Which, to enrich yourselves, must all undo.
 Pray tell us (those that can) what Fruits have grown
 From all your Seeds in Blood and Treasure sown ?
 What would you mend ? when your projected State
 Doth from the best in form degenerate ?
 Or why should you (of all) attempt the Cure,
 Whose Facts nor Gospel-Tests nor Laws endure ?
 But like unwholesome Exhalations met,
 From your Conjunction only Plagues beget.
 And in your Circle, as Imposthumes fill,
 Which by their Venom their whole Body kill.

ψ. 525. Wore in their Hats, &c.] When the tumultuous Rabble came to Westminster, crying to have Justice done upon the Earl of Strafford, they roll'd up the Protestation, or some piece of Paper resembling it, and wore it in their Hats, as a badge of their Zeal :

When 'twas resolv'd by either House
Six Members Quarrel to espouse?
 Did they, for this, draw down the Rabble,
 With Zeal, and Noises formidable;
 530 And make all Cries about the Town
 Join Throats to cry the Bishops down?
 Who having round begirt the Palace,
 (As once a month they do the Gallows)
 As Members gave the Sign about,
 535 Set up their Throats with hideous Shout.

They might probably do the same upon the Impeachment of the Six Members. (Dr. B.) "The Buckinghamshire Men were the first, "who, whilst they express'd their Love to their Knight, (Hampden) "forgot their sworn Oath to their King, and instead of Feathers "they carried a printed Protestation in their Hats, as the Londoners "had done a little before, upon the Spear's point." (See a Tract, intitled, The True Informer, &c. Oxford, 1643. p. 27.)

✓. 527. Six Members Quarrels to espouse?] * The six Members were the Lord Kimbolton, Mr. Pym, Mr. Hollis, Mr. Hampden, Sir Arthur Haslerig, and Mr. Stroud, whom the King ordered to be apprehended, and their Papers seized; charging them of plotting with the Scots, and favouring the late Tumults: but the House voted against the Arrest of their Persons or Papers: whereupon the King having preferred Articles against those Members, he went with his Guard to the House to demand them; but they, having Notice, withdrew."

✓. 531. Join throats to cry the Bishops down.] "It is fresh in Memory (saith the Author of a Tract, intitled, Lex Talionis;) how "this City sent forth it's spurious Scum in Multitudes to cry down "Bishops, root and branch; who, like sholes of Herrings, or swarms "of Hornets, lay hovering about the Court with lying Pamphlets "and scandalous Pasquils, until they forced the King from his "Throne, and banish'd the Queen from his Bed, and afterwards out "of the Kingdom. Good Lord (says the True Informer, &c. Oxford "1643, p. 12.) what a deal of Dirt was thrown in the Bishops Faces? "—what infamous Ballads were sung? what a thick Cloud of epi- "demical Hatred hung suddenly over them; so far, that a Dog "with a black and white Face was called a Bishop." Oxon.* vol. 2. col. 236. Echard's History of England, vol. 2.) and 'tis no wonder that the Mob without Doors were so furious against them, when so much encouragement was given within: and upon one of these Clamourers, who was an Alderman, (and probably Pennington) 'twas well turn'd by Mr. Selden, "Mr. Speaker, (says the Alderman) there are so many Clamours against such and such of the Prelates, that we shall never be quiet 'till we have no more Bishops." Mr Selden upon this, informs the House, "what grievous Complaints there were for high Misdemeanours against such and such Aldermen; and therefore (says he) by a parity of Reason, it is my humble Motion that we have no more Aldermen." "If ever, Gentlemen, you might use this Speech of Bernardus Ochinus, (which he hinted at before) O Happy Penny, you may use it now; Happy Money, that will purchase Religion; and purchase a Reformation to my Posterity! O Happy Money, and blessed be God I have it to lend! and I count it the greatest opportunity that God did ever offer to the Godly of this Kingdom, to give them some Money, to lend to This Cause: And I remember in this Ordinance of Parliament, it is called Advance Money; it is called An Ordinance to Advance Money towards the Maintaining the Parliament Forces; and truly it is the highest Advance of Money, to make Money an Instrument to advance my Religion; the Lord give you Hearts to believe this. For my part, I speak it in the name of myself, and in the names of these Reverend Ministers; we will not only speak to persuade you to contribute, but every one of us, that God hath given an estate to; we will all to our utmost Power; we will not only say Ite, but Venite." ψ. 586 Have they invented Tones to win, &c.] The Author of the Dialogue between Timothy and Philatheus, (Pref. to 2^d vol. 1710.) in banter of those times, says; "I knew a famous Casuit, who whenever he undertook the Conversion of any of his precise Neighbours, most commonly made use of this following Address.—H-a-h Friend, Thou art in Darknes, yea in thick Darknes—The Lord —He—I say, He—He shall enlighten Thee.  In which they freely will confess,
 They will not, cannot acquiesce,
 Unless the Work be carry'd on 605 In the same Way they have begun,
 By setting Church and Common-weal
 All on a Flame, bright as their Zeal,

“ strong in all Gifts, and grown up in all Grace, and are come to

Scotch Prayer much to the same purpose, Scourge, by Mr. Lewis, N^o

ψ. 603. They will not, cannot acquiesce.] Alluding probably to their saucy expostulations with God from the Pulpit. Mr. Vines, in St. Clement's Church near Temple-Bar, used the following words, “ O Lord, thou hast never given us a Victory this long while, for “ all our frequent Fasting: what dost thou mean, O Lord, to fling “ into a Ditch, and there to leave us?” (Dugdale's Short View of the Troubles, p. 570.) And one Robinson in his Prayer at Southampton, August 25, 1642. express'd himself in the following manner, “ O God, “ O God, many are the Hands that are lift up against us, but there “ is

On which the Saints were all a-gog,
 And all this for a Bear and Dog?

 In ev'ry City and great Town;
 With Pow'r to levy Horse and Men,
 615 Only to bring them back agen:
 For this did many, many a Mile,
 Ride manfully in Rank and File,
 With Papers in their Hats, that show'd
 As if they to the Pillory rode.
 620 Have all these Courses, these Efforts,
 Been try'd by People of all Sorts,

“ is one God, it is Thou thyself, O Father, who does us more Mis“ chief than they all.” (See Seppen's Preacher's Guard and Guide,)
 They seem'd to encourage this Sauciness in their publick Sermons.
 “ Gather upon God (says Mr. R. Harris, Fast Sermon before the Com- “ mons, May 25, 1642. p. 18.) and hold him to it as Jacob did; press “ him with his Precepts, with his Promises, with his Hand, with his “ Seal, with his Oath, till we do δυσωπειν, as some Greek Fathers

 “ Lord out of countenance, put him, as you would say, to the blush, “ unless we be masters of our Requests.”

§. 610. The Parliament drew up Petitions, &c.] When the seditious Members of the House of Commons wanted to have any thing pass the House, which they fear'd would meet with opposition, they would draw up a Petition to the Parliament, and send it to their Friends in the Country to get it signed and brought up to the Parliament by as many as could be prevailed upon to do it. Their way of doing it (as Lord Clarendon observes, History of the Rebellion, vol. 1. p. 161.) “ was to prepare a Petition very modest and dutiful “ for the Form, and for the matter not very unreasonable; and to “ communicate it at some publick Meeting, where care was taken
 “ it should be received with approbation: the Subscription of a very “ few Hands fill'd the Paper itself, where the Petition was written,
 “ and

 Give Dogs and Bears a Dispensation?
 630 How will dissenting Brethren relish it?
 What will Malignants say? Videlicet,
 That each Man swore to do his best,
 To damn and perjure all the rest?
 And bid the Devil take the bin'most:

“ and therefore many more sheets were annexed for the reception of “ the numbers, which gave all the credit, and procured all the coun“ tenance to the Undertaking. When a Multitude of hands were “ procured, the petition itself was cut off, and a new one framed, “ agreeable to the Design in hand; and annex'd to a long List of “ Names which was subscribed to the former: by this means many “ Men found their Names subscribed to Petitions, of which they be“ fore had never heard.”

ψ. 622. Velis & Remis, omnibus Nervis.] The Ancients made use of Gallies with Sails and Oars, vid. Lucani Pharsal. passim. Such are the Gallies now rowed by Slaves at Leghorn, &c. in calm Weather, when their Sails are of little service. All that Mr. Butler means, is, that they did it with all their might.

ψ. 631. What will Malignants say, &c.] “ By Malignants (says
 the Writer of a Letter, without any superscription—That the poor People may see the Intentions of those whom they have followed; printed in the year 1643. p. 6.) “ you intend all such who believe that more

 where

The Church and State, is but a Worm ;
 For to subscribe unsight, unseen,
 T' an unknown Church Discipline,
 640 What is it else, but before-hand
 T' engage, and after understand ?
 For when we swore to carry on
 The present Reformation,
 According to the purest Mode
 645 Of Churches best Reform'd abroad,
 What did we else but make a Vow
 To do we know not what, nor how ?
 For no three of us will agree
 Where, or what Churches these shou'd be.
 650 And is indeed the self-same Case ;
 With theirs that swore Et cætera's ;

where they promise to reform the Church according to the Best Reform'd Churches, though none of them knew, neither could they agree which Churches were best reform'd, and very few, if any, of them knew, which was the True Form of those Churches. (Dr. B.)

ŷ. 640, 641. What is it else, but before-hand—T' engage and after understand?] Of this kind was the Casuistry of the Mayor and Jurats of Hastings, one of the Cinque Ports: who would have had some of the Assistants to swear in general to assist them; and afterwards they should know the Particulars: and when they scrupled, they told them, “ They need not to be so scrupulous, tho' they did not “ know what they swore unto; it was no harm, for they had taken “ the same Oath themselves to do that, which they were to assist “ Them in.” (Mercurius Rusticus, N^o 15. p. 163, 164.)

ŷ. 648, 649. For no three of us will agree—Where, or what Churches these should be.] See this proved in their Behaviour at the Treaty of Uxbridge. Lord Clarendon's History of the Rebellion, vol. 2. p. 447, 448.

ŷ. 651. With those that swore Et cætera's.] In the Convocation that sat at the beginning of 1540. there was an Oath framed, (see Canon the 6^t of 1640.) which all the Clergy were bound to take: in which

Or the French League, in which Men vow'd
 To fight to the last Drop of Blood.
 These Slanders will be thrown upon

 If we permit Men to run headlong
 T' Exorbitances fit for Bedlam ;
 Rather than Gospel-Walking Times,
 When slightest Sins are greatest Crimes.
 660 But we the Matter so shall handle,
 As to remove that odious Scandal :

which was this Cause. “ Nor will I ever give my consent to alter
 “ the Government of this Church, by Archbishops, Bishops, Deans, “ Archdeacons, &c.” This was loudly clamour'd at, and called swearing to they knew not what : and a Book was published, London
 1641. intitled, The Anatomy of Sc. or, the Unfolding of that dangerous Clause of the Sixth Canon. Our Poet has plainly in this place shown his Impartiality ; the Faulty and Ridiculous on one side as well as the other, feel the Lash of his Pen. The Satire is fine and pungent, in comparing the Sc. Oath with the Covenant Oath : neither of which were strictly defensible. His Brother Satyrist Cleveland also could not permit so great an Absurdity to pass by him unlash'd :
 but does it in the Person of a Puritan Zealot, and thereby cuts doubly ;

Who swears Sc. swears more Oaths at once,
Than Cerberus out of his Triple Sconce :
Who views it well, with the same Eye beholds
The old Half Serpent in his num'rous Folds Accurst——
Oh Booker, Booker, how com'st thou to lack
This Sign, in thy Prophetick Almanack ?
——I cannot half untruss
Et Cætera, it is so abominous.
The Trojan Nag was not so fully lin'd ;
Unrip Sc. and you shall find
Og the great Commissary, and which is worse,
The Apparitor upon his skew-bald Horse.
Then finally, my Babe of Grace, forbear
Et Cætera, 'twill be too far to swear.
For 'tis, to speak in a familiar Style,
A Yorkshire Wea-bit, longer than a Mile.

Nay,

In Name of King and Parliament,
 I charge ye all, no more foment
 This Feud, but keep the Peace between 665 Your Brethren and your Countrymen;
 And to those places straight repair
 Where your respective Dwellings are.
 But to that Purpose first surrender
 The Fidler, as the prime Offender,
 670 Th' Incendiary vile, that is chief
 Author and Engineer of Mischief;

Nay, he elsewhere couples it with the Cant Word Smeſtymnus, (the Club Divines) and says, "The Banns of Marriage were ask'd between " them—that the Convocation and the Commons were to be the Guests;
 " and the Priest Moleſey, or Sancta Clara, were to tie the Foxes Tails
 " together." Could any thing be ſaid more ſevere and fatirical?

ſ. 652. Or the French League,] * "The Holy League in France, deſign'd and made for the Extirpation of the Proteſtant Religion, was the Original, out of which the Solemn League and Covenant here was (with Difference only of Circumſtances) moſt faithfully tranſcrib'd.
 Nor did the Succeſs of both differ more than the Intent and Purpose;
 for after the Deſtruction of vaſt Numbers of People of all ſorts, both ended with the Murder of two Kings, whom they had both ſworn to defend: And as our Covenanters ſwore every Man to run one before another in the Way of Reformation, ſo did the French in the Holy League, to fight to the laſt Drop of Blood." Mr. Robert Gordon (ſee History of the Illuſtrious Family of Gordon, vol. 2. p. 197.)
 ſpeaking of the Solemn League and Covenant, compares it to the Holy League in France; and obſerves, "That they were as like as one Egg
 " to another; the one was nurs'd by the Jefuits, the other by the
 " then Scots Preſbyterians, Simeon and Levi;" and he informs us,

That makes Division between Friends,
 For profane and malignant Ends.
 He and that Engine of vile Noise, 675 On which illegally he plays,
 Shall (dictum factum) both be brought
 To condign Punishment, as they ought.
 This must be done, and I would fain see
 Mortal so sturdy as to gain-fay :
 680 For then I'll take another Course,
 And soon reduce you all by Force.
 This said, he clapt his Hand on Sword,
 To shew he meant to keep his Word.

ŷ. 674, 675, 676, 677. He and that Engine of vile Noise, — On which illegally He plays, — Shall (dictum factum) both be brought — To condign punishment, as they ought.] The threatening Punishment to the Fiddle, was much like the Threats of the Pragmatical Troopers, to punish Ralph Dobbin's Waggon (of which we have the following merry account, Plain Dealer, publish'd 1734. vol. 1. p. 256.) "I was driving (says he) into a Town upon the 29th of May, "where my Waggon was to dine: there came up in a great rage "seven or eight of the Troopers that were quarter'd there, and "asked what I bush'd out my Horses for? I told them to drive "Flies away. But they said, I was a Jacobite Rascal, That my "Horses were guilty of High Treason, and my Waggon ought to be "hang'd. — I answer'd, it was already drawn, and within a "yard or two of being quarter'd; but as to being hang'd, it was "a Compliment we had no occasion for, and therefore desir'd them "to take it back again; and keep it in their own hands, till they "had an opportunity to make use of it. — I had no sooner spoke "these words, but they fell upon me like Thunder, stript my "Cattle in a twinkling, and beat me black and blue with my own "Oak-Branches."

ŷ. 684, 685. But Talgol, who had long suppress'd — Inflamed Wrath in glowing breast, &c.] It may be ask'd, why Talgol was the first in answering the Knight, when it seems more incumbent upon the Bearward to make a Defence? Probably Talgol might then be a Cavalier, for the Character the Poet has given him, doth not infer the contrary; and his Answer carries strong Indications to justify the Conjecture. The Knight had unluckily exposed to view the plotting

But Talgol, who had long suppress'd
 685 Inflamed Wrath in glowing Breast,
 Which now began to rage and burn as Implacably as Flame in Furnace;
 Thus answer'd him: Thou Vermin wretched
 As e'er in measled Pork was hatched;
 690 Thou Tail of Worship, that dost grow
 On Rump of Justice as of Cow;
 How dar'st thou with that sullen Luggage
 O' th' self, old Ir'n, and other Baggage,
 With which thy Steed of Bones and Leather plotting Designs of his Party, which gave Talgol an opportunity to vent his natural inclination to ridicule them: this confirms me in an opinion, that he was then a Loyalist, notwithstanding what Sir R. L'Estrange has asserted to the contrary. (Mr. B.)

ψ. 690. Thou Tail of Worship.] A home Reflection upon the Justices of the Peace in those times: many of which, as has been observed, were of the Lowest Rank of the People: (and the Best probably were Butchers, Carpenters, Horse-keepers, as some have been within our memory) and very applicable would the words of Notch the Brewer's Clerk to the Groom of the Revels (Ben. Johnson's Masque of Augurs, Works, p. 82.) have been to many of the Worshipful ones of those times. "Sure by your Language, you were never meant for a Courtier; howsoever it hath been your ill-fortune to have been taken out of the Nest young, you are some Constable's Egg, some Widgin of Authority, you are so easily offended." (See Miramont's Treatment of his Brother Brisac the Justice; Beaumont and Fletcher's Elder Brother, act 2. sc. 1.) and as they made such mean Persons Justices of the Peace, that they might more easily govern them; Cromwell afterwards took the same method in his Choice of High Sheriffs, whom he appointed from Yeomen, or the lowest Tradesmen, that he could confide in; the expence of Retinue and treating the Judges being taken away. (Heath's Chronicle, p. 401.)

ψ. 695. Is lamed, and tir'd in halting hither.] Thus it stands in the two Irish Editions of 1663.

But Mr. Butler designed this probably as a sneer upon the Assembly of Divines, and some of their curious and subtle Debates: For which our Poet has lash'd them in another Work. Mr. Selden (says he, Remains, 2^d edit. 1727, p. 226.) "visits the Assembly, as Persians used to see Wild Asses fight: when the Commons have tired him with their New Law, these Brethren refresh him with their Mad Gospel: they lately were gravelled betwixt Jerusalem and Jericho, they knew not the distance betwixt those two Places; one cry'd Twenty miles, another Ten. It was concluded Seven for this reason, that Fish was brought from Jericho to Jerusalem Market: Mr. Selden smiled and said, Perhaps the Fish was Salt-Fish, and so stopp'd their mouths." And as to their Annotations, many of them were no better than Peter Harrison's, who observed of the Two Tables of Stone, That they were made of Shittim Wood. [Umbra Comitior. &c. p. 7.]

But Pallas came in shape of Rust,—And 'twixt the Spring and Hammer thrust—Her Gorgon Shield —] This and another Passage in this Canto, are the only Places where Deities are introduced in this Poem: as it was not intended for an Epic Poem, consequently none of the Heroes in it needed supernatural Assistance: how then comes Pallas to be ushered in here, and Mars afterwards? probably to ridicule Homer and Virgil, whose Heroes scarce perform any action, (even the most feasible) without the sensible Aid of a Deity: and to manifest that it was not the want of Abilities, but Choice, that made our Poet avoid such Subterfuges; he has given us a Sample of his Judgment in this way of Writing in the Passage before us, which taken in it's naked Meaning—is only—That the Knight's Pistol was for want of use grown so rusty, that it would not fire, or, in other words, that the Rust was the cause of his Disappointment (Mr. B.)  But Talgol first with hardy Thwack
 Twice bruis'd his Head, and twice his Back,
 But when his nut-brown Sword was out,
 With Stomach huge he laid about,

 His mortal Foe, the Truncheon.
 The trusty Cudgel did oppose

ψ. 970, 971.—But first our Care—Must see how Hudibras doth fare.] Ralpho was at this time too much concerned for his Master, to hold long disputation with the Fidler: he leaves him therefore to assist the Knight, who lay senseless. This passage may be compared with a Parallel one in the Iliad, B. 15. Apollo finds Hector insensible, lying near a Stream, he revives him and animates him with his former Vigour; but withal, asks, How he came into that disconsolate condition? Hector answers, that he had almost been stunn'd to the Shades, by a Blow from Ajax. The Comparison I would make between them is, That Hector does not return to himself in so lively a manner as Hudibras, and this is the more wonderful, because Hector was assisted by a Deity, and Hudibras only by a Servant.

There Hector seated by the Stream, he sees
 His Sense returning, with the coming Breeze;
 Again his Pulses beat, his Spirits rise,
 Again his lov'd Companions meet his Eyes!
 The fainting Hero, as the Vision bright
 Stood shining o'er him half unseal'd his sight;
 What blest Immortal, what commanding Breast
 Thus awakens Hector from the Sleep of Death?
 Ev'n yet, methinks, the gliding Ghosts I spy,
 And Hell's black Horrors swim before my Eye.

 days before, had lost a Leg (unknown to Madaillan) by a Cannon-Ball, before Puicerda. The Marquis accepted the Challenge, and promised the next Morning early to fix both the Time and Place :
 at which time he sent a Surgeon to Madaillan, desired he would give him leave to cut off one of his Legs : intimating by his Operator, that he knew, " That he was too much a Gentleman to fight him
 " at an Advantage ; and as he had lost a Leg in Battle, he desired
 " he might be put in the same Condition, and then he would fight
 " him at his own Weapons." But the Report coming to the ears of

 To keep him Prisoner of War ;
 And let him fast in Bonds abide,
 At Court of Justice to be try'd ;
 1080 Where if h' appear so bold or crafty,
 There may be Danger in his Safety :
 If any Member there dislike
 His Face, or to his Beard have pique :
 Or if his Death will save or yield,

ψ. 1085. Revenge or fright, it is reveal'd.] When the Rebels had taken a Prisoner, though they gave him Quarter, and promised to save his Life, yet if any of them afterwards thought it not proper that he should be saved ; it was only saying, It was reveal'd to him that such a one should die, and they hang'd him up, notwithstanding the Promises before made. (Dr. B.) Dr. South observes, (Sermons vol. 2. p. 394.) of Harrison the Regicide, a Butcher by profession, and preaching Colonel in the Parliament Army : " That he was notable for having kill'd several after Quarter given by others, using these Words " in doing it : Cursed be he who doth the Work of the Lord negligently : " and our Histories abound with instances of the Barbarities of O. Cromwell and his Officers at Drogheda, and other Places in Ireland, after Quarter given. (See Appendix to Lord Clarendon's History of the Rebellion and Civil Wars of Ireland, in 8^o) And though I cannot particularly charge Sir Samuel Luke in this respect ; yet there is one remarkable Instance of his malicious and revengeful Temper, in the Case of Mr. Thorne, Minister of St. Cuthbert's in Bedford, who got the the better of him in the Star Chamber. (See Mercurius Rusticus, No 4, p. 47.) The Royalists were far from acting in this manner. I beg leave to insert a remarkable Instance or two, for the Reader's Satisfaction. Upon the storming of Howley-House in Yorkshire, an Officer had given Quarter to the Governor, contrary to the Orders of the General, William Duke of Newcastle, General of all the Northern Forces: and having received a check from him for so doing, he resolved then to kill him: which the General would not suffer; saying, "It was ungenerous to kill any Man in cold Blood." (See The Life of William Duke of Newcastle, by his Dutcheſs, 1667. p. 29, 30.) Nor was the Behaviour of the gallant Marquis of Montrose less generous, who being importuned to retaliate the barbarous Murdering his Friends, upon such enemies as were his Prisoners, he absolutely refused to comply with the Proposals. (See his Reasons, Monteth's Hist. of the Troubles of Great Britain, edit. 1739. p. 232, 233.

y. 1094, 1095. Like Sampson's Cuffs, tho' by his own.—Direction and Advice put on.] See this explained, Judges 15th chapter.

y. 1096, 1097. For if we should fight for the Cause—By Rules of Military Laws, &c.] It has already been observ'd, what little Honour they had in this respect. Even the Mahometan Arabians might have shamed these worse than Mahometans, "who were such strict observers
 " of their Parole, that if any one in the heat of Battle kill'd one, to " whom the Rai, or Parole was given, he was by the Law of the " Arabians

1100 This we among ourselves may speak ;
 But to the Wicked or the Weak,
 We must be cautious to declare
Perfection-Truths, such as these are.

This said, the high outrageous Mettle
 1105 Of Knight began to cool and settle.
 He lik'd the Squire's Advice, and soon
 Resolv'd to see the Business done :
 And therefore charg'd him first to bind
Crowdero's Hands on Rump behind,
 1110 And to its former Place and Use,
 The wooden Member to reduce :
 But force it take an Oath before,
Ne'er to bear Arms against him more,
Ralpho dispatch'd with speedy Haste,
 1115 And having ty'd Crowdero fast,

“ Arabians punished with Death.” (Prince Cantemir's Growth of the Ottoman Empire, 1734, p. 166.)

ψ. 1112. Force it to take an Oath.] When the Rebels released a Prisoner taken in their Wars, which they seldom did, without Exchange or Ransom (except he was a Stranger) they obliged him to swear not to bear Arms against them any more : tho' the Rebels in the like Case, were now and then absolved from their Oaths, by their wicked and hypocritical Clergy. When the King had discharged all the common Soldiers that were taken Prisoners at Brentford (excepting such as had voluntarily offer'd to serve him) upon their Oaths, that they would no more bear Arms against his Majesty : Two of their Camp Chaplains Dr. Downing, and Mr. Marshall, for the better recruiting the Parliament Army, publicly avow'd, “ That the Soldiers taken at Brentford, and discharged, and released “ by the King upon their Oaths, That they would never again bear “ Arms against him ; were not obliged by that Oath, but by their

He gave Sir Knight the End of Cord
 To lead the Captive of his Sword
 In Triumph, whilst the Steeds he caught,
 And them to further Service brought.
 1120 The Squire in State rode on before,
 And on his nut-brown Wineyard bore
 The Trophee-Fiddle and the Cafe,
 Leaning on Shoulder like a Mace.
 The Knight himself did after ride,
 1125 Leading Crowdero by his Side ;
 And tow'd him, if he lagg'd behind,
 Like Boat against the Tide and Wind.
 Thus grave and solemn they march on,
 Until quite thro' the Town th' had gone ;
 1130 At further End of which there stands
 An Ancient Castle, that commands,

“ Power they absolved them thereof : and so engaged again these miserable Wretches, in a second Rebellion.” (See Lord Clarendon's History, &c. vol. 2. p. 62. Echard, vol. 2. p. 366.) These wicked Wretches, acted not much unlike Pope Hildebrand, or Gregory VII, who absolved all from their Oaths to Persons Excommunicate. Nos eos qui Excommunicatis fidelitate & sacramento constricti sunt, Apostolicâ Autoritate Juramento absolvimus, Greg. 7. Pont. apud Grat. caus. 15. q. 6. Had these pretenders to Sanctity, but consider'd in how honourable a manner the old Heathen Romans behaved on such occasions, they would have found sufficient Reason to have been ashamed : for the late ingenious Mr. Addison informs us, (Freeholder, N^o 6. p. 33.) “ That several Romans, that had been taken Prisoners, “ by Hannibal, were released, by obliging themselves by an Oath “ to return again to his Camp. Among these, there was one, who “ thinking to elude the Oath, went the same Day back to the Camp, “ on pretence of having forgot something : but this Prevarication “ was so shocking to the Roman Senate, that they ordered him to be “ apprehended, and deliver'd up to Hannibal.”

 There's neither Iron-Bar nor Gate,
 Porcullis, Chain, nor Bolt, nor Grate,
 And yet Men Durance there abide,
 In Dungeon scarce three Inches wide;
 1140 With Roof so low, that under it
 They never stand, but lie or sit;
 And yet so foul, that who so is in,
 Is to the Middle-leg in Prison;
 In Circle magical confin'd,
 1145 With Walls of subtile Air and Wind;
 Which none are able to break thorough,
 Until they're freed by Head of Borough.
 Thither arriv'd, th' advent'rous Knight

§. 1131. An Ancient Castle,] This is an Enigmatical Description of a pair of Stocks and Whipping-Post; it is so pompous and sublime, that we are surpriz'd so noble a Structure could be rais'd from so ludicrous a Subject; we perceive Wit and Humour in the strongest light in every part of the Description; and how happily imagined is the pun in §. 1143? How Ceremonious are the Conquerors in displaying the Trophies of their Victory, and imprisoning the unhappy Captive? What a dismal figure does he make at the dark Prospect before him? All these Circumstances were necessary to be fully exhibited,

For though the Body may creep through,
 1155 The Hands in Grate are fast enough.
 And when a Circle 'bout the Wrist
 Is made by Beadle Exorcist,
 The Body feels the Spur and Switch,
 As if 'twere ridden Post by Witch,
 1160 At twenty Miles an Hour Pace,
 And yet ne'er stirs out of the Place.
 On Top of this there is a Spire,
 On which Sir Knight first bids the Squire,
 The Fiddle, and its Spoils, the Cafe,
 1165 In manner of a Trophée place.
 That done, they ope the Trap-door-gate,
 And let Crowdero down thereat,
Crowdero making doleful Face,
 Like Hermit poor in pensive place,
 1170 To Dungeon they the Wretch commit,
 And the Survivor of his Feet:
 But th' other that had broke the Peace,
 And Head of Knighthood, they release,
 Though a Delinquent false and forged,
 1175 Yet b'ing a Stranger, he's enlarged;

hibited, that the Reader might commiserate his favourite Knight, when a change of Fortune unhappily brought him into Crowdero's Place. (Mr. B.)

ψ. 1175. Yet being a Stranger he's enlarg'd.] Alluding to the Cafe probably of Sir Bernard Gascoign, who was condemn'd at Colchester with Sir Charles Lucas, and Sir George Lisle, and was respited from Execution, being an Italian and a Person of some Interest in his Country. (Lord Clarendon's History, vol. 3. p. 137. Echard, vol. 2. p. 606.)

ψ. 1178,

While his Comrade, that did no Hurt,
Is clapp'd up fast in Prison for't.
*So Justice, while she winks at Crimes,
Stumbles on Innocence sometimes.*

ŷ. 1178, 1179. *So Justice, while she winks at Crimes,

This is an unquestionable Truth, and follows very naturally upon the Reflection on Crowdero's real Leg, suffering this Confinement for the fault of his wooden one. The Poet afterwards produces another Case to support this assertion; to which the Reader is refer'd, part 2. canto 2. ŷ. 407. &c. (Mr. B.) See Sham Second Part, 1663, p. 59.

Y. 16. Thanksgiving-Day among the Churches.] The Rebellious Parliament were wont to order Public Thanksgivings in their Churches, for every little Advantage obtain'd in any small Skirmish: and the Preachers (or Holders-forth, as he properly enough styles them) would in their Prayers, and Sermons, very much enlarge upon the Subject, multiply the Number slain, and taken Prisoners, to a very high degree; and most highly extoll the Leader for his Valour and Conduct. (Dr. B.)

A remarkable Instance of this kind we meet with, in the Prayers of Mr. George Swatbe, Minister of Denham in Suffolk: who, notwithstanding the King's Success against the Earl of Essex, in taking Banbury Castle, (See Echard's History of England, vol. 2. p. 358.) takes the Liberty in his Prayers, p. 40. “of praising God's Providence, for giving the Earl of Essex Victory over the King's Army, “and routing him at Banbury, and getting the Spoil.” Many Instances of this kind are to be met with in the public Sermons before the Two Houses.

ŷ. 20.—of Diurnal.] The News Paper then printed every day in favour of the Rebels, was called a Diurnal: of which is the following merry Account, in Mr. Cleveland's Character of a London Diurnal, publish'd 1644. p. 1. "A Diurnal (says he) is a puny Chronicle, scarce pen-feather'd with the Wings of Time. It is a History in Sippets, the English Iliad in a Nut-shell, the True Apocryphal Parliament-Book of Maccabees, in Single Sheets. It would tire a Welch Pedigree to reckon how many Aps 'tis remov'd from an Annal; for 'tis of that Extract, only of the Younger House, like a Sbrimp to a Lobster: The Original Sinner of this Kind was Dutch, Gallo-belgicus the Protoplast, and the Modern Mercuries but Hans en Kelders. The Countess of Zealand was brought to Bed of an Almanack, as many Children as Days of the Year; it may be, the Legislative Lady is of that Lineage: so She spawns the Diurnals, and they of Westminster take them in Adoption, by the Names of Scoticus, Civicus, and Britannicus. In the Frontispiece of the Old Beldam Diurnal, like the Contents of the Chapter, fits the House of Commons judging the Twelve Tribes of Israel: You may call them the Kingdom's Anatomy, before the Weekly Kalendar. For such is a Diurnal; the Day of the Month, with the Weather in the Commonwealth: 'tis taken for the Pulse of the Body Politick; and the Empyric Divines of the Assembly, those Spiritual Dragooners, thumb it accordingly. Indeed, it is a pretty Synopsis, and those grave Rabbies (though in point of Divinity) trade in no larger Authors. The Country Carrier, when he buys it for their Vicar, mis-calls it the Urinal, yet properly enough: for it calls the Water of the State, ever since it staled Blood. It differs from an Aulicus as the Devil and his Exorcist; as a Black Witch does from a White one, whose Business it is to unravel her Inchantments."

25 For now the late faint-hearted Rout,
 O'erthrown and scatter'd round about,
 Chac'd by the Horror of their Fear,
 From bloody Fray of Knight and Bear,
 (All but the Dogs, who in Pursuit
 30 Of the Knight's Victory stood to't,
 And most ignobly fought, to get,
 The Honour of his Blood and Sweat)
 Seeing the Coast was free and clear
 O' the conquer'd and the Conqueror,
 35 Took Heart again, and fac'd about,
 As if they meant to stand it out:
 For by this Time the routed Bear,
 Attack'd by th' Enemy i' th' Rear,
 Finding their Number grew too great
 40 For him to make a safe Retreat,
 Like a bold Chieftain fac'd about;
 But wisely doubting to hold out,
 Gave way to Fortune, and with Haste
 Fac'd the proud Foe, and fled, and fac'd;
 45 Retiring still, until he found
 H' had got th' Advantage of the Ground; by way of Consolation, (see vol. 4. p. 729.) he told his Master, "That " nothing was more common in Errantry Books, than for Knights

 " every foot to be jostled out of the Saddle; that there was nothing
 " but Ups and Downs in this World, and he that's cast down to-day,
 " may be cock-a-hoop to-morrow."

 byterian Commanders*, against the Independents, when the Self-denying Ordinance had brought in the one, to the Exclusion of the other.

And then as valiantly made Head,
 To check the Foe, and forthwith fled;
 Leaving no Art untry'd, nor Trick
 50 Of Warrior stout and politick;
 Until, in spight of hot Pursuit,
 He gain'd a Pass, to hold Dispute
 On better Terms, and stop the Course
 Of the proud Foe. With all his Force
 55 He bravely charg'd, and for a while Forc'd their whole Body to recoil;
 But still their Numbers so increas'd,
 He found himself at length oppress'd,
 And all Evasions so uncertain,
 60 To save himself for better Fortune;
 That he resolv'd, rather than yield,
 To die with Honour in the Field,
 And sell his Hide and Carcase at
 A Price as high and desperate
 65 As e'er he could. This Resolution
 He forthwith put in Execution,
 And bravely threw himself among
 The Enemy i' th' greatest Throng,

 His Rear was suddenly inclos'd;
 And no Room left him for Retreat,

But Widdrington in doleful Dumps, When's Legs were off, fought on his Stumps.

Mr. Hearne has printed the Ballad of Chevy Chase, or Battle of Ot-terbourn (which was fought in the Twelfth year of the Reign of King Richard

In th' Enemy, that one should beard
 So many Warriors, and so stout,
 As he had done, and stav'd it out,
 Disdaining to lay down his Arms,
 90 And yield on honourable Terms.
 Enraged thus, some in the Rear
 Attack'd him, and some ev'ry-where,
 Till down he fell; yet falling fought,
 And, being down, still laid about:
 95 As Widdrington in doleful Dumps,
 Is said to fight upon his Stumps.
 But all, alas! had been in vain,
 And he inevitably slain,
 If Trulla and Cerdon in the nick,
 100 To rescue him, had not been quick:
 For Trulla, who was light of Foot,
 As Shafts which long-field Parthians shoot,

Richard II. 1388. Stowe's Chronicle, p. 304.) from an older Copy, in which are the two following Lines:

*Sir Wetheryngton, my heart was Woe, that euer he slayne

 For when his Legges were bewyne into, he knyld, and fought upon his Kny.*

(Præfat. ad Gul. Nubrigens. Histor. Appendix, p. 82. 87. See the Spectator's Critic upon it, vol. 1. N^o 70. 74.)

ψ. 102. As Shafts, which Long-Field Parthians shoot.] Thus it stands in the two first Editions of 1663, and I believe in all the other Editions to this time. Mr. Warburton is of opinion, That LONG FILED would be more proper; as the Parthians were ranged in Long Files, a Disposition proper for their manner of fighting, which was by sudden Retreats and sudden Charges. Mr. Smith of Harleston, in Norfolk, thinks that the following Alteration of the Line would be an improvement;

As Long Field Shafts, which Parthians shoot.

(But not so light as to be borne
 Upon the Ears of standing Corn,
 105 Or trip it o'er the Water quicker
 Than Witches, when their Staves they liquor,
 As some report) was got among
 The foremost of the martial Throng :
 There pitying the vanquish'd Bear,
 110 She call'd to Cerdon, who stood near,
 Viewing the bloody Fight ; to whom,
 Shall we (quoth she) stand still hum dum,
 And see stout Bruin all alone,
 By Numbers basely overthrown ?
 115 Such Feats already h' has atchiev'd,
 In Story not to be believ'd ;
 And 'twou'd to us be Shame enough,
 Not to attempt to fetch him off.

Which he thinks Plutarch's Description of their Bows and Arrows in the Life of Crassus, makes good : That the Arrows of old us'd in Battle, were longer than ordinary (says he) I gather from Quintus Curtius, lib. 9. chap. 5. Indus Duorum Cubitorum Sagittam ita ex- cussit, &c. and from Chevy Chase,

He had a Bow bent in his hand
Made of a trusty Yew,
An Arrow of a Cloth yard long
Unto the Head he drew.

And as Trulla was tall, the Simile has a further Beauty in it : The Arrow does not only express her Swiftnes ; but the Mind sees the Length of the Girls, in the Length of the Arrow as it flies. Might he not call them Long Field Parthians from the great Distance they shot, and did Execution with their Arrows ? The Scythians or Wild Tartars, are thus described by Ovid, (Tristium lib. 53, 54, 55, 56.)

Protinus æquato Siccis Aquilonibus Istro
Invectitur celeri Barbarus Hostis Equo :
Hostis Equo pollens, longeque volante Sagittâ,
Vicinam latè depopulatur humum.

I would (quoth he) venture a Limb
 120 To second thee, and rescue him :
 But then we must about it straight,
 Or else our Aid will come too late ;
 Quarter he scorns, he is so stout,
 And therefore cannot long hold out.
 125 This said, they wav'd their Weapons round
 About their Heads, to clear the Ground ;
 And joining Forces, laid about

 Sustain'd the Toils of Arms, the Danger sought :
 Outstripp'd the Winds in speed upon the Plain,
 Flew o'er the Fields, nor hurt the bearded Grain :
 She swept the Seas, and as she skipp'd along
 Her flying Feet unbath'd, on Billows hung.

See the Story of Ladas in Solinus, and other Writers ; and the description of Queen Zenobia, Ghaucer's Monk's Tale, Works, fol. 78.) If it was not (says Mr. Byron) for the Beauty of the Verses, that shaded the Impropriety of Camilla's Character, I doubt not but Virgil would have been as much censured for the one, as applauded for the other. Our Poet has justly avoided such monstrous Improbabilities ; nor will he attribute an incredible Swiftneſs to Trulla ; though there was an absolute Call for extraordinary Celerity, under the present Circumstances : no less occasion than to save the Bear, who was to be the Object of all the Rabble's Diversion.

 Thus cowardly? Quoth Echo, Mum.
 But what a Vengeance makes thee fly
 From me too, as thine Enemy?
 215 Or if thou hast no Thought of me,
 Nor what I have endur'd for thee,
 Yet Shame and Honour might prevail
 To keep thee thus from turning Tail:
 For who would grutch to spend his Blood in

Of Sorrow, now began to blaze.

225 He vow'd the Authors of his Woe
Should equal Vengeance undergoe;
And with their Bones and Flesh pay dear
For what he suffer'd, and his Bear.

This b'ing resolv'd, with equal speed
230 And rage he hasted to proceed
To Action straight, and giving o'er
To search for Bruin any more,
He went in quest of Hudibras,
To find him out where-e'er he was;

235 And, if he were above ground, vow'd
He'd ferret him, lurk where he wou'd.

But scarce had he a Furlong on
This resolute Adventure gone,
When he encounter'd with that Crew
240 Whom Hudibras did late subdue.

Honour, Revenge, Contempt and Shame
Did equally their Breasts inflame.

'Mong these the fierce Magnano was,
And Talgol, Foe to Hudibras:

Don Sebastian de Cobarruvias, in his Treasury of the Italian Tongue, observes, That no Man can do the Spaniards a greater Disgrace than by pulling them by the Beard; and in proof gives the following Romantic Account. 'tis observed, That the Knight's Father, Sir Oliver Luke, was decay'd in his Estate, and so was made Colonel of Horse ; but we are still ignorant, how much his hopeful Son (the Hero of this Poem) advanced it, by his beneficial Places of Colonel, Committee-man, Justice, Scout-master, and Governor of Newport-Pagnal : he fights for this Widow's Jointure, which was 200 pounds a year : but very unluckily he met with fatal Obstacles in the course of his Amours ; for she was a mere Coquet, and, what was worse for one of the Knight's Principles, a Royalist. (See part 2. canto 2. ℣. 251.) It must be a mistake in Sir Roger L'Estrange to say, She was the Widow of one Wilmot an Independent ; for Mr. Butler, who certainly knew her, observes,

*Ill has he read, That never heard
 How He wit's Widow Tomson far'd;
 And what hard Conflict was between
 Our Knight, and that insulting Quean:
 Sure Captive Knight ne'er took more pains
 For Rhymes for his melodious Strains;
 Nor Beat his Brains, nor made more Faces
 To get into a Jilt's good Graces,
 Then did Sir Hudibras to get Into this subtil Gypsey's Net, &c.*

ŷ. 398. Is spick and span new.] Mr. Ray observes, English Proverbs, 2^d edit. p. 270. That this proverbial Phrase, according to Mr. Howel, comes from Spica, an Ear of Corn: but rather (says he) as I am informed from a better Author, Spike is a sort of Nail, and Spaw the Chip of a Boat; so that it is all one as to say, every Chip and Nail is new. But I humbly am of opinion, that it rather comes from Spike, which signifies a Nail, and a Nail in Measure is the 16th part of a yard; and Span, which is in measure a quarter of a yard; or nine Inches; and all that is meant by it, when applied to a new Suit of Cloaths, is, that it has been just measured from the piece by the Nail and Span. See the expression, Ben Johnson's Bartholomew Fair, act. 3. sc. 5.

ŷ. 403. 404. And as an Owl that in a Barn—Sees a Mouse creeping in the Corn, &c.] This Simile should not pass by unregarded, because it is both just and natural: the Knight's present Case is not much different from the Owl's: their Figures are equally ludicrous, and they seem to be pretty much in the same Designs: if the Knight's
 Mouth

400 And trust thy fortune with the rest.
 Such Thoughts as these the Knight did keep
 More than his Bangs, or Fleas, from Sleep,
 And as an Owl that in a Barn
 Sees a Mouse creeping in the Corn,
 405 Sits still, and shuts his round blue Eyes,
 As if he slept, until he spies
 The little Beast within his Reach,
 Then starts, and seizes on the Wretch;
 So from his Couch the Knight did start,
 410 To seize upon the Widow's Heart,
 Crying with hasty Tone, and hoarse,
Ralpho dispatch, To Horse, To Horse.
 And 'twas but time; for now the Rout,
 We left engag'd to seek him out,

Mouth waters at the Widow, so does the Owl's at the Mouse; and the Knight was forming as deep a Plot to seize the Widow's Heart, as the Owl to surprise the Mouse; and the Knight starts up with as much Briskness at the Widow, as the Owl does to secure his Prey. This Simile therefore exactly answers the business of one, which is to illustrate one thing by comparing it to another: If it be objected, That it is drawn from a low Subject; it may be reply'd, that Similes are not always to be drawn from noble and lofty Themes: for if they were, how would those Similes, of Boys surrounding an Ass in Homer, (Iliad 11.) and of whipping a Top in Virgil, (Æn. 7.) be defended? If such are allowable in Epic Poetry, much more are they in Burlesque. I could subjoin two Similies out of Homer suitable to the Knight's Case, but it might seem too pedantic; and yet I cannot end this Note, without observing a fine Imitation of our Poet's Simile, in Philips's Splendid Shilling:

—so Poets sing
Grimalkin, to Domestic Vermin sworn
An everlasting Foe, with watchful Eye
Lies nightly brooding o'er a chinky Gap,
Protending her fell Claws, to thoughtless Mice
Sure Ruine —

 And Ralpho that on which he rid,
 When setting ope the Postern Gate,
 Which they thought best to sally at,
 445 The Foe appear'd, drawn up and drill'd,
 Ready to charge them in the Field.
 This somewhat startled the bold Knight,
 Surpriz'd with th' unexpected Sight :
 The Bruises of his Bones and Flesh
 450 He thought began to smart afresh :
 Till recollecting wonted Courage,
 His Fear was soon converted to Rage,
 And thus he spoke : The Coward Foe,
 Whom we but now gave Quarter to,
 455 Look, yonder's rally'd, and appears,
 As if they had out-run their Fears ;
 The Glory we did lately get,

 Fear is an Ague, that forsakes

Before his Engagement with the Carriers, part 1. b. 1. chap. 3. p. 23. before his Engagement with the Wind-Mills, chap. 8. p. 64. when he was going to engage the Biscayan Squire, he cry'd out aloud, (part 1. b. 1. chap. 5. p. 72.) the Barber. Mr. Jarvis says, in the Life of Michael de Cervantes de Saavedra, prefix'd to Don Quixote, 1742. p. 9. "In order to animate themselves the more, says the old Collection of Spanish Laws, (see the 22^d Law, tit. 21. part 2.) they held it a Noble Thing to call upon the Names of their Mistresses, that their Hearts might swell with an increase of Courage, and their Shame be the greater, if they failed in their Attempts."

✓. 491, 492, 493, 494. When Orsin first let fly a Stone — At Ralpho; not so great a one — As that which Diomed did maul — Æneas on the Bum withal. Here is another Evidence of that Air of Truth and Probability which is kept up by Mr. Butler, through this Poem; he would by no means have his Readers fancy the same Strength and Activity in Orsin, which Homer ascribes to Diomed: for which Reason he alludes to the following Passage in the fifth Iliad. l. 304, &c.

Ὅ δ' ἐπεμύαδ' ἰόν λείβε' ἄλκιρον
 Τυδείδης, &c.

Then

495 Yet big enough, if rightly hurl'd,
 T' have sent him to another World,
 Whether above-ground, or below,
 Which Saints twice dipt are destin'd to.
 The Danger startled the bold Squire,
 500 And made him some few steps retire.
 But Hudibras advanc'd to's Aid,
 And rouz'd his Spirits half dismay'd:
 He wisely doubting lest the Shot
 Of th' Enemy, now growing hot,
 505 Might at a distance gall, press'd close,
 To come pell-mell to handy Blows,
 And that he might their Aim decline,
 Advanc'd still in an oblique Line;
 But prudently forbore to fire,
 510 Till Breast to Breast he had got nigher;

*Then fierce Tydides stoops, and from the Fields
 Heav'd with vast force, a rocky Fragment wields;
 Not two Strong Men th' enormous Weight cou'd raise,
 Such Men as live in these degenerate days.
 He swung it round, and gathering strength to throw,
 Discharg'd the pond'rous Ruins at the Foe;
 Where to the Hip the inserted Thigh unites
 Full on the Bone the pointed Marble lights,
 Thro' both the Tendons broke the rugged Stone,
 And strip'd the Skin, and crack'd the solid Bone:
 Sunk on his knees, and stagg'ring with his pains,
 His falling bulk his bended Arm sustains:
 Lost in a dirty mist, the Warrior lies,
 A sudden Cloud comes swimming o'er his Eyes.*

Mr. Pope.

Vid. Virgil, Æneid. 1. 101. &c. Juvenal, sat. 15. 65, &c.

Unfortunate Æneas! it seems to be his Fate to be thus attack'd by his Enemies: Turnus also wields a piece of a Rock at him, which Virgil says, Twelve Men could hardly raise; tho' the Consequences are not so dismal as in Homer.

Nec

As expert Warriors use to do,
 When Hand to Hand they charge their Foe.
 This Order the advent'rous Knight,
 Most Soldier-like, observ'd in Fight,
 515 When Fortune (as she's wont) turn'd fickle,
 And for the Foe began to stickle.
 The more Shame for her Goody-ship
 To give so near a Friend the Slip.
 For Colon, chusing out a Stone,
 520 Levell'd so right, it thump'd upon
 His manly Panch with such a Force,
 As almost beat him off his Horse.
 He loos'd his Whinyard, and the Rein;
 But laying fast hold on the Mane,
 525 Preserv'd his Seat: And as a Goose
 In Death contracts his Talons close,

Nec plura effatus, Saxum circumspicit ingens,
 Saxum antiquum, ingens, campo quod forte jacebat
 Limes agro positus, litem ut discerneret arvis,
 Vix illud lecti bis sex cervice subirent,
 Qualia nunc Hominum producit corpora Tellus. Æn. 11. 896.

ψ. 497, 498. Whether above ground, or below,—Which Saints twice dipt are destin'd to.] Mr. Abraham Wright in the Preface to his Five Sermons, in Five several Styles, or Ways of Preaching, 1656, p. 1. (penes me) speaks of some Chymical Professors of Religion in those times, that had been twice dipt, but never baptiz'd.

ψ. 509, 510, 511. But prudently forbore to fire—Till Breast to Breast he had got nigher;—As expert Warriors us'd to do.] Alluding to O. Cromwell's prudent Conduct in this respect, who seldom suffered his Soldiers to fire, till they were near enough to do execution upon the Enemy. See Sir Tho. Fairfax's Short Memorial, by himself, publish'd 1699, p. 9.

ψ. 523. He loos'd his Whinyard.] Thus it stands in the first Editions of 1663, alter'd 1674 to He loos'd his Weapon; so it continued to 1700. alter'd 1704 to He lost his Whyniard.

So did the Knight, and with one Claw
 The Tricker of his Pistol draw.
 The Gun went off: And, as it was,
 530 Still fatal to stout Hudibras,
 In all its Feats of Arms, when least
 He dreamt of it, to prosper best;
 So now he far'd: The Shot let fly
 At Random 'mong the Enemy,
 535 Pierc'd Talgol's Gabberdine, and grazing
 Upon his Shoulder, in the passing,
 Lodg'd in Magnano's brass Habergeon,
 Who straight, A Surgeon, cry'd, A Surgeon:

†. 533, 534. — The Shot let fly, — At random, 'mong the Enemy.] Hudibras's Pistol was out of order, as is before observ'd by Mr. Butler: and 'tis certain, that he was not so expert a Marksmán as the Scotch Dowglass, (see Shakespeare's Henry the Fourth, First part, act 2. p. 386.) of whom Prince Henry made the following Observation, "He that rides at High Speed, and with a Pistol kills a Sparrow flying:" or Prince Rupert, who at Stafford, in the time of the Rebellion, standing in Captain Richard Sneyd's Garden, at about Sixty yards distance, made a shot at the Weathercock upon the Steeple of the Collegiate Church of Saint Mary, with a screw'd Horseman's Pistol, and single Bullet, which pierc'd its Tail, the Hole plainly appearing to all that were below: which the King presently judg'd as a Casualty only. The Prince presently prov'd the contrary by a second Shot to the same effect. (Dr. Plot's Staffordshire, ch. 9. f. 9. p. 336.)

†. 535. — Gabberdine.] Galverdine in French, (see Cotgrave's Dictionary) A Shepherd's coarse Frock or Coat. A word often used by Romance Writers, and among the rest by the Translator of Amadis de Gaul. Shylock the Jew speaking to Antonio, (see Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice, act 1.) says,

*You call'd me Misbeliever, Cut-throat Dog,
 And spit upon my Jewish Gaberdine,
 And all for use of that, which is my own.*

†. 537. Lodg'd in Magnano's brass Habergeon.] Habergeon, a little Coat of Mail, or only Sleeves and Gorget of Mail. (See Dictionary to the last Edition of Guillim's Heraldry.)

He tumbled down, and, as he fell,
 540 Did Murthber, Murthber, Murthber yell.
 This startled their whole body so,
 That if the Knight had not let go
 His Arms, but been in warlike Plight:
 H' had won (the second time) the Fight.
 545 As, if the Squire had but fall'n on,
 He had inevitably done.
 But he diverted with the Care
 Of Hudibras his hurt, forbare
 To prefs th' Advantage of his Fortune,
 550 While Danger did the rest dishearten.
 For he with Cerdon b'ing engag'd
 In close Encounter, they both wag'd

*Some would been arm'd in a Habergeon,
 And in a Breast-plate with a light Gippion.*

ψ. 538. Who straight, A Surgeon, cry'd, A Surgeon.] See the Case of Monfieur Thomas, and Hylas, Fletcher's Comedy intitled, Monfieur Thomas, act 3. sc. 3. when the first thought his Leg broke in twenty pieces, and the latter that his Skull was broke. Magnano seems not to be so courageous as the Sea Captain, who (for his Courage in a former Engagement where he had lost a Leg) was prefer'd to the Command of a good Ship: In the next Engagement, a Cannon Ball took of his Wooden Deputy, so that he fell upon the Deck: A Seaman thinking he had been fresh wounded, call'd out to carry him down to the Surgeon — He swore at him, and said, Call the Carpenter, you Dog, I have no occasion for a Surgeon.

ψ. 545. As, if the Squire.] In the two first Editions, for this and the three following Lines, these two are used,

*As Ralpho might, but he with Care
 Of Hudibras his Hurt forbare.*

In 1674 Hudibras his Wound, to 1704 exclusive.

ψ. 551. He had with Cerdon, &c.] 1674 to 1704 exclusive.

The Fight so well, 'twas hard to say
 Which Side was like to get the Day.
 555 And now the busy Work of Death
 Had tir'd them so, th' agreed to breath,
 Preparing to renew the Fight;
 When the Disaster of the Knight
 And th' other Party did divert 560 Their fell Intent, and forc'd them part.
Ralpho press'd up to Hudibras,
 And Cerdon where Magnano was;
 Each striving to confirm his Party
 With stout Encouragements and hearty.
 565 Quoth Ralpho, Courage, valiant Sir,
 And let Revenge and Honour stir,
 Your Spirits up, once more fall on,
 The shatter'd Foe begins to run:
 For if but half so well you knew
 570 To use your Victory as subdue,
 They durst, not after such a Blow
 As you have given them, face us now;
 But from so formidable a Soldier

℣. 553. So desperately,] 1674, &c.

℣. 560. And force their sullen Rage to part.] Thus alter'd 1674, to 1704 exclusive.

℣. 569, 570. But if but half so well you knew—To use your Victory as subdue.] A Sneer probably upon Prince Rupert, who in the Battle of Marston Moor, charg'd General Fairfax's Forces with so much Fury and Resolution, that he broke them, and the Scots their Re- serve; but, to his own Ruin, pursued them too far, according to his usual Fate, Echard's History of England, vol. 2. p. 480.

℣. 573, 574. But from so formidable a Soldier—Had fled like Crows, when they smell Powder.] Dr. Plot seems to be of opinion, That

Had fled like Crows when they smell Powder :
 575 Thrice have they seen your Sword aloft
 Wav'd o'er their Heads, and fled as oft.
 But if you let them recollect
 Their Spirits, now dismay'd and check'd,
 You'll have a harder Game to play
 580 Than yet y' have had, to get the Day.

Thus spake the stout Squire; but was heard
 By Hudibras with small Regard.
 His Thoughts were fuller of the Bang
 He lately took, than Ralph's Harangue ;
 585 To which he answer'd, Cruel Fate
 Tells me thy Counsel comes too late.
 The knotted Blood within my Hose,
 That from my wounded Body flows,
 With mortal Crisis doth portend
 590 My Days to appropinque an End ;
 I am for action now unfit,
 Either of Fortitude or Wit.
Fortune my Foe begins to frown,
 Resolv'd to pull my Stomach down.

That Crows smell Powder at some distance. " If the Crows (says
 " he, Natural History of Oxfordshire, chap. 9. sect. 98.) are towards
 " Harvest any thing mischievous, destroying the Corn, in the out" ward limits of the Fields, they dig a Hole, narrow at the bottom,
 " and broad on the top in the Green-swarth near the Corn, wherein
 " they put Dust and Cinders, mix'd with a little Gun-powder, and " about the Holes stick Crows Feathers, which they find about Bur-
 " ford to have good success."

ψ. 587. The knotted Blood.] Thus it is in all Editions to 1710, and then alter'd to Clotted Blood.

595 I am not apt upon a Wound
 Or trivial Basting to despond :
 Yet I'd be loth my Days to curtal :
 For if I thought my Wounds not mortal,
 Or that we'd time enough as yet
 600 To make an honourable Retreat ;
 'Twere the best Course : but if they find
 We fly and leave our Arms behind,
 For them to seize on ; the Dishonour,
 And Danger too, is such, I'll sooner
 605 Stand to it boldly and take Quarter,
 To let them see I am no Starter.
 In all the Trade of War, no Feat
 Is nobler than a brave Retreat :

ψ. 597.—Curtal.] in all Editions to 1704 inclusive.

ψ. 607, 608, 609, 610. In all the Trade of War no Feat—Is nobler than a brave Retreat :—For those that run away and fly—Take place at least o' th' Enemy.] The Rev^d and ingenious Mr. Tho. Herring, (Fellow of Ben. College in Cambridge, and Chaplain to his Grace the Lord Archbishop of York, to whom I am under obligations,) sent me the following French Translation of these four Verses, and ψ. 243, 244, 245, 246, &c. of part 3. canto 3. which were presented by Mr. Wharton, Chaplain to a Regiment in Flanders, to Prince Eugene.:

Ne laissez pas toujours de vous mettre en tête
 De faire à propos une belle Retraite,
 La quelle, croyez moi, est le plus grand Mystere
 De la bonne conduite, et de l'Art Militaire :
 Car ceux, qui s'enfuyent, peuvent revenir sur les pas,
 Ainsi ne sont jamais mis hors de Combat ;
 Mais ceux, au contraire, qui demeurent sur la place,
 Se privent de tout moin de venger leur disgrâce ;
 Et lors qu' on se mette en devoir s' enfuir,
 L' ennemi tout aussi-tot s'efforce à courir ;
 Et par la le Combat se changeant en Pour suite,
 Ils gagnent la Victoire qui courent le plus vite.

For those that run away, and fly,
610 Take Place at least of th' Enemy.

This said, the Squire with active Speed
Dismounted from his bonny Steed,
To seize the Arms, which by mischance
Fell from the bold Knight in a Trance:

615 These being found out, and restor'd
To Hudibras, their natural Lord,
As a Man may say, with Might and Main
He hasted to get up again.

Thrice he essay'd to mount aloft,
620 But, by his weighty Bum, as oft
He was pull'd back, 'till having found
Th' advantage of the rising Ground,

ψ. 609, 610. not in the two first Edit. of 1663. but added in 1674.

ψ. 617. The active Squire with Might and Main Prepar'd in haste to mount again.]

Thus alter'd 1674, restor'd 1704.

ψ. 617. As a Man may say.] A Sneer upon the Expletives used by some Men in their common Conversation: Some very remarkable ones I have heard of, as, Mark y' me there, This, and That, and T' other, Thing; and To dint, to don't, to do't; D'y' bear me, d'y' see, that is, and so Sir, (Spectator N^o 371. see his banter upon Mrs. Jane for her Mrs. Such a one, and Mr. What d' y' call, N^o 272.)

Mr. Gayton, in banter of Sancho Pancha's Expletives (Notes upon Don Quixote, book 3. p. 105.) produces a remarkable instance, of a Reverend Judge, who was to give a Charge at an Assize, which was performed with great Gravity, had it not been interlarded with In that kind: as, “Gentlemen of the Jury, You ought to enquire after Recusants in that kind, and such as do frequent the Church in that kind; but above all, such as haunt Ale-houses in that kind, notorious Whoremasters in that kind, Drunkards and Blasphemers in that kind; and all notorious Offenders in that kind, are to be presented in that kind, and as the Laws in that kind direct, must be proceeded against in that kind.”——A Gentleman being asked, after the Court rose, how he liked the Judge's Charge? answer'd, That it was the best of that kind that ever he heard,

Thither he led his warlike Steed,
 And having plac'd him right, with speed
 625 Prepar'd again to scale the Beast;
 When Orsin, who had newly drest
 The bloody Scar upon the Shoulder
 Of Talgol, with Promethean Powder,
 And now was searcking for the Shot
 630 That laid Magnano on the Spot,
 Beheld the sturdy Squire aforesaid
 Preparing to climb up his Horse-side;
 He left his Cure, and laying hold
 Upon his Arms, with Courage bold,
 635 Cry'd out, 'Tis now no time to dally,
 The Enemy begin to rally:
 Let us that are unhurt and whole
 Fall on, and happy Man be's Dole.
 This said, like to a Thunderbolt
 640 He flew with Fury to th' Assault,
 Striving th' Enemy to attack

ψ. 638.——— And Happy Man be's Dole.] An Expression often used by Shakespear. Slender (See Merry Wives of Windsor, vol. 1. Edit. 1733.) speaks as follows to Mrs. Ann Page: "Truly for my own part, I would little or nothing with you; your Father and my Uncle have made Motions; If it be my luck, so; If not, Happy Man be's Dole:" Taming the Shrew, act 1. vol 2. p. 286. Winter's Tale, act 1. vol. 3. p. 72. ψ. 651, 652. Bearing the tough Squire like a Sack,—Or stout King Richard, on his Back.] Alluding to the shameful Usage of King Richard the Third, who was slain in the Thirteenth, or last Battle of Bosworth, in Leicestershire, the 22^d day of August, 1485. his Body was carried to Leicester, in a most ignominious manner, like 5 a slain

Before he reach'd his Horse's Back.
Ralpho was mounted now, and gotten O'erthwart his Beast with active vau'ting,
 645 Wriggling his Body to recover
 His Seat, and cast his right Leg over;
 When Orsin, rushing in, bestow'd
 On Horse and Man so heavy a Load,
 The Beast was startled, and begun
 650 To kick and fling like mad, and run,
 Bearing the tough Squire like a Sack,
 Or stout King Richard, on his Back:
 'Till stumbling, he threw him down,
 Sore bruis'd, and cast into a Swoon.
 655 Men while the Knight began to rouse
 The Sparkles of his wonted Prowess:
 He thrust his Hand into his Hose,
 And found both by his Eyes and Nose,
 'Twas only Choler, and not Blood,
 660 That from his wounded Body flow'd.

The brave Prince of Conde, who was kill'd at the Battle of Brissac, was us'd by the Catholicks, in as contemptuous a manner: they carrying his Body in Triumph upon a Poor Packhorse. - This, with the Hazard of the Squire,
 Inflam'd him with despiteful Ire,
 Courageously he fac'd about,
 And drew his other Pistol out;
 665 And now had half way bent the Cock,
 When Cerdon gave so fierce a Shock,
 With sturdy Truncheon, thwart his Arm,
 That down it fell and did no Harm:
 Then stoutly pressing on with Speed,
 670 Assay'd to pull him off his Steed.
 The Knight his Sword had only left,
 With which he Cerdon's Head had cleft,
 Or at the least crop'd off a Limb,
 But Orsin came, and rescu'd him.
 675 He with his Lance attack'd the Knight
 Upon his Quarters opposite.
 But as a Barque, that in foul Weather,
 Toss'd by two adverse Winds together,
 Is bruis'd and beaten to and fro,
 680 And knows not which to turn him to;
 So far'd the Knight between two Foes,
 And knew not which of them t' oppose;
 'Till Orsin, charging with his Lance

y. 693, 694. for Orsin griev'd — At the Wound that Cerdon had receiv'd.] Had Cerdon been kill'd by this undesign'd Blow, tis probable it would have come to the Bear-garden Case, (See L'Estrange's Reflection on the Fable of the inconsolable Widow, part 1. fab. 268.)
 When a Bull has toss'd a poor Fellow, that went to save his Dog, there was a mighty bustle about him, with Brandy and other Cordials, to bring him to himself again: But when the College found there

At Hudibras by spiteful Chance,
 685 Hit Cerdon such a Bang, as stunn'd
 And laid him flat upon the Ground.
 At this the Knight began to chear up,
 And raising up himself on Stirrup,
 Cry'd out, Victoria; Lie thou there,
 690 And I shall straight dispatch another,
 To bear thee Company in Death:
 But first I'll halt a While, and breathe,
 As well he might: For Orsin griev'd
 At the Wound that Cerdon had receiv'd,
 695 Ran to relieve him with his Lore,
 And cure the Hurt he gave before.
 Mean while the Knight had wheel'd about,
 To breathe himself and next find out
 Th' Advantage of the Ground, where best 700 He might the ruffled Foe infest.
 This being resolv'd, he spurr'd his Steed,
 To run at Orsin with full Speed,
 While he was busy in the Care
 Of Cerdon's Wound, and unaware:
 705 But he was quick, and had already Unto the Part apply'd Remedy:

there was no good to be done: Well, go thy way, Jacques (says a jolly Member of that Society) There's the best Back-Sword Man in the Field gone: Come, let us play another Dog. (See part 2. fab. 58.)

y. 705, 706. But he was quick, and had already—Unto the Part apply'd Remedy.] The Case, 'tis plain, was not so bad, as to require the Application of Don Quixote's Balsam of Fierabras, concerning the

And seeing th' Enemy prepar'd,
 Drew up, and stood upon his Guard.
 Then like a Warrior right expert
 710 And skilful in the Martial Art,
 The subtle Knight straight made a Halt,
 And judg'd it best to stay the Assault,
 Until he had reliev'd the Squire,
 And then (in order) to retire;
 715 Or, as occasion should invite,
 With Forces join'd renew the Fight.
Ralpho by this Time disentranc'd,
 Upon his Bum himself advanc'd,
 Though forely bruis'd; his Limbs all o're
 720 With ruthless Bangs were stiff and fore:
 Right fain he would have got upon
 His Feet again, to get him gone;
 When Hudibras to aid him came,

the use of which, he gives Sancho Pancha the following Direction, (vol. 1. chap. 1. p. 85.) " If at any time (says he) thou happenest
 " to see my Body cut in two, by some unlucky Back-stroke, as 'tis
 " common amongst us Knights-errant, thou hast no more to do,
 " than to take up nicely that half of me which is fallen to the " Ground, and to clap it exactly to the other half on the Saddle
 " before the Blood is congealed, always taking care to lay it just
 " in its proper Place: then thou shalt give me two draughts of " that Balsam, and thou shalt see me become whole, and sound as " an Apple." or Waltho Van Clutterbank's Balsam of Balsams: which he calls Nature's Palladium, or Health's Magazine, and observes of it as follows. " Should you chance to have your Brains
 " knock'd out, or your Head chopp'd off, two Drops of this, if " seasonably apply'd, will recall the fleeting Spirits, reinthrone the " depos'd Archeus, cement the discontinuity of Parts, and in six mi" nutes time restore the lifeless Trunk, to all it's pristine Functions,
 " Vital, Rational, and Animal."

Quoth he, (and call'd him by his Name)

- 725 Courage, the Day at length is our's,
And we once more, as Conquerors,
Have both the Field and Honour won,
The Foe is profligate and run :
I mean all such as can, for some 730 This Hand hath sent to their long Home ;
And some lie sprauling on the Ground,
With many a Gash and bloody Wound.
Cæsar himself could never say
He got Two Victories in a Day,
735 As I have done, that can say, Twice I
In one Day, Veni, vidi, vici.
The Foe's so numerous, that we Cannot so often vincere,
And they perire, and yet enough
740 Be left to strike an After-blow ;

ŷ. 733, 734, 735, 736. Cæsar himself could never say — He got Two Victories in a Day, — As I have done, that can say, Twice I — In one day, Veni, Vidi, Vici.] The Knight exults too soon, for Trulla soon spoils his imaginary Victory : How vain is he in preferring himself to Cæsar ! It will be proper to mention to the Reader the occasion that gave Rise to this Saying of Julius Cæsar, in order to discover the Vanity of the Knight in applying it to his own ridiculous Actions. “ Cæsar, after some stay in Syria, made “ Sextus Cæsar his Kinsman President of that Province, and then “ hastened Northward towards Pharnaces : On his arrival where “ the Enemy was, He, without giving any Respite either to him- “ self or them, immediately fell on, and gain'd an absolute Victory “ over them. An Account whereof he wrote to a Friend of his “ [viz. Amintius at Rome] in these three Words, Veni, Vidi, Vici, “ I came, I saw, I overcame ; which short Expression of his Success, “ very aptly setting forth the Speed whereby he obtained it, he af- “ fected so much, that, afterwards, when he triumphed for this Vic“ tory,

Then left they rally, and once more
 Put us to fight the Bus'ness o're,
 Get up and mount thy Steed, dispatch,
 And let us both their Motions watch.
 745 Quoth Ralph, I should not, if I were
 In case for Action, now be here;
 Nor have I turn'd my Back, or hang'd
 An Arse, for Fear of being bang'd.
 It was for you I got these Harms,
 750 Advent'ring to fetch off your Arms.
 The Blows and Drubs I have receiv'd,
 Have bruis'd my Body, and bereav'd

“ Victory, he caused these three words to be writ on a Table, and " That he had forgot to take off his Saddle and Bridle from his

 And steer'd him gently towards the Squire,
 Then bowing down his Body, stretch'd
 His Hand out, and at Ralpho reach'd ;
 When Trulla, whom he did not mind.
 770 Charg'd him like Lightning behind.
 She had been long in Search about
Magnano's Wound, to find it out ;
 But could find none, nor where the Shot
 That had so startled him was got.
 775 But having found the worst was past,
 She fell to her own Work at last,
 The Pillage of the Prisoners,
 Which in all Feats of Arms was her's ;
 And now to plunder Ralph she flew,
 780 When Hudibras his hard Fate drew
 To succour him ; for as he bow'd
 To help him up, she laid a Load
 Of Blows so heavy, and plac'd so well,
 On t'other Side, that down he fell.

ψ. 791,—795. The Arms and Baggage now my Right,—And if thou hast the heart to try't,—Ill lend thee back Thy-self a-while,—And once more for thy Carcase vile — Fight upon Tick——] What a generous and undaunted Heroine was Trulla ! She makes the greatest Figure in the Canto, and alone conquers the valiant Hero of the Poem.
 There are few Instances, I believe, in either Romance or History, that come up to this. The late Charles the Twelfth, King of Sweden, having taken a Town from the Duke of Saxony then King of Poland ; and that Prince intimating, That there must have been Treachery in the Case ; He offer'd to give up the Town, and retake it : This, as I remember, is mentioned either in Motraye's Travels, or in a Life of Charles the Twelfth. Mr. Motraye in his Historical and Critical Remarks upon Voltaire's History of Charles the Twelfth, 2^d edit. p. 14. observes, That if his Generals thought fit to 785 Yield, Scoundrel base, (quoth she) or die;

 Thy Life is mine, and Liberty;
 But if thou think'st I took thee tardy,
 And dar'st presume to be so hardy,
 To try thy Fortune o'er a-fresh,
 790 I'll wave my Title to thy Flesh,
 Thy Arms and Baggage now my Right;
 And if thou hast the Heart to try't,
 I'll lend thee back thyself a while,
 And once more, for that Carcase vile,
 795 Fight upon Tick—Quoth Hudibras,
 Thou offer'st nobly, valiant Lads,
 And I shall take thee at thy Word.
 First let me rise, and take my Sword;
 That Sword which has so oft this Day

 And some to other Worlds dispatch,

 By which no Honour's to be gain'd.

 “ ado to recede from his Proposal.”

This Freak was so surprising, that it put them to a little stand: and in the interim, the Cavalier had time to get up, and make his Escape.  Spencer expresses himself much in this manner, in the following Lines, (Fairy Queen, book 4. canto 3. S. 26.)

Much was Cambello daunted with his Blows,
 So thick they fell, and forcibly were sent,
 That he was forc'd from danger of the Throws
 Back to retire, and somewhat to relent
 Till the heat of his fierce Fury he had spent.

 At once into his Stomach came;
 835 Which fir'd it so, he rais'd his Arm
 Above his Head, and rain'd a Storm
 Of Blows so terrible and thick,
 As if he meant to harsh her quick.
 But she upon her Truncheon took them, of the Pindaric Ode to the Memory of Du Vall the Highway-Man, (see Butler's Remains.) thus explains the Phrase of Catching a Tartar.

*To this * stern Foe he oft gave Quarter, (* The Sessions Court.)
 But as the Scotch-man did to a Tartar,
 That he in time to come*

Might in return receive his Fatal doom.

Mr. Peck (see New Memoirs of Milton's Life, p. 237,) explains it in a different manner. Bajazet (says he) was taken Prisoner by Tamer- lane, who when he first saw him, generously ask'd: "Now, Sir, if " you had taken me Prisoner, as I have you, tell me I pray, what " you would have done with me? — If I had taken you Prisoner
 " (saith the Foolish Turk) I would have thrust you under the
 " Table when I did eat, to gather up the Crumbs with the Dogs;
 " when I rode out, I would have made your Neck my Horsing-
 " block: and when I travell'd, you also should have been carried
 " along with me in an Iron Cage, for every Fool to hoot, and " shout at." "I thought to have used you better said the gallant
 " Tamerlane; but since you intended to have serv'd me thus, you " have (caught a Tartar; for hence I reckon came that Proverb)
 " justly pronounc'd your doom." Mr. Purchase, in his Pilgrims,
 p. 478, (as Dr. Brett observes) says, The Tartars will die, rather than yield: from this Character of a Tartar, the Proverb was probably taken, "You have caught a Tartar; that is, you have " caught a Man that will never yield to you." Of this Disposition was Captain Hokenflycht, a brave Swede, and Sea Captain; who being surrounded by the Ships of the Muscovites, against which he had gallantly defended himself for two hours: having spent all his Ammunition, and having waited till the Enemy which approached

The following Incident communicated by a Friend, though it could not give rise to the Expression, was an humorous application of it. Mr. Lob was Preacher amongst the Dissenters, when their Conventicles were under what they call'd persecution: The House he preach'd in was so contriv'd, that he could, upon occasion, slip out of his Pulpit through a Trap-door, and escape clear off: once finding himself beset, he instantly vanished this way, and the Pursuivants, who had had a full view of their Game, made a shift to find out which way he had burrow'd, and followed through certain subterraneous Passages, till they got into such a dark Cell, as made their further pursuit vain, and their own Retreat almost desperate: in which dismal Place, whilst they were groping about in great perplexity, one of them swore, That Lobb had got them into his Pound. Lobb signifies a Clown or Boor, (who commonly, when he has a Man in his power, uses him with too much rigour, and severity) see Lobb, Lobcock, Lubber, *Junii Etymologic. The Fashions of the French, which prevailed much at that time, are humorously exposed by the Author of a Tract, intitled, The simple Cobler of Agawam in America, willing to help his native Country lamentably tatter'd both in the upper Leather and Sole, with all the honest stitches he can take, 3^d edit. 1647, p. 24, &c. and since by Dr. Baynard, (see History of Cold Baths, part 2. p. 226. edit. 1706.) "The Pride of Life (says he) is indeed the Torment and Trouble of it: but whilst the Devil that spiritual Taylor, Prince of the Air, can so easily step to France, and monthly fetch us new Fashions, 'tis never likely to be otherwise."

From this Speech (as Mr. Byron observes) the Knight seems to have had a great share of the Stoic in him: though we are not told so in his Character. His Stoicism supported him in this his first direful Mishap: he relies wholly upon that Virtue which the Stoics say, is a sufficient Fund for Happiness: What makes the Principle more apparent in him, is the Argument he urges against Pain, to the Widow upon her Visit to him. Which is conformable to the Stoical System. Such Reflections wonderfully abated the Anguish and Indignation, that would have naturally risen in his mind at such bad Fortune.

A carnal Hour-glass, do imply Illumination can convey
Into them what they have to say,
1065 But not how much ; so well enough
Know you to charge, but not draw off :

y. 1061, 1062. As Gifted Brethren preaching by— A carnal Hour-Glass, &c.] In those Days there was always an Hour-Glass stood by the Pulpit, in a Frame of Iron made on Purpose for it, and fasten'd to the Board, on which the Cushion lay, that it might be visible to the whole Congregation: who, if the Sermon did not hold till the Glass was out, (which was turn'd up as soon as the Text was taken) would say, that the Preacher was lazy, and if he held out much longer, would yawn, and stretch, and by those signs signify to the Preacher, that they began to be weary of his Discourse and wanted to be dismiss'd. These Hour-Glasses remain'd in some Churches, till within these Forty years. (Dr. B.) Sir Roger L'Estrange, (Fables 2^d part. fab. 262.) makes mention of a tedious Holder-forth, that was Three quarters through his Second Glass, the Congregation quite tired out and starv'd, and no hope of Mercy yet appearing: these things consider'd, a good charitable Sexton took compassion of the Auditory, and procured their Deliverance, only by a short hint out of the Isle: Pray, Sir, (says he) be pleased, when you have done, to leave the Key under the Door ; and so the Sexton departed, and the Teacher follow'd him soon after. The writer of a Tract, intitled, Independency Stript and Whipt, 1648, p. 14. observes, "That they could pray, or rather prate by the Spirit, (out of a Tub) two hours at least against the King and State." And 'tis propos'd by the Author of a Tract intitled, The Reformato precisely characted by a Modern Church-warden, p. 5. that the Hour-Glass should be turn'd out of Doors. "For our extemporal Preachers (says he) may not keep time with a Clock, or Glass:

“and so when they are out, (which is not very seldom) they can “take leisure to come in again: Whereas, they that measure their “meditations by the Hour, are often gravelled, by complying with “the Sand.” The Famous Spin Texts of those Days had no occasion for Mr. Walter Jennings's Experiment upon their Hour-Glasses, to lengthen their Sermons; the Sand of which running freely, was stop'd by holding a Coal to the lower part of the Glass, which, as soon as withdrawn, run again freely, and so toties quoties. Dr. Plot's subdu'd a Bear and Rabble, &c.] 'Tis a London Proverb, “That a “Fool will not part with his Bauble, for the Tower of London.”

 (Fuller's Worthies, p. 196.) Mr. Walker speaking of General Fairfax, (History of Independency, part 1. p. 43.) says, “What will not a “Fool in Authority do, when he is possess'd by Knaves? miserable “Man! his Foolery hath so long waited on Cromwell's, and Ireton's “Knavery, that it is not safe for him now to see his Folly, and “throw by his Cap, with a Bell, and his Bauble.”

℣. 1072. For Presbyterian Zeal and Wit.] Ralpho look'd upon their ill Plight, to be owing to his Master's bad Conduct; and, to vent his resentment, he satirizes him in the most affecting part of his Character, his Religion: this by degrees, brings on the old arguments about Synods: the Poet, who thought he had not sufficiently lash'd Classical Assemblies, very judiciously compleats it, now there is full leisure for it. (Mr. B.) See Don Quixote, vol. 1. b. 3. p. 178.

 1090 Hard Matter for a Man to do,
 That has but any Guts in's Brains,
 And cou'd believe it worth his Pains:
 But since you dare and urge me to it,
 You'll find I've Light enough to do it.

 “ quest in those times.”

γ. 1155. To find in Lines of Beard and Face.] The following observation of Dr. Echard, (see Answer to the Observations on the Grounds, &c. p. 22.) is a just Satire upon the Precisians of those times.
 “ Then it was (says he) that they would scarce let a Round faced “ Man go to Heaven. If he had but a little Blood in his Cheeks his “ condition was accounted very dangerous ; and it was almost “ an infallible Sign of Reprobation: and I will assure you, a very “ honest man of a Sanguine Complexion, if he chanc'd to come “ nigh an officious Zealot's house, might be set in the Stocks, only
 “ for looking Fresh in a Frosty Morning.”

And Mr. Walker observes of them, (History of Independency, part 2.
 p. 75.) “ That in those days there was a close Inquisition of Godly “ Cut Throats, which used so much foul play, as to accuse Men up“ on the Character of their Cloaths and Persons.”

γ. 1156. The Physiognomy of Grace.] These Tryers pretended to great Skill in this respect: and if they disliked the Beard or Face of a Man,

And by the Sound and Twang of Nose,
 If all be found within, disclose ;
 Free from a Crack or Flaw of finning,
 1160 As Men try Pipkins by the ringing ;

 Which Serjeants at the Gospel wear,
 To make the Spiritual Calling clear.

a Man, they would for that reason alone refuse to admit him, when presented to a Living, unless he had some powerful Friend to support him. “ The Questions that these Men put to the Persons to “ be examin’d, were not Abilities and Learning, but Grace in “ their Hearts, and that with so bold and saucy an Inquisition, that “ some Men’s Spirits trembled at the Interrogatories ; they phrasing “ it so, as if (as was said at the Council of Trent) They had the “ Holy Ghost in a Cloke Bag.” (Heath’s Chronicle, p. 359.)

Their Questions generally were these, (or such like,) When were you converted ? Where did you begin to feel the Motions of the Spirit ? In what Year ? In what Month ? In what Day ? About what Hour of the Day had you the secret Call, or Motion of the Spirit to undertake and labour in the Ministry ? What Work of Grace has God wrought upon your Soul ? and a great many other Questions about Regeneration, Predstination, and the like. (See Mr. Sadler’s Inquisitio Anglicana. Impartial Examination of Mr. Neal’s 4th Volume of the History of the Puritans. Dr. Walker’s Sufferings of the Episcopal Clergy, part 1, p. 171.) They would try, as is observ’d by our Poet, whether they had a true Whining Voice, and cou’d speak dextrously through the Nose. (see the remarkable Examination of an University Gentleman, Spectator N^o 494.) Dr. Gwither, in his Discourse of Physiognomy, (see Philosophical Transactions, vol. 18. N^o 210. p. 119, 120.) endeavours to account for the Expecting Face of the Quakers, waiting the pretended Spirit ; and the Melancholy Face of the Sectaries.

ψ. 1161. By Black Caps underlaid with White.] George Fox, the Quaker, observes, (Journal, p. 254.) “ That the Priests in those times “ had on their Heads two Caps, a Black one and a White one.” and Mr. Petyt speaking of their Preachers, (Visions of the Reformation, p. 84.)

ŷ. 1166. Canonical Crabat, &c.] * Smeetymnus was a Club of five Parliamentary Holders-forth ; the Characters of whose Names and Talents were by themselves express'd, in that senseless and insignificant Word : They wore Handkerchiefs about their Necks for a Note of Distinction, (as the Officers of the Parliament-Army then did) which afterwards degenerated into carnal Cravats. About the Beginning of the Long Parliament, in the Year 1641, these Five wrote a Book against Episcopacy and the Common Prayer, to which they all subscribed their Names; being Stephen Marshall, Edmund Calamy, Thomas Young, Matthew Newcomen, William Spurstow, and from thence they and their Followers were call'd Smeatymnuans. They are remarkable for another pious Book, which they wrote some time after that, intitled, The King's Cabinet unlock'd, wherein all the chaste and in-dearing Expressions, in the Letters that passed betwixt his Majesty King Charles I. and his royal Consort, are by these painful Labourers in the Devil's Vineyard, turn'd into Burlesque and Ridicule : Their Books were answer'd with as much Calmness and Gentleness of Expression, and as much Learning and Honesty, by the Reverend Mr. Symonds, then a deprived Clergyman, as theirs were stuffed with Malice, Spleen, and rascally Invectives."

 (under the Names of Peter, and Jack) is set forth by the Author of A Tale of a Tub, (p. 207. 3^d edit.) “ It was (says he) among the “ great Misfortunes of Jack, to bear a huge Personal Resemblance
 “ with his Brother Peter : their Humour and Disposition was not “ only the same, but there was a close Analogy in their Shapes,
 “ their Size, and their Mien : inasmuch, as nothing was more fre“ quent, than for a Bailiff to seize Jack by the Shoulders, and cry, “ Mr. Peter, you are the King's Prisoner : or at other times, for one

ψ. 1208. Command the Keys for Cheese and Bacon.] 'Tis well known what Influence Dissenting Teachers of all Seets and Denominations have had over the Purfes of the Female part of their Flocks : tho' few of them have been Masters of Daniel Burgefs's Address ; who dining, or supping with a Gentlewoman of his Congregation, and a large uncut Cheshire Cheese being brought upon the Table, ask'd her where he should cut it ? She reply'd, Where you please, Mr. Burgefs. Upon which he gave it to a Servant in waiting, bid him carry it to his House, and he would cut it at Home.

Mr. Selden makes this observation, in his Story of the Keeper of the Clink (Prison) (Table Talk, p. 106.) “ He had (says he) Priests

 “ who are You? A Minister of the Church of England. Oh! God bless “ me, quoth the Keeper, I shall get nothing by you, I am sure? you “ may lie, and starve, and rot, before any body will look after you.”

ŷ. 1211, 1212. More haughty, and severe in's place,—Than Gregory, and Boniface.] Gregory VII. (before call'd Hildebrand) was a Tuscan by Nation, and the Son of a Smith: whilst he was but a Lad in his Father's Shop, and ignorant of Letters, he by mere accident framed these words out of little bits of Woods: His Dominion shall be from one Sea to the other. This is told of him by Brietius, ad Ann. 1073, as a Prognostick of his future Greatness. In the year 1073, on the 30th of June, he was consecrated Pope.—He was a Man of a fierce and haughty Spirit, govern'd by nothing but Pride and Ambition; the Fury and Scourge of the Age he lived in, and the most insolent Tyrant of the Christian World; that could dream of nothing else but the promoting Saint Peter's Regale, by the addition of Sceptres and Diadems: and in this regard he may be said to be the first Roman Pontiff, that ever made an attempt upon the Rights of Princes. (See Mr. Laurence Howel's History of the Pontificate, 2^d edit. p. 229, 230. Hist. Hildebrand, per Bennonem Cardinalem, folio Franc. 1581.)

Ibid. — or Boniface.] Boniface VIII was elected Pope, Anno 1294—His haughty behaviour to Crown'd Heads was insupportable: for he was not content with the Supremacy in Spirituals, but claim'd the Right of disposing of Temporal Kingdoms: this is plain from the Claim he laid to Scotland, as appears from his Letter sent to our King Edward I. He sent it to Robert Archbishop of Canterbury, obliging him upon pain of Suspension ab Officio et Beneficio, to deliver it to the King.—He demanded Feudal Obedience from Philip the Fair, King of France, which he disdaining to comply with, return'd this contumelious Answer to his insolent Demand: Sciat tua maxima Fatuitas, &c. A Reply not a little grating to his Holiness. He was the first that instituted the Sacred Year at Rome, call'd the Jubilee—Nothing shew'd his insatiable thirst of Power more, than that one Clause of his Decretal, De Majoratu et Obedientiâ; porro subesse Humano Pontifici omnes Creaturas Humanas declaramus, dicimus, definimus, et pronunciamus omnino esse de necessitate Salutis. *Extrav. tures living to the See of Rome, an Artic'le of Salvation. Certainly there never was a greater Complication of Ambition, Craft, Treachery, and Tyranny in any one Man, than in this Pope; whose infamous Life justly drew this Proverbial Saying upon him, in after times: That he crept into the Papacy like a Fox, ruled like a Lion, and died like a Dog. ŷ. 1242. On dullest Noddle.] Many of them 'tis plain, from the History of those Times, were as low in Learning, as the Person mentioned by Mr. Henry Stephens, (see Prep. Treatise to Herodotus, p. 238.) who, applying to a Popish Bishop for Orders, and being ask'd this Question, to try his Learning and Sufficiency : Who was Father to the four Sons of Aymond? (Aymon. qu.) and knowing not what to answer, was refused as Insufficient : who returning home to his Father, and shewing the reason, why he was not ordained ; his Father told him he was a very Ass, that could not tell who was Father to the four Sons of Aymond. " See I pray thee, (quoth he) " yonder is Great John the Smith, who has four Sons ; if a Man " should ask thee, who was their Father ? wouldst thou not say, that " it was Great John the Smith ?  Is, which is better or which worst,
Synods or Bears. Bears I avow
 To be the worst, and Synods thou,
 But to make good th' Assertion,
- 1270 Thou say'st th' are really all one.

Place, having sat two Years, one Month, and four Days, and was buried there without any Pomp. He owns, that, for the Shame of this, the Popes decline going through this Street to the Lateran; and that to avoid the like Error, when any Pope is placed in the Porphyry Chair, his Genitals are felt by the youngest Deacon, through a Hole made for that Purpose; but he supposes the Reason of that to be, to put him in mind that he is a Man, and obnoxious to the Necessities of Nature; whence he will have that Seat to be called, Sedes Stercoraria." This Custom is banter'd by Johannes Panninius, in an Epigram turn'd into French, by Henry Stephens, see Prep. Treat. to his Apology for Herodotus, p. 337. and translated into English. The curious Reader may see a draught of the Chair, in which the new Pope sits to undergo this Scrutiny, in the 2^d vol. of Misson's Travels, p. 82.

ψ. 1262. To leave your Vitilitigation.] * Vitilitigation is a Word the Knight was passionately in Love with, and never fail'd to use it upon all possible Occasions; and therefore to omit it, when it fell in the Way, had argued too great a Neglect of his Learning and Parts, tho' it means no more than a perverse Humour of Wrangling. The Author of a Tract, intitled, The simple Cocker of Agarwam in America, &c. p. 15. speaking of the Sectaries of those times, says, "It is a most toilsome Task to run the Wild-Goose Chase, after a "well-breath'd Opinionist; they delight in Vitilitigation, &c."

 More than a Maggot and I am.
 That both are Animalia
 I grant, but not Rationalia:
 For though they do agree in Kind,

 To censure, curse, absolve, and ordain,
 Can be no Synod: But Bear-Garden
 Has no such Pow'r, Ergo, 'tis none;
 1290 And so thy Sophistry's o'erthrown.
 But yet we are beside the Question,
 Which thou didst raise the first Contest on;
 For that was, Whether Bears are better

Than Synod-Men ? I say, Negatur.
 1295 That Bears are Beasts, and Synods Men,
 Is held by all : They're better then :
 For Bears and Dogs on four Legs go,
 As Beasts : but Synod-Men on two.
 'Tis true, they all have Teeth and Nails ;
 1300 But prove that Synod-Men have Tails ;

 Grows o'er the Hide of Presbyter ;
 Or that his Snout and spacious Ears
 Do hold Proportion with a Bear's.
 1305 A Bear's a Savage Beast, of all
 Most ugly and unnatural ;
 Whelp'd without Form, until the Dam
 Has lick't it into Shape and Frame ;
 But all thy Light can ne'er evict,

 Or brought to any other Fashion,
 Than his own Will and Inclination.
 But thou dost further yet in this Oppugn thy self and Sense, that is, the Tatler, N^o 173.) Dr. South, (Sermons, vol. 3. p. 500.) makes the following Observation upon that Reforming Age : “ That all Learning was then cry’d down ; so that with them, the best Preachers were such as could not read ; and the best Divines such as could not write : In all their Preachments, they so highly pretended to the Spirit, that some of them could hardly spell a Letter : for to be blind with them was a proper Qualification of a Spiritual Guide ; and to be book-learn’d as they call’d it, and to be irreligious, were almost terms convertible : so that none were thought fit for the Ministry but Tradesmen and Mechanics, because none else were allowed to have the Spirit : and those only were accounted like St. Paul, who could work with their hands, and in a literal sense drive the Nail home, and be able to make a Pulpit before they preach’d in it.

“ Latin (says he, Sermon, intitled, The Christian Pentecost, vol. 3. p. 544.) “ unto them was a mortal Crime ; and Greek, instead of being own’d to be the Language of the Holy Ghost (as in the New Testament it is) was look’d upon as the Sin against it : so that in a word, they had all the Confusion of Babel amongst them, without the Diversity of Tongues.” (See Sermons, vol. 1. p. 172.)

What’s Latin, but the Language of the Beast ?

Hebrew and Greek is not enough a Feast :

Han’t we the Word in English, which at ease,

We can convert to any Sense we please ?

Let them urge the Original, if we

And say by Strength of Faith, the Crow is white.

Dr. Brett says, That the English Presbyterians of those times, as the Knight observes, had little Human Learning amongst them, though many of them made pretences to it: but having seen their boasted Arguments, and all the Doctrines, wherein they differ'd from the Church of England, baffled by the Learned Divines of that Church, that they found without more Learning they should not maintain the Ground they had left, notwithstanding their Toleration: therefore about the time of the Revolution, they began to think it very proper instead of Calvin's Institutions, and a Dutch System or two, with Blondel, Daille, and Salmasius, to help them to Arguments against Episcopacy, to read and study more polite Books. It is certain, that the Dissenting Ministers have, since that time, both preach'd and wrote more politely than they did in the Reign of King Charles II, in whose Reign the Clergy of the Church of England wrote and published most learned and excellent Discourses, such as have been exceeded by none that have appear'd since. And 'tis likely enough the Dissenting Ministers have studied their Works, imitated their Language, and improved much by them.

* Y. 1381, 1382. And rest our weary'd Bones a-while,—Already tir'd with other Toil.] This is only a hypocritical Shift of the Knight's; his Fund of Arguments had been exhausted, and he found himself baffled by Ralph, so was glad to pump up any pretence to discontinue the Argument. I believe the Reader will agree with me, that it is not probable, that either of them could pretend to any Rest or Repose, while they were detain'd in so disagreeable a Limbo, (Mr. B.)

And cunningly solicits his Suit,
Which she defers; yet on Parole,

*The Knight being clapp'd by th' Heels in prison,
The last unhappy expedition.*

℥. 3. Love brings his Action on the Case.] An Action on the Case is a Writ brought against any one, for an Offence done without force, and by Law not specially provided for. See Manley's Interpreter; Jacob's Law Dictionary; Baily's Dictionary.

℥. 5. How he receives, &c.] How he reviv's, &c. In the two first Editions of 1664.

CANTO, ℥. 1. But now, t' observe, &c.] * The beginning of this Second Part may perhaps seem strange and abrupt to those who do not know, that it was written on purpose in Imitation of Virgil, who begins the 4th Book of his Æneids in the very same Manner, At Regina gravi, &c. And this is enough to satisfy the Curiosity of those, who believe, that Invention and Fancy ought to be measur'd (like Cases in Law) by Precedents, or else they are in the Power of the Critick.

ψ. 13, 14. Some Writers make all Ladies purloin'd,—And Knights pursuing like a Whirlwind.] Alluding probably to Don Quixote's account, of the Incharmed Dulcinea's flying from him like a Whirlwind, in Montesino's Cave. (See Don Quixote, vol. 3. chap. 23. p. 228.) or to other Romance Writers: The Author of Grand Cyrus represents Mandana, as stolen by three Princes, at different times, and Cyrus pursuing them from place to place. The like in Cassandra, and Cleopatra.

ψ. 17. Till drawing Blood o' th' Dames like Witches.] 'Tis a vulgar opinion, that the Witch can have no power over the Person so doing. To this Shakespear alludes, (Henry the Sixth, First Part, act 1. vol. 4. p. 23.) Talbot upon Pucelle's appearing is made to speak, as follows: "Here, here she comes, I'll have a bout with thee, Devil, or Devil's Dam; I'll conjure thee, Blood will I draw on thee, thou art a Witch, and straitway give thy Soul to him thou serv'st."

(Mr. S. of H.) Shakespear, in his Marcus Coriolanus (vol. 6. p. 35.) has one of near 650 years, where he introduces the famous Menenius Agrippa, and makes him speak the following words.

Sir Tho. Browne (See Vulgar Errors, book 3. chap. 21.) has confuted this vulgar Notion. He informs us, That Bellonius (Comm. in Ocell. Lucan.) not only affirms, that the Camelion feeds on Flies, Caterpillars, Beetles, and other Insects, but, upon Embowelling, he found these Animals in their Bellies: whereto (says he) we might add the experimental Decision of Peiresckius, and the Learned Emanuel Vizzanius on that Camelion which had been observed to drink Water, and delight to feed on Meal-worms. The same account we have in the Description of the Camelion, in a Letter from Dr. Pocock, at Aleppo, to Mr. Edward Greaves, Life of Pocock, prefixed to his Theological Works, by Dr. Twells, p. 4. Philosophical Transactions, vol. 3. numb. 49. p. 992. v. 57, 58, 59, 60. Diurnals writ for Regulation — Of Lying to inform the Nation; — And by their public Use to bring down — The Rate of Whetstones in the Kingdom.] To understand this, we must consider it as an Allusion to a Proverbial Expression, in which, an Excitement to a Lye was called a Whetstone. This will explain a smart Rapartee of Sir Francis Bacon’s before King James, to whom Sir Kenelm Digby was relating, That he had seen the True Philosopher’s Stone in the possession of a Hermit in Italy, and when the King was very curious to understand what sort of Stone it was, and Sir Kenelm much puzzled in describing it, Sir Fra. Bacon interposed, and said, Perhaps it was a Whetstone. (Mr. W.) See this Proverbial Expression apply’d, Cartwright’s First Admonition to the Parliament, p. 22. Might not this Proverbial Expression take its rise from the old Roman Story, of a Razor's cutting a Whetstone? Mr. Butler truly characterizes those lying Papers, the Diurnals: of the Authors of which, the Writer of Sacra Nemesis, or Levite's Scourge, &c. 1644, speaks as follows. "He should do thee and thy three Brethren (of the Bastard Brood of Maia) right, who should define you, base Spies, hired to invent, and vent Lies through the whole Kingdom, for the Good of the Cause."

ψ. 64. And Cows of Monsters brought to Bed] See three instances of this kind, in Mr. Morton's History of Northamptonshire, chap. 7. p. 447: and one in Knox's History of the Reformation of Religion in Scotland, pag. 93. edit. 1732, and of another in the Philosophical Transactions, vol. 26. num. 320. pag. 310. But the most remarkable is the following one: Califfæ intra octavum diem Natalis Christi, (1269) Natus est vitulus cum duobus Caninis Capitibus, atque dentibus, et septem pedibus Vitulinis—ab ejus Cadavere Canes atque volucres abhorruere, (Chronic. Chronicor. Politic. lib. 2. pag. 278. Walsingham Hist. Angliæ, Anglica. Normannic. &c. a Camdeno 1603, pag. 135: and of two monstrous Lambs. Philosophical Transactions, vol. 1. num. 26. pag. 480.

ψ. 65. Of Hail-stones big as Pullets Eggs.] Alluding probably to the storm of Hail in and about Loughborough in Leicestershire, June 6. 1645, in which, "Some of the Hail Stones were as big as small Hens Eggs, and the least as big as Musket Bullets. (Mercurius Belgicus, or Memorable Occurrences in 1645.) or to the Storm at Chebsey in Staffordshire, the Sunday before Saint James's Day, 1659, where there fell a Storm of Hail (as Dr. Plot observes, Staffordshire chap. 1. f. 48. p. 23.) "The Stones were as big as Pullets Eggs." (See (See a remarkable Account of this kind, Morton's Northamptonshire, pag. 342.) In King John's Reign, anno 1207, a storm fell in which the Hail-Stones were as big as Hens Eggs, Higden's Polychronicon, by Treviza, lib. 7. cap. 32. fol. 300. (See an account of the Hail Storm in Edward the First's Reign, Fabian's Chronicle, part 2. fol. 67.) Though these accounts seem to be upon the Marvellous, yet Dr. Pope, a Man of Veracity, in a Letter from Padua, to Dr. Wilkins, 1664, N S. concerning an extraordinary Storm of Thunder, and Hail, (see Professor Ward's Lives of the Professors of Gresham College, pag. 116.) gives the following more remarkable account. " This " Storm (says he) happen'd July 20, about three o'Clock in the " afternoon, at the bottom of the Euganean Hills, about six Miles " from Padua. It extended upwards of thirty Miles in length, and " about six in breadth; and the Hail-Stones which fell in great " quantities were of different sizes; the largest of an Oval form, as " big as Turkey's Eggs, and very hard: the next size Globular, but " somewhat compress'd: and others that were more numerous, " perfectly round, and about the bigness of Tennis Balls." (See an account of a remarkable Hail Storm at Venice, Tom Coryat's Crudities, pag. 256, and at Lisle in Flanders 1686. Philosophical Transactions, vol. 1. N^o 26. pag. 481. vol. 16. ψ. 66. And Puppies whelp'd with twice two Legs.] This is put for the sake of the Rhyme. With the help of John Lilburn's Logic, he might have made them twice four Legs. " That Creature, says " he, which has two Legs before, and two Legs behind, and two " Legs on each side has eight Legs: But as a Fox is a Creature " which has two Legs before, and two Legs behind, and two Legs " before, and two on each side; Ergo &c."  What Mischief Hudibras befell;

 And straight the spiteful Tidings bears

Democritus ne'er laugh'd so loud,
 To see Bauds carted through the Crowd,

At this, a Wench call'd Fame flew out,
To all the good Towns round about;
This Fame, was Daughter to a Cryer,
That Whilom liv'd in Carthage-shire;
A little prating Slut, no higher
When Dido first arriv'd at Tyre,
Than this—— But in a few years space
Grown up a lusty strapping Lass:
A long and lazy Queen I ween
Was not brought up to sew and spin,
Nor any kind of Housewifery
To get an honest living by:
But saunter'd idly up and down,
From House to House, and Town to Town,
To spy and listen after News,
Which she so mischievously brews;
That still whate'er she sees or hears,
Sets Folks together by the ears.
This Baggage, that still took a pride to Slander, and backbite poor Queen Dido;
Because the Queen once, in detection,
Sent her to the Mansion of Correction:
Glad she had got this Tale by th' end,
Runs me about to Foe and Friend,

And

And visit the distressed Knight :
 To do the Office of a Neighbour,
 90 And be a Gossip at his Labour:
 And from his wooden Jail, the Stocks,
 To set at large his Fetter-Locks,
 And by Exchange, Parole, or Ransom,
 To free him from th' enchanted Mansion.
 95 This b'ing resolv'd, she call'd for Hood
 And Usher, Implements abroad
 Which Ladies wear, beside a slender
 Young waiting Damsel to attend her,

*And tells 'um that a Fellow came
 From Troy, or such a kind of Name;
 To Tyre, about a Fortnight since,
 Whom Dido feasted like a Prince :
 Was with him always Day and Night,
 Nor could endure him from her sight :
 And that 'twas thought she meant to marry him,
 And this rate talk'd the foul-mouth Carrion.*

See Pref. to Sadducismus Triumphatus, and the Narrative at large, part 2. pag. 89, to 117, inclusive. Mr. Wood Athen. Oxon. vol. 2. col. 189. 1st edit. takes notice of this Narrative concerning the famed Disturbers at the House of Tho. Mompeyson, Esq. at Tedworth in Wilts, occasioned by its being haunted with Evil Spirits, and the beating of a Drum invisibly every night from February 1662, to the beginning of the year after. To this Mr. Oldham alludes,

In some places the Shaving of Beards is a punishment, as among the Turks : Nicephorus, in his Chronicle, makes mention of Baldwin Prince of Edeffa, who pawn'd his Beard for a great sum of Money ; which was redeemed by his Father Gabriel, Prince of Mitilene, with a large Sum, to prevent the Ignominy which his Son was like to suffer by the Loss of his Beard. Shakespear, in his Midsummer Night's Dream, act 4. vol. 1. p. 134. hints at their wearing Strings to their Beards in his time. And John Taylor the Water-Poet, humorously describes the great variety of Beards in his time. (Superbiæ Flagellum, Works, p. 3.)

Now a few Lines to Paper I will put
 Of Men's Beards strange, and variable cut,
 In which, there's some, that take as vain a pride,
 As almost in all other things beside ;
 Some are reap'd most substantial like a Bush
 Which makes a nat'ral Wit, known by the Bush :
 And in my time of some men I have heard,
 Whose Wisdom have been only Wealth and Beard :
 Many of these, the Proverb well doth fit,
 Which says, Bush natural, more Hair than Wit :
 Some seem, as they were starched stiff and fine,
 Like to the Bristles of some angry Swine :
 And some, to set their Loves-Desire on edge,
 Are cut and prun'd, like to a Quick-set Hedge ;
 Some like a Spade, some like a Fork, some square,
 Some Round, some mow'd like Stubble, some stark bare ;
 Some sharp, Stiletto-fashion, Dagger like,
 That may with whisp'ring, a Man's Eyes outpike :
 Some with the Hammer cut, or Roman T.
 Their Beards extravagant, reform'd must be.
 Some with the Quadrate, some Triangle fashion ;
 Some Circular, some Oval in translation :

This Fashion continued amongst them, till the time of the Czar, Peter the Great, "who compelled them to part with these Ornaments, sometimes by laying a swinging Tax upon them; and at others by ordering those he found with Beards, to have them pull'd up by the roots, or shav'd with a blunt Razor, which drew the Skin after it, and by these means scarce a Beard was left in the Kingdom at his Death: but such a veneration had this people for these Ensigns of Gravity, that many of them carefully preserved their Beards in their Cabinets, to be buried with them; imagining perhaps, they should make but an odd figure in the grave with their naked Chins." The Northern Worthies; or, the Lives of Peter the Great, and his Illustrious Consort Catherine,—London 1728. p. 84, 85. see likewise p. 23. and a further account of the remarkable Fashions in Beards, Dr. Bulwer's Artificial Changeling, sc. 12. p. 210, &c.

Y. 201, 202. Some have been wounded with Conceit.— And dy'd of meer opinion straight.) Remarkable are the Effects both of Fear, and Joy. A Tryal of the former kind was made upon a condemn'd Malefactor, in the following manner. A Dog was by Surgeons let blood, and suffered to bleed to Death before him; the Surgeons talking all the while, and describing the gradual Loss of Blood, and of course a gradual Faintness of the Dog, occasioned thereby: and just before the Dog died, they said unanimously; Now he is going to die. They told the Malefactor, that he was to be bled to death in the same way; and accordingly blindfolded him, and ty'd up his Arm; then one of them thrust a Lancet into his Arm, but purposely miss'd the Vein: however they soon began to describe the poor man's gradual Loss of Blood, and of course a gradual Faintness occasioned thereby: And just before the supposed Minute of his Death, the Surgeons said unanimously; Now he dies. The Malefactor thought all this real, and died by meer conceit, though he had not lost above twenty drops of Blood.—See Athenian Oracle, (Mr. S. of B.) Almost as remarkable was the case of the Chevalier Jarre, “ who was upon the Scaffold at Troyes, had his “ Hair cut off, the Handkerchief before his Eyes, and the Sword “ in the Executioner's hand to cut off his Head: but the King par- “ doned him: being taken up, his Fear had so taken hold of him; “ that he could not stand nor speak; they led him to bed, and “ opened a vein, but no blood would come. (Lord Stafford's Letters, vol. 1. p. 166.) There are three remarkable instances, of Persons whose Hair suddenly turned; one from Red to White; upon the apprehension, that they should be put to death. (Mr. Daniel Turner's book, De Morbis Cutaneis, chap. 12. 3^d edit. 1726. p. 163, 164. See Spectator; N^o 615. on the subject of Fear.) Nay, if my memory memory fails me not, there are accounts to be met with in history of Persons who have dropp'd down dead before an Engagement, and before the discharge of one Gun. An Excess of Joy has been attended sometimes with as bad an effect. The Lady Poynts (in the year 1563.) by the ill usage of her Husband, had almost lost her Sight, her Hearing, and her Speech ; which she recovered in an instant, upon a kind Letter from Queen Elisabeth : but her Joy was so excessive, that she died immediately after kissing the Queen's Letter. Strype's Annals of Queen Elisabeth, vol. 1. p. 239. 2^d edit. No less remarkable was the Case of one Ingram upon a large unexpected Accession of Fortune. (See Lord Stafford's Letters, vol. 1. p. 509.) And Mr. Fenton observes upon those Lines of Mr. Waller,

*Our Guilt preserves us from Excess of Joy,
 Which scatters Spirits, and would Life destroy.*

“ That Mr. Oughtred, that famous Mathematician, expired in a “ Transport of Joy, upon hearing, that the Parliament had ad“ dressed the King to return to his Dominions.” (Observations on Waller's Poems, p. 67.) Many are the Instances of this kind in an ancient History, as that of Polycrata a Noble Lady in the Island Naxus ; Philippides a Comic Poet ; and Diagoras the Rhodian, &c. *Auli Gellii

Y. 371. 'Twas he that made Saint Francis do, &c.] St. Francis, was Founder of the Order of Franciscans in the Church of Rome, and Mr. Butler has scarce reach'd the extravagancy of the Legend Bonaventure (says the Learned Mr. Wharton, Enthusiasm of the Church of Rome, 1688. p. 109.) "gives the following Story of Saint Francis. The Devil putting on one night a handsome Face, peeps into St. Francis's Cell, and calls him out: The Man of God presently knew by Revelation, that it was a Trick of the Devil; who by that artifice tempted him to Lust; yet he could not hinder the effect of it; for immediately a grievous Temptation of the Flesh seizeth on him: To shake off this, he strips himself naked, and begins to whip himself fiercely with his Rope. Ha, Brother Ass (saith he) I will make you smart for your rebellious Lust: I have taken from you my Frock, because that is sacred, and must not be usurp'd by a Lustful Body: if you have a mind to go your ways in this naked condition, pray go. Then being animated by a wonderful Fervour of Spirit, he opens the door, runs out, and rolls his naked body in a great heap of Snow: next he makes seven Snow-balls, and laying them before him, he thus bespeaks his Outward Man. Look you, this great Snow-ball is your Wife, those Four are your two Sons and two Daughters, the other two are a Man and a Maid, which you must keep to wait on them. Make haste and clothe them all, for they die with Cold: But if you cannot provide for them all, then lay aside all thought of Marriage, and serve God alone." Now see the Merits of rolling in the Snow, (saith Mr. Wharton) "the Tempter being conquer'd departs, and the Saint returns in triumph to his Cell." (See Misson, vol. 1. p. 271.) Less Scrupulous were the Beguins, of St. Francis's Order, who held, "That to kiss Women, and to embrace them, provided they did not consummate the Carnal Sin, was highly meritorious."

This was generally the practice, tho' there are some few Exceptions to the Rule. Juvenal condemns Crispinus for deflouring a Vestal Virgin, though he had interest enough with Domitian, to prevent the usual Punishment.

 “ Indian Skulls are four times as thick as other men's: so that com“ ing to Handy-strokes with them, it shall be requisite not to strike “ them on the Head with Swords, for many Swords have been “ broken on their Heads with little hurt done.” Dr. Bulwer observes, (from Purchase, see Artificial Changeling, scene 1. p. 42.)
 “ That Blockheads and Loggerheads are in request in Brasil, and Hel“ mets are of little use, every one having a natural Murrian of “ his Head: for the Brasilians Heads some of them are as hard as
 “ the Wood that grows in the Country, for they cannot be broken.”
R. Higden (in his Polychronicon, translated by Trewiza, lib. 2. ch. 1. fol. 58.) mentions an Englishman, one Thomas Harward of Barkley, “ who had in the Moold of his Hede Polle, and Forehede, but one “ Bone, all whole, therefore he maye well suffre greete Blows above “ his Hede without hurt.” (the Scull of a Man above three quarters of an Inch thick, found at St. Katharine's Cree-Church. See Stow's Survey of London, by Mr. Strype, book 2. p. 65.) The Author of the printed Notes on the contrary observes, “That there are American “ Indians, among whom there are some whose skulls are so soft, to use their Author's words, ut Digito perforari possint.”

¶. 539, 540. But if that's all you stand upon, — Here strike me, Luck, it shall be done.] This expression used by Beaumont and Fletcher, Scornful Lady, act 2. And this unpolite way of courting, seems to be banter'd by Shakespeare. [1st Part of Henry 6th, act 5. vol. 4. p. 195.)

 “ But Marriage is a matter of more worth.”

For if I thought you could be true,
I could love twice as much as you.

The Sun, that shall no more dispence
His own, but your bright Influence ;
565 I'll carve your Name on Barks of Trees,
With True-love-Knots and Flourishes ;

ψ. 552. I could love twice as much as you.] The Widow is practising Coquetry and Dissimulation, in the highest perfection ; she rallies and soothes the Knight, and in short plays all the Arts of her Sex upon him : He alas ! could not penetrate through the Disguise ; but the false Hopes she gives him, make him joyous, and break out into rapturous Asseverations of the Sincerity of his Love : the Extacy he seems to be in, betrays him into gross Inconsistencies ; the Reader may compare his Speech which immediately follows, with what goes before ψ. 473, &c. but this Humour and Flight in him may be excused, when we reflect, that there is no other way to be reveng'd of a Coquet, but by retorting Fallacies and Coquetry. Y. 600. To grind her Lips upon a Mill.] The meaning is this : The Poets used to call their Mistresses Lips Polish'd Rubies : now the Ruby is polish'd by a Mill. (Mr. W.)

Y. 601. Until the Facet Doublet doth, &c.] Facet Doublet signifies a false-colour'd Stone, cut in many Faces, or Sides. The French say Une Diamante taillé à facette. Why the False Stones are called Doublets may be seen in Tournefort's account of the Mosaic Work in the Sancta Sophia, at Constantinople. “ *Les Incrustations de la Galerie sont des Mosaïques faites la plus part avec ces dez de verre, qui se detachent tous les jours de leur ciment. Y. 603, 604. Her Mouth compar'd t' an Oyster's, with—A Row of Pearl in't, stead of Teeth]. Poet, in his Poem, intitled, A Whore ; Works, p. 110. in the following lines.

To seek to merit ever-living Bayes,
 For sordid Stuff (like Ovid's lustful Layes)
 With false bewitching Verses to entice
 Frail Creatures from fair Vertue to foule Vice,
 Whose Flattery makes a Whore to seem a Saint,
 That stinks like Carrion, with her Pox and Paint :
 Comparing her (with false and odious Lies)
 To all that's in, or underneath the Skies ;
 Her Eyes to Sunnes, that do the Sunne eclipse,
 Her Cheeks are Roses, (Rubies are her Lips)
 Her White and Red, Carnation mixt with Snow,
 Her Teeth, to Oriental Pearls a Row,
 Her Voice, like Musick of the heavenly Spheres ;
 Her Hair, like thrice refined Golden Wires,
 Her Breath more sweet, than aromattick Drugs ;
 Like Mounts of Alabaster are her Dugs :
 Her Bracelets, Rings, her Scarfe, her Fan, her Chain,
 Are Subjects to inspire a Poet's Brain.

 Are but black Patches, that she wears,

ψ. 608. For Indian Lake and Ceruse, &c.] Lake, a fine Crimson sort of Paint. Ceruse, a Preparation of Lead with Vinegar, commonly called White Lead: Baily. See Cerusse, Junii Etymologic.

ψ. 609, 610. The Sun and Moon, by her bright Eyes—Eclips'd, and darken'd in the Skies.] Shakespear (in his Romeo and Juliet, act 2. vol. 7. p. 153.) has something like this.

Rom.—"But soft! What Light thro' yonder Window breaks?"

"It is the East, and Juliet is the Sun.

"Arise, fair Sun, and kill the envious Moon,

"Who is already sick, and pale with grief,

"That thou, her Maid, art far more fair than she.

"Be not her Maid, since She is envious.

"Her vestal Livery is but sick,

"And nought but Fools do wear it,—cast it off."

ψ. 611. Are but black Patches that she wears.] Sir Kenelm Digby makes mention of a Lady of his acquaintance, who wore many Patches: upon which he used to banter her, and tell her that the next Child she should go with, whilst the solicitude and care of those Patches were so strong in her Fancy, would come into the World with a great Black Spot in the midst of it's Forehead; which happened accordingly. (Treatise of Bodies, ch. 27. p. 404. Discourse of the Power of Sympathy, edit. 1660. p. 182, &c.) Homorous is the account of the opinion of the Indian Kings, concerning the Patches worn by our English Ladies, (Spectator, N^o 50.) "As for "the Women of the Country—they look like Angels, and would "be more beautiful than the Sun, were it not for the little black
 "Spots, that break out in their Faces: and sometimes rise in very "odd Figures—I have observed, that those little Blemishes wear
 "off very soon; but when they disappear in one part of the Face,
 "they are very apt to break out in another, insomuch, that I have "seen a spot in the Forehead in the Afternoon, which was upon the "Chin in the Morning."

ψ. 617. Her Voice the Musick of the Spheres.] Mr. Elisba Fenton, (see Observations upon some of Mr. Waller's Poems, 4^{to} p. 52.) is of opinion, " That Pythagoras was the first that advanc'd this Doc" trine of the Musick of the Spheres, which he probably grounded on " the text in Job, understood literally: When the Morning Stars
 " sang together, &c. ch. 29. ver. 7. " For since he studied Twelve " years in Babylon, under the direction of the learned Impostor
 " Zoroastres, who is allow'd to have been a Servant to one of the " Prophets, we may reasonably conclude, That he was conversant in " the Jewish Writings, (of which the Book of Job was ever esteem'd
 " of most authentic Antiquity) Jamblichus ingenuously confesseth,
 " That none but Pythagoras ever perceived this Cælestial Harmony:
 " and as it seems to have been a native of Imagination, the Poets
 " have appropriated it to their own Province; and our admirable
 " Milton applies it very happily in the Fifth book of his Paradise
 " Lost."

That Day, as other solemn Days, he spent
In Song, and Dance about the Sacred Hill;
Mystical Dance! which yonder Starry Sphere
Of Planets, and of Fix'd in all her Wheels
Resembles nearest Mazes intricate,
Excentrick, intervolv'd; yet regular
Then most, when most irregular they seem:
And in their motions Harmony Divine
So smooths her charming Tones, that God's own Ear
Listens delighted. —

 And in those Ribbons would have hung,
 Of which melodiously they sung,
 625 That have the hard Fate to write best
 Of those still that deserve it least;
 It matters not how false, or forc'd,
 So the best Things be said o' th' worst;

ψ. 625, 626. That have the hard Fate to write best — Of those still, that deserve it least.] Mr. Warburton is of opinion, That he alludes to Mr. Waller's Poems on Saccharissa. He might likewise have Mr. Waller's Panegyric to the Lord Protector, in view, compared with his Poem to the King, upon His Majesty's happy Return. When he presented this Poem to the King, Mr. Fenton observes, (Observations on some of Mr. Waller's Poems, p. 67. from the Menagiana,) "That his Majesty said, He thought it much inferior to his Panegyric on Cromwell. That notwithstanding he sat as one of the King's Judges,

And though a Grandee of the House,
 Claw'd him with Fundamental Blows ;
 Ty'd him stark naked to a Bed-post :
 890 And fir'd his Hide, as if th' had rid Post :
 And after in the Sessions-Court,
 Where Whipping's judg'd, had Honour for't ?

 I'll set you from th' Inchanted Den,

(but did not sign the Warrant for his Execution) yet either by shewing Favours, not allowable in those days of Sanctity, to the Unsanctified Cavaliers, or some other Act which discovered an Inclination to forsake the Good Old Cause: he had so far lessened his Credit with his Brethren in Iniquity, that they began to suspect, and to threaten, that they would use him as a Malignant: His Lady, who was a Woman of more refined Politicks, and of the true Disciplinary Spirit, to shew her Disapprobation of her Lord's naughty Actions, and to disperse the gathering Storm, did, by the help of her Maids, tie his Lordship stark naked to a Bed-Post, and, with Rods, made him so sensible of his Fault, that he promised, upon his Honour, to behave well for the future, and to ask Pardon of his Superiors: for which salutary Discipline she had Thanks given her in open Court. To this, or a Whipping upon some other occasion, the Old Ballads allude ;

Lord M—n—n's next, the Bencher
Who waited with a Trencher,
He there with the Buffle Head
Is called Lord, and of the same House
Who (as I have heard it said)
Was chastised by his Lady Spouse :
Because he run at Sheep,
She and her Maids gave him the Whip :
And beat his Head so addle,
You'd think he'd had a Knock in the Cradle.

This in the Opinion of Barbara Crabtree (see Spectator, N^o 252.) was good Doctrine; who put this Quere to the Spectator, “ Whether in some cases a Cudgel may not his Defence. (See Bp. Kennet's Register and Chronicle, pag. 797.)

ψ. 896. Quoth he, I do profess and swear.] After all the fine Encomiums bestow'd on Love; it must be mortifying to a Man of Sense, whether successful in it, or not; to look back upon the infinite number of silly things, and servile Compliances he has been guilty of, in the Course of his Amours. The Widow has very frankly told the Knight, (and in him all the World (what Tortures, Penances, and base Condescensions a Lover must unavoidably undergo, and comply with; to all which she artfully gives the preference to Whipping, which was necessary for the Designs she had in view:
she cajoles the silly Knight with specious Commendations of its Practice; and alledges many Instances of it; and particularly one, of which the Knight could not be ignorant: and, on the other hand, has made the slavish Parts of Love so formidable, that 'tis no wonder, that he was frighted into a Whipping Resolution: Nothing can excuse him in this juncture, but the Uneasiness in his present, Embarrassment, and an ardent Desire of regaining that valuable Blessing, Liberty. (Mr. B.)

ψ. 903. The Sun grew low, and left the Skies, &c.] The Evening is here finely described; the Epics are not more exact in describing Times and Seasons, than our Poet: we may trace his Hero
Morning and Night; and it should be observed in the conclusion of this Canto, (conformable to the practice of the Critics upon Homer and Virgil,) that one day is only passed since the opening of the Poem. (Mr. B.)

 For Darkness is the proper Sphere,
 Where all false Glories use t' appear.
 The twinkling Stars began to muster,
 And glitter with their borrow'd Lustre,

The ARGUMENT of THE SECOND CANTO.

*The Knight and Squire in hot Dispute,
Within an Ace of falling out,
Are parted with a sudden Fright
Of strange Alarm, and stranger Sight ;
With which adventuring to stickle,
They're sent away in nasty Pickle.*

'TIS strange how some Mens Tempers suit

That for their own Opinions stand fast
Only to have them claw'd and canvaſt ;

CANTO, v. 1, 2. 'Tis strange how some Men's Tempers suit—(Like Bawd and Brandy) with Dispute.] The Presbyterians in Scotland furnish'd us with an Example of this, which perhaps even those of England can hardly parallel. It was order'd August 27. 1638, that the ablest Men in each Parish, should be provided to dispute of the King's Power in calling Assemblies (Lyſimachus Nicanor's Epist. Congrat. &c. to the Covenanters in Scotland, 1640. p. 18) The Words in the Large Declaration concerning the late Tumults in Scotland 1639. p. 284. "That the ablest Man in every Presbyterie be provided to dispute, De Potestate Supremi Magistratus in Ecclesiasticis, præsertim in convocandis Conciliis, de Senioribus, de Episcopatu, de Juramento, de Liturgiâ, & Corruptelis ejusdem." These private Instructions were sent to some Ministers in every Presbytery, in whom they put most special Trust. *Fowlis's History of wicked Plots, &c. p. 204. - 5 That keep their *Conscienc*es in Cases,
 As Fidlers do their Crowds and Bases;
 Ne'er to be us'd but when they're bent
 To play a Fit for Argument:
 Make true and false, unjust and just,
 10 Of no Use but to be discust;
 Dispute and set a Paradox,
 Like a strait Boot upon the Stocks,
 And stretch it more unmercifully,
 Than Helmont, Montaign, White or Tully.
 15 So th' ancient Stoicks in their Porch,
 With fierce Dispute maintain'd their Church,
 Beat out their Brains in Fight and Study,
 To prove that Virtue is a Body;
 That Bonum is an Animal,

Laert. in vita Zenonis, p. 383. Those old Virtuosos were better Proficients in those Exercises, than the modern, who seldom improve higher than Cuffing and Kicking." Dr. Middleton observes (Life of Cicero, 4^{to} edit. vol. 2. p. 540.) "That the Stoics embrac'd all their Doctrines as so many "fixt and immutable Truths, from which it was infamous to depart: "and by making this their Point of Honour, held all their Disciples "in an invincible Attachment to them."

ψ. 19. That Bonum is an Animal.] * Bonum is such a kind of Animal, as our modern Virtuosi, from Don Quixote, will have Windmills under Sail to be. The same Authors are of Opinion, that all Ships are Fishes while they are a-float; but when they are run on Ground, or laid up in the Dock, become Ships again." ψ. 40. He rous'd the Squire, in Truckle lolling.] Several of the books in Homer's Iliad, and Odyssy, begin with describing the Morning : so also does Mr. Butler take care to let the World know at what time of the Day (which he exactly describes) these momentous Actions of his Hero were transacted : the Morning's Approach, the Knight's rising, and rousing up his Squire, are humorously describ'd : The Poet seems to have had in his eye the like passage in Don Quixote :
 “ Scarce had the Silver Moon given bright Phœbus leave, with the “ Ardour of his burning Rays, to dry the liquid Pearls on his “ Golden Locks, when Don Quixote shaking off Sloth from his “ drowsy Members, rose up, and call'd Sancho his Squire, that still “ lay snoring ; which Don Quixote seeing, before he could wake “ him, he said, O happy Thou above all that live upon the face of “ the Earth ! that without Envy, or being envied, sleepest with a “ quiet Breast ! neither persecuted by Enchanters, nor frighted by

ψ. 53. Sprung a new Scruple in his Head.] When we are in the highest expectation, to see this desperate whipping perform'd by the Knight, Behold ! a new Scruple, whether he might not, forsooth, break his Oath. This is exactly conformable to the Knight's Character : and expected from one who barely pretended to a scrupulous and tender Conscience. (Mr. B.)

ψ. 55, 56. Whether it be directed infringing—An Oath, if I should wave this swinging,] This Dialogue between Hudibras and Ralph, sets before us the Hypocrisy and Villany of all parties of the Rebels, with regard to Oaths ; what equivocations and evasions they made use of, to account for the many Perjuries they were daily guilty of, and the several Oaths they readily took, and as readily broke, merely as they found it suited their Interest, as appears from

And that you are forsworn, forswear.
 But first, o' th' first: The Inward Man,
 And Outward, like a Clan and Clan,
 Have always been at Daggers-drawing,
 80 And one another Clapper-clawing:
 Not that they really cuff, or fence,
 But in a spiritual Mystique Sense;
 Which to mistake, and make 'em squabble,
 In literal Fray's abominable:
 85 'Tis heathenish, in frequent Use
 With Pagans, and Apostate Jews,
 To offer Sacrifice of Bridewells,
 Like modern Indians to their Idols:
 And mungril Christians of our Times,

 But we must claw our selves with shameful
 And Heathen Stripes, by their Example ?
 Which (were there nothing to forbid it)

 This therefore may be justly reckon'd
 A beinous Sin. Now to the second,
 That Saints may claim a Dispensation
 To swear and for swear, on Occasion,
 105 I doubt not, but it will appear
 With pregnant Light : The Point is clear.
Oaths are but Words, and Words but Wind ;
 Too feeble Implements to bind :

 For you do hate all Swearing so, that when You've swore an Oath, you break it straight agen.
 A Curse upon you ! which hurts more these Nations,

 Although your Church be opposite
 To ours, as Black-Friars are to White,
 115 In Rule and Order : yet I grant
 You are a Reformado Saint ;
 And what the Saints do claim as due,
 You may pretend a Title to :
 But Saints, whom Oaths and Vows oblige,
 120 Know little of their Privilege ;
 Further (I mean) than carrying on
 Some Self-advantage of their own :
 For if the Dev'l to serve his Turn,
 Can tell Truth, why the Saints should scorn,
 125 When it serves theirs, to swear and lye ;
 I think there's little Reason why :
 Else h' has a greater Pow'r than they,
 Which 'twere Impiety to say.

But to swear idly, and in vain,
 Without Self-interest or Gain :
 For breaking of an Oath and Lying,
 Is but a kind of Self-denying,
 135 A Saint-like Virtue, and from hence
 Some have broke Oaths by Providence :
 Some, to the Glory of the Lord,

¶ 136. Some have broke Oaths by Providence.] When it was first moved in the House of Commons to proceed capitally against the King, Cromwell stood up, and told them : “ That if any Man “ moved this with Design, he should think him the greatest Traitor in the World : but since Providence and Necessity had cast “ them upon it, he should pray to God to bless their Counsels.” (History of Independency, part 2. p. 54.) And when he kept the King close Prisoner in Carisbrook Castle, contrary to Vows and Protestations, He affirmed, The Spirit would not let Him keep his Word. And when contrary to the Public Faith, they murdered him, they pretended, they could not resist the Motions of the Spirit : History of Independency, part 3. pag. 22. ‘These Wretches were like the Sanctimonious Pirate, (see Shakespear’s Measure for Measure, act 1. vol. 1. pag. 314.) who went to Sea with the Ten Commandments in his Pocket, but scraped out the Eighth, Thou shalt not Steal ; Or the Wild Irish, (see Foulis’s History of the Wicked Plots and Conspiracys of the Pretended Saints, book 3. pag. 181. Camden’s Britannia, 1695, p. 1045.) Who, “ When they went a Stealing, prayed to God for “ good Fortune, and if they got a good Booty, used to return God “ Thanks for assisting them in their Villany ; which they looked “ upon as the Gift of God.” Ralpho seems to have been in this way of thinking, (see Hudibras at Court, Remains, 1727, p. 7.)

*I well remember, Food and Firing,
 Some Years before I went a Squiring,
 Were both so dear, to save the Life
 Of my own self, my Child, and Wife ;
 I was constrained to make bold
 With Landlord’s Hedges, and his Fold.
 God’s Goodness more than my Desert
 Did then, Sir, put into my heart
 To chuse this Tree, this Blessed Tree,
 To be in need my Sanctuary. (To hide his stolen Goods.)*

John Taylor the Water Poet, sneers such wicked Wretches, in the following lines. (Superbiæ Flagellum, pag. 35.)

’Tis

Perjur'd themselves, and broke their Word;
 And this the constant Rule and Practice
 140 Of all our late Apostles Acts is.
 Was not the Cause at first begun
 With Perjury, and carried on?
 Was there an Oath the Godly took,
 But in due Time and Place they broke?

'Tis all one if a Thief, a Bawd, a Witch
 Or a Bribe-Taker, should grow damned Rich,
 And with their Trash got with their hellish Pranks,
 The hypocritic Slaves will give God thanks:
 No, Let the Litter of such Hell-hound Whelps
 Give Thanks to th' Devil (Author of their Helps:)
 To give God Thanks, it is almost all one
 To make him Partner of Extortion.
 Thus if Men get their Wealth by Means that's Evil,
 Let them not give God Thanks, but thank the Devil.

¶ 141, 142. Was not the Cause at first begun,—With Perjury, and carried on?] The Scots in 1639, were a little troubled, that Episcopacy was not absolutely abjured in their former Oaths, which many thought binding to them. The Covenanters thinking to take away that Rub, that all Men might with the more freeness embrace their Covenant, declare publicly to the World, (Large Declaration, pag. 347.) “That the Swearer is neither obliged to the “Meaning of the Prescriber of the Oath, nor his own Meaning,
 “but as the Authority shall afterwards interpret it.” (Foulis's History of Wicked Plots, &c. p. 240. 2d edit.) “Since many Men (says the Writer of A Letter without Superscription, intercepted in the way to London, printed 1643, pag. 7. by way of sneer) “are “troubled at the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, which they “took so long since, when they had no hope the Truth would have “been manifested thus clearly to them; and upon which our Enemies “seem to have such Advantage upon their Conscience: whether “it be not fit, first by the Resolution of some godly Ministers,
 “to absolve them, as has been profitably done in the Business of “Brainceford, by those two Lamps of our Religion, the Rev^d.
 “Downing and Marshall.”

¶ 143, 144. Was there any Oath the Godly took,—But in due time and place they broke?] A Sneer upon many of the Sanctify'd Members of the Assembly of Divines; who had taken two several Oaths to maintain that Church Government, which the Covenant obliged them to extirpate: namely, when they took their Degrees in the Uni-

- 145 Did we not bring our Oaths in first,
 Before our Plate, to have them burst,
 And cast in fitter Models, for
 The present Use of Church and War?
 Did not our Worthies of the House,
 150 Before they broke the Peace, break Vows?
 For having freed us, first from both
 Th' Allegiance, and Supremacy Oath:
 Did they not next, compel the Nation,
 To take, and break the Protestation?
 155 To swear, and after to recant

University, and when they entered into Holy Orders: and some of them a Third time, when they became Members of Cathedral Churches. And 'tis Dr. Heylin's Remark, (History of the Presbyterians, book 3. pag. 451.) "That it was no wonder the Presbyterians should impose New Oaths, when they had broke all the "Old."

*I took so many Oaths before,
 That now without remorse;
 I take all Oaths the State can make,
 As merely Things of Course.*

(Mr. Butler's Tale of the Cobbler, and Vicar of Bray. Remains, p. 143.) These Gentlemen would not have boggled at the contradictory Oaths of Fidelity, the Governor of Menin takes to the Archduchess, the Emperor, and States General. (See Memoirs of Baron Pollnitz, vol. 2. pag. 314.)

§. 155, 156. To swear, and after to recant—The Solemn League and Covenant.] Sir R. L'Estrange (Moral to Fable 50. part 2.) mentions a Trimming Clergyman, in the Days of the Solemn League and Covenant: who said, "The Oath went against his Conscience, "but yet if he did not swear, some Varlet or other would swear "and get into his Living." I have heard of another, who declared to all his Friends, That he would not conform upon the Bartholomew Act, 1662, and yet did comply; and when taxed with his Declaration, brought himself off with this Salvo, I did indeed declare that I would not comply, but afterwards heard that such a one, who was my Enemy, swore he would have my Living: upon this, God forgive me! I swore he should not; and, to save my Oath, I thought I was in Conscience bound to conform.

The Solemn League and Covenant ?

To take th' Engagement, and disclaim it,
Enforc'd by those, who first did frame it ?

Did they not swear, at first, to fight

160 For the KING's safety, and his Right ?

And after march'd to find him out,

And charg'd him home with Horse and Foot :

But yet still had the Confidence

To swear, it was in his Defence ?

165 Did they not swear to live and die

With Essex, and straight laid him by ?

¶ 157. To take th' Engagement.] By the Engagement every Man was to swear, to be true and faithful to the Government establish'd, without a King, or House of Peers. (See Walker's History of Independency, part 3. pag. 12. Lord Clarendon's History of the Rebellion, vol. 3. p. 204. Echard's History of England, vol. 2. pag. 653.) Jack Freeman's way of taking it, was by making it into a Suppository, having served the Covenant so before. (Sir J. Birkenhead's Paul's Church-yard, cent. 3. p. 18.) which was as good a way, as Teague's taking the Covenant, by knocking down the Hawker who cry'd it about the Streets, and taking one for his Master, and another for himself : (see Committee or Faithful Irishman, act. 2. sc. 2.)

¶ 165, 166. Did they not swear to live and die — With Essex, and straight laid him by ?] “ July the 12th, the pretended Two Houses voted, That the Earl of Essex should be General of their Army, and that they would live and die with him. Memorable Occurrences, 1642.) March the 24th 1645, the Lower Members at Westminster, vote the Clause for the Preservation of his Majesty's Person, to be left out in Sir Thomas Fairfax's Commission ; thus do the Rebels, 1st, swear to live and die with their own General Essex, yet, upon second thoughts, they disoblige themselves from that Oath, and cashier him of his Command. 2^{dly}, Covenant to preserve His Majesty's Person and Authority, and yet afterwards authorize Sir Thomas Fairfax, to kill him if he can.” (Memorable Occurrences in 1645. History of Independency, part 2. pag. 201.)

Now harden'd in Revolt, you next proceed
By Facts to strengthen each rebellious Deed :

If that were all, for some have swore
 As false as they, if they did no more.
 Did they not swear to maintain Law,
 170 In which that swearing made a Flaw?
 For Protestant Religion vow,
 That did that Vowing disallow?
 For Privilege of Parliament,
 In which that swearing made a Rent?
 175 And since, of all the three, not one
 Is left in Being, 'tis well known.

*New Oaths, and Vows, and Covenants advance,
 All contradicting your Allegiance:
 Whose sacred Knot you plainly did untie,
 When you with Essex swore to live and die.
 (Elegy on King Charles.)*

ŷ. 167, 168. If that were all, for some have swore — As false as they, if th' did no more.] No more than lay him by. “Of whom “it was loudly said by many of his Friends, That he was poison'd.”
 (See Lord Clarendon's History of the Rebellion, vol. 3. p. 33.)

ŷ. 173. For Privilege of Parliament.] See the Privilege of the House of Commons truly stated, (Lord Clarendon's History of the Rebellion, vol. 1. p. 310, 311, 312. Bishop Bramhall's Works, pag.

Pryn's Parliamentary Writs, passim.)

ŷ. 179. And after turn'd out the whole House-full.] This they literally did, after they had cut off the King's Head: though some few of the Lords condescended to sit with the Rump, namely, the Earls of Pembroke, and Salisbury, and Lord Howard of Escrigg.
Mr. Whitelock observes, (Memorials, 2^d edit. pag. 396.) “That,
 “the Earl of Pembroke was return'd Knight of the Shire for Berks, “primæ impressionis.” and (pag. 439.) “That his Son sate in the “House after his Death.” “And for an Honour (says he, p. 426.)
 “to the Earls of Pembroke, and of Salisbury, and Lord Howard of “Escrigg, Members of the House of Commons, it was ordered,
 “That they might sit in all Committees, of which they were, before “the House was dissolved.”

ŷ. 181, 182, 183, 184. So Cromwell with deep Oaths and Vows —Swore all the Commons out o' th' House, —Vow'd, that the Red Coats

Did they not swear in exprefs Words,
 To prop and back the House of Lords?
 And after turn'd out the whole House-ful
 180 Of Peers, as dang'rous and unuseful;
 So Cromwell with deep Oaths and Vows
 Swore all the Commons out o' th' House,
 Vow'd that the Red-Coats would disband,
 Ay marry wou'd they, at their Command;
 185 And troll'd them on, and swore, and swore,
 Till th' Army turn'd them out of Door:

Coats would disband, — Ay marry wou'd they, at their Command.] (I marry—in the four first editions.) The truth of this is confirm'd by Mr. Walker, (History of Independency, part 1. pag. 31.) who mentions, “Cromwell's Protestation in the House, with his Hand “ upon his Breast, in the presence of Almighty God, before whom he “ stood, That he knew the Army would disband, and lay down their “ Arms at their door: whenever they should command them.” See likewise a Tract, intitled, The Army brought to the Barr, 1647. pag. 8. Publick Library, Cambridge, xix. 9. 3. a Preface to a Tract, intitled, Works of Darknes brought to Light, 1647. pag. 4. Publick Libr. Cambr. xix. 9. 3. and a Tract, intitled, Hampton-Court Conspiracy, 1647. pag. 4. Pub. Libr. Cambridge, xix. 9. 3. And the Author of Works of Darknes brought to Light, pag. 5. makes the following Remark. “ This, I fear, will be a prevailing Temptation upon you “ to make you unwilling to disband: knowing, that you must then “ return to your obscure Dwellings and Callings to be Tinkers, “ Tapsters, Taylors, Tankard-Bearers, Porters, Coblers, Bakers, “ and other such mean Trades, upon which you could not subsist “ before these Wars.”

y. 185, 186. And troll'd them on, and swore and swore, — Till th' Army turn'd them out of Door.] Alluding to the Seclusion of the greatest part of the Members, in 1648, to make way for the King's Tryal. Lord Clarendon's History of the Rebellion, vol. 3. pag. 183, 184. Echard's History of England, vol. 2. pag. 621. Walker's History of Independency, part 2. Cromwell afterwards, (April 10, 1653.) turned out the Rump: see the manner of doing it, Echard's History of England, vol. 2. pag. 745. There was a Ballad made upon this Dissolution of the Rump, intitled, Twelve Parliament Men for a Penny. (Heath's Chronicle, pag. 339.)

This tells us plainly what they thought,
 That Oaths and Swearing go for nought,
 And that by them th' were only meant,
 190 To serve for an Expedient :
 What was the Publick Faith found out for,
 But to flur Men of what they fought for ?
 The Publick Faith, which ev'ry one
 Is bound t' observe, yet kept by none ;
 195 And if that go for nothing, why Should Private Faith have such a Tye ?
Oaths were not purpos'd, more than Law,
 To keep the Good and Just in Awe,

ψ. 188. That Oaths and Swearing go for nought.] Of this opinion was the Woman mentioned by Sir Roger L'Estrange. (Moral to Fable 61. part 2.) who observed, "That in such a place, they were " only sworn, not to dress any Flesh in Lent, and may do what they
 " please : but for us (says she) that are bound, it would be our un" doing."

ψ. 193, 194. The Publick Faith, which every one—is bound t' observe, yet kept by none.] Sir John Birkenhead banters them upon this head, (Paul's Church-Yard, cent. 3. pag. 20.) "Resolved upon the " Question, that the Publick Faith be buried in everlasting Forget-
 " fulness ; and that John Goodwin the High-Priest, be ordained to " preach its Funeral Sermon from Totbill-Fields, to White-Chappel."

ψ. 197, 198. Oaths were not purpos'd, more than Law,—To keep the Good and Just in Awe.] Of this opinion were the Presbyterians, if we may give Credit to Colonel Overton's Observation, who was an Independent. "He can invent (says he, Pref. to Arraignment of " Persecution) Oaths and Covenants for the Kingdom, and dispense
 " with them as he pleaseth : swear and forswear as the Wind turn-" eth, like a Good Presbyter." For this Becanus the Jesuit (lib. 15.
Man. Controv. cap. 14. N° 4. 6. pag. 700, edit. 1638.) reproaches the Calvinists (whether justly or unjustly, I cannot say,) Calvinistæ nullam servant Fidem ; illorum axioma est, jura, perjura. See a remarkably wicked way of evading an Oath. (Dubravii Olomuzensis Episcopi, Hist. Boiemic. lib. 7. pag. 57.)

ψ. 210. Than meer saluting of the Book.] Many of the Saints of those times were of the mind of that Man, "That made a Con" science

But to confine the Bad and Sinful,
 200 Like Moral Cattle in a Pinfold.
 A Saint's of th' Heav'nly Realm a Peer ;
 And as no Peer is bound to swear,
 But on the Gospel of his Honour,
 Of which he may dispose, as Owner ;
 205 It follows, though the Thing be Forgery,
 And false, th' affirm, it is no Perjury,
 But a mere Ceremony, and a Breach
 Of nothing, but a Form of Speech ;
 And goes for no more when 'tis took,
 210 Than mere saluting of the Book.

“ science both of an Oath, and a Law-suit, had the Wit yet to make

Suppose the Scriptures are of Force,
 They're but Commissions of Course,
 And Saints have Freedom to digress,
 And vary from 'em, as they please :
 215 Or mis-interpret them by private
Instructions, to all Aims they drive at.
 Then why should we our selves abridge,

ŷ. 211. Suppose the Scriptures are of Force.] Mr. Walker (in his History of Independency, part 2. pag. 22.) observes, “ That they pro“ fessed their Consciences to be the Rule and Symbol both of their “ Faith and Doctrine. By this Lesbian Rule they interpret, and to “ this they conform the Scriptures; not their Consciences to the “ Scriptures, setting the Sun-Dial by the Clock, not the Clock by “ the Sun-Dial.”

ŷ. 212. They're but Commissions of course.] A Satyr on the Liberty the Parliament Officers took of varying from their Commissions, on pretence of private Instructions. (Mr. W.) Or upon the remarkable method of granting Commissions in those times : For notwithstanding at the Trial of Colonel Morris, who pleaded that he acted by Virtue of a Commission from the Prince of Wales, they declared the Prince had no Power to grant Commissions : yet when a Party of Horse were ordered to be raised and listed under Skippon, to suppress the Earl of Holland and his Forces, then in Arms against them ; by virtue of this Order, Skippon granted Commissions to diverse schismatical Apprentices, to raise Men underhand ; and authorized the said Apprentices to grant Commissions to other Apprentices, under them for the like purpose. Walker's History of In- dependency, part 1. pag. 117.

ŷ. 219, 220. Quakers (that like to Lanthorns bear—Their Light within 'em,) will not swear;] “ I have been credibly informed, “ says the Author of Foxes and Firebrands, part 1. pag. 7) that a “ mering out the Sect of the Quakers, and whosoever considers the “ Positions of those People, will easily be induced to believe them

Quakers (that, like to Lantborns, bear 220 Their Light within 'em) will not swear;
 Their Gospel is an Accidence,
 By which they construe Conscience,
 And hold no Sin so deeply red,
 As that of breaking Priscian's Head.
 225 (The Head and Founder of their Order,
 That stirring Hats held worse than Murder.)

“forged upon a Popish Anvil.” Peter de Quir, in his Letter to the Spectator, (N^o 396.) puts it as a Query, “Whether a General Inter-marriage enjoined by Parliament, between the Sisterhood of the Olive Beauties, and the Fraternity of the People call'd Quakers, would not be a very serviceable expedient, and abate that overflow of Light, which shines within them so powerfully, that it dazzles their Eyes, and dances them into a thousand Vagaries of Error and Enthusiasm.”

Among the timorous kind, the quaking Hare Profess'd Neutrality, but would not swear.

Mr. Dryden's Hind and Panther.

y. 221, 222. Their Gospel is an Accidence, — By which they construe Conscience.] They interpret Scripture altogether literally. (Mr. W.)

y. 223, 224. And hold no Sin so deeply red, — As that of breaking Priscian's Head.] Alluding to their using the Word Thou, for You. (See the remarkable Letter of Aminadab a Quaker, to Isaac Bickerstaff, Esq. Tatler N^o 190.) Priscian was a famous Grammarian of Cæsarea, or Rome; and was in esteem at Constantinople in the year 527. He wrote his Grammar in the year 528; Chronic. Saxon. pag. 18. See more Collier's Dictionary.

y. 225, 226. The Head and Founder of their Order — That stirring Hats held worse than Murder.] George Fox was the Founder of this Order: who tells us, (Journal, p. 24.) “That when the Lord sent him into the World, he forbade him to put off his Hat to any, High or Low; and that he was required to Thee and Thou all Men and Women, without any respect to Rich or Poor; Great or Small; and as he travelled up and down, he was not to bid People Good Morrow, and Good Evening; neither might he bow or scrape with his Leg to any one.” (See Thurloe's State Papers, v. 5. p. 422.) So obstinate in this respect were G. Fox, and his Followers, that 'tis questionable whether the Spanish Discipline of the Whip sed upon Ignatius Loyola, for refusing the Civility of the Hat,

These thinking th' are oblig'd to Troth
 In swearing, will not take an Oath:
 Like Mules, who if th' have not their Will 230 To keep their own Pace, stand stock-still;
 But they are weak, and little know
 What Free-born Consciences may do.
 'Tis the Temptation of the Devil,
 That makes all human Actions evil:
 235 For Saints may do the same Things by The Spirit, in Sincerity, would have worked upon them. (See The Enthusiasm of the Church of Rome, &c. 1688, by Mr. H. Wharton, pag. 94.) Mr. Lesley thus observes upon their Behaviour, (Snake in the Grass, p. 119.) "What " an uncouth and preposterous piece of Humility it is, to deny the " Title or Civility of Master, or of the Hat; whilst at the same " time they worship one another with Divine Honours, and be" stow upon themselves Titles far above what any Angels but Lu-

 " cifer durst pretend to, to be even equal with God, of the same " Substance, and of the same Soul with him; and grudge not to " apply all the Attributes of God to the Light within them." The Quakers for some time kept up pretty strictly to George Fox's Rule of the Hat. And we learn that William Pen, once waiting on King Charles the Second, kept on his Hat; the King perceiving it, as a gentle Rebuke for his ill Manners, put off his own. Upon which Pen said to him, Friend Charles, Why dost Thou not keep on Thy Hat? The King answer'd, Friend Pen, 'tis the Custom of this Place, that never above one person shall be cover'd at a time; (Preface to the True Picture of Quakerism, &c. 1736, pag. 7. The like Story is told of a Quaker and King James, Sewell's History of the Quakers, p. 609. Impartial Examination of Mr. Neal's 4th vol. of the Hist.
of the Puritans, pag. 101, 102.) Optatus makes mention of a Sect amongst the Donatists much resembling our Quakers, in these respects. (Hist. Donatistar. lib. 4. pag. 78. Edit. Albaspinæi.)

ψ. 229, 230. Like Mules, who if th' have not their Will—To keep their own Pace, stand stock-still;] Bishop Parker (History of his own Time, edit. 1730. pag. 59.) gives the following remarkable Instance, in proof of this Assertion, "They scarce (says he) account" ed any Act so Religious, as to resist Human Authority; there" fore they met the oftener, because they were forbid, (viz. by the

Which other Men are tempted to,
 And at the Devil's Instance do;
 And yet the Actions be contrary,
 240 Just as the Saints and Wicked vary.
 For as on Land there is no Beast,
 But in some Fish at Sea's exprest;
 So in the Wicked there's no Vice,
 Of which the Saints have not a Spice;
 245 And yet that Thing that's pious in
 The one, in th' other is a Sin.

“ 35th of Qu. Eliz. against the Assemblies of Fanaticks) nor could
 “ they by any Force be drawn away from one another, till a merry “ Fellow hit upon this Stratagem: he proclaimed in the King's “ Name, that it should not be lawful for any one to depart without “ His leave; And he had scarce done this, when they all went a“ way, that it might not be said, They obeyed any Man.”

Y. 241, 242. For as on Land there is no Beast, — But in some Fish at Sea's exprest.] Sir Thomas Browne, reckons this among the Vulgar Errors, (book 3. chap. 24.) “ That all Animals of the Land,
 “ are in their kind in the Sea, although receiv'd as a Principle, “ is a Tenet very questionable, and will admit of Restraint: For “ some in the Sea, are not to be matcht by any Enquiry at Land,
 “ and hold those Shapes which Terrestrious Forms approach not;
 “ as may be observed in the Moon Fish; or Orthragoriscus; the “ several sorts of Raias, Torpedos, Oysters: and some are in the “ Land which were never maintained to be in the Sea: as Panthers, “ Hiænas, Camels, Sheep, Moles, and others, which carry no Name
 “ in Icthyology; nor are to be found in the exact Descriptions of “ Rondeletius, Gesner, or Aldrovandus.” See more id. ib.

Y. 245, 246. And yet that thing that's Pious in — The one, in th' other is a Sin.] “ It is an unusual Doctrine of this Seet, (says Dr.
 “ Bruno Ryves, Mercurius Rusticus, N^o 3. pag. 35.) That God sees
 “ no Sin in his Children; for that Name they will ingross to them“ selves, (though no Men less deserve it.) It was a wise saying of “ a great Patriarch of theirs, that the Children of God were He- “ teroclites, because, God did often save them contrary to his own “ rule.” (See N^o 18. pag. 199.) Of this opinion Mr. Pryn seems to have been. “ Let any true Saint of God (says he, Perpetuity of a

 " of Sin, before 'tis possible for him to repent; I make no doubt " or scruple of it, but he shall as surely be saved, as if he had lived
 " to have repented of it—I say, that whenever God doth take " away any of the Saints, in the very act of Sin, he doth in that
 " very Instant, give them such a particular and actual Repentance,
 " as shall save their Souls: For he hath predestinated them to
 " everlasting Life: therefore having predestinated them to the end, " He doth predestinate to the means to obtain it. (id. ib. 433."
 " The child of God (says Mr. J. Brierly, Fifty propositions taken from " his Mouth, prop. 19.) in the power of Grace, doth perform every duty so well, that to ask Pardon for failing either in matter, or manner, is a Sin: it is unlawful to pray for forgiveness of Sins
 " after conversion: and if he does at any time fall, He can by the " power of Grace carry his Sin to the Lord, and say, Here I had " it, and here I leave it." (See more, History of Independency, part 3, pag. 23.)

y. 250. As far as above Ordinances?] The pretended Saints of those times, did many of them fancy themselves so much in the favour of God, as has been just observ'd, that, do what they would, they could not fail of Salvation: and that others who were not so Regenerate, or sanctified as themselves, stood in need of outward Means and Ordinances, to make their calling and election sure:
 such as Prayers, hearing the word of God, receiving the Sacrament, &c. but they were above all these low, mean Things; and needed none of them: of this opinion was Sir Henry Vane, of whom

The judgment of our deep-sighted Squire is not disputed: and he seems to judge much like his namesake Ralph (Knight of the burning Pestle, act 4. sc. 1.) who, when the Lady courts in the following Words: "For there have been great Wars 'twixt us and you;

Pauli Jovii Historiar. lib. 13. p. 224.*) which was remarkably put in practice by the Papists in the Case of John Hufs: who, notwithstanding he had a Safe Conduct to the Council of Constance, from the Emperor Sigismund, yet was condemn'd by the Council, and burnt. Baker's History of the Inquisition, chap. 6. pag. 34, &c. This was defended by Simanca, Catholic. Institut. tit. 46. f. 52, 53, 54. Baker ibid. p. 123. This was likewise the Doctrine of the Saints of those times. 325. Is not th' High Court of Justice sworn] This was a Court never before heard of in England, erected by Forty, or Fifty members of the House of Commons, who with the Assistance of the Army, had secluded the House of Peers, and the rest of the Members of their own House, (namely Seven parts in Eight) that would not go their lengths. It was first erected for the Tryal of the King: and their villainous Behaviour upon that occasion, is notably girded by Mr. Butler, in his Dunstable Downs, (Remains, p. 104.)

*This is meer trifling, Sir, says Ralph,
 And ne'er will bring your Worship off;
 This Court is Independent on
 All Forms and Methods, but its Own,
 And will not be directed by
 The Person they intend to try;
 And I must tell you you're mistaken,
 If you propose to save your Bacon,
 By pleading to our Jurisdiction,
 Which will admit of no Restriction.
 Here's no Appeal, nor no Demurrer,
 Nor after Judgment writ of Error:
 If you persist to quirk and quibble
 And on our Terms of Law to nibble,
 The Court's determin'd to proceed,
 Whether you do, or do not plead.*

(See Walker's Hist. of Independency, part 3. p. 33.) Afterwards they set it up to try several Lords and Gentlemen for serving His Majesty: and as it was a New Court unknown to our Laws, so it had no regard to Law in its Tryals. (See L^d Clar. Hist. of the Rebellion, vol. 3. p. 188.) See the form of the Oath administered to them upon the Tryal of Sir Henry Slingsby, and Dr. Hewet in 1658. Mercurius Politicus, N^o 414. p. 501. Dr. South speaks of this Court, upon its first erection for the King's Trial, in the following manner. (30th of January Serm. vol. 5. p. 79.) "A New Court was set up, and See Fortescue de Laudibus Leg. Angl. cap. 22. Wood's Institutes of the Imperial, or Civil Law. edit. 1704. p. 252.) Yet the Rack was made use of in Ireland, by the favourers of that Rebel Parliament, upon the King's Friends, in many instances. The Lords Justices in a Letter to the Lord Lieutenant, tell him, “That they should vary their method of proceeding, in putting some to the Rack.” (Mr. Carte's Life of James, first Duke of Ormond, vol. 1. pag. 250.) “The Lords Justices wanting evidence, had recourse to the Rack, a detestable expedient, forbidden by the Laws of England.” (Carte, ibid. pag. 293.)  But as Men are not wise that run

 The slightest Hazard, they may shun;
 There may a Medium be found out

 And that is, if a Man may do't,
 By Proxy whipt, or Substitute.
 Though nice and dark the Point appear,
 (Quoth Ralph) it may hold up and clear.
 405 That Sinners may supply the Place
 Of suffering Saints, is a plain Case.

 Of whom the Churches have less Need :
 As lately 't happen'd : In a Town
 There liv'd a Cobler, and but one,

 And mend Men's Lives, as well as Shoes.
 This precious Brother having slain,

 Of League, held forth by Brother Patch,

Archbishop of Canterbury, who took upon himself the Fault of a Schoolfellow, and was whipp'd for him at Westminster-School. Mr. Wake was a Cavalier, and was engaged in Penruddick's Affair ; for which he was tried for his Life at Exeter, by the very Gentleman for whom he had been whipped. The Judge discovering him to be the Humane Person, to whom he had formerly been so much oblig'd, made the best of his way to London : where employing his Power and Interest with the Protector, he saved his Friend from the Fate of his unhappy Associates.

 From thy own Doctrine, to raise Use:

 “ Salvage's complaint, and save the Life of one that might (if need “ should be) stand them in good stead; being young and strong,
 “ fit for Resistance against an Enemy, which might come unexpected “ for any thing they knew. The Oration made, was liked of every “ one, and he intreated to proceed, to shew the means how this “ may be perform'd; says he, You all agree that one must die:
 “ and one shall die: this Young Man's Clothes we will take off,
 “ and put upon one that is Old and Impotent, a Sickly Person,
 “ that cannot escape Death, such is the Disease on him confirm'd,
 “ that die he must: put the Young Man's Clothes on This Man,
 “ and let the Sick Person be hang'd in the other's stead. Amen, “ says one, and so say many more.” and the Sentence had in this manner been executed, had it not been dissented from, by one Person, who exclaimed against it: so they hang'd up the real Offender.—This kind of Justice was attempted sometimes by our English Fanatics. I find one Instance in the MS. Collections, of my Worthy Friend Dr. Philip Williams, vol. 4. N^o 15. In a Letter from
 Mr. Edward Lee, Mr. Philip Jackson, and Mr. Edward Broughton, &c. of the Committee of Stafford, to William Lenthall Esquire, the Speaker, August 5, 1645, desiring, “ That Mr. Henry Steward,

Quoth Ralpho, You mistake the Matter,
 For in all Scruples of this Nature,
 No Man includes himself, nor turns
 The Point upon his own Concerns.
 455 As no Man of his own self catches
 The Itch, or amorous French Aches :
 So no Man does himself convince,
 By his own Doctrine, of his Sins :
 And though all cry down self, none means
 460 His own self in a literal Sense :
 Besides, it is not only Foppish,
 But Vile, Idolatrous and Popish ;

“ executed in his Stead.” Sir Roger L’Estrange’s Case had like to have been of this kind ; for he observes (in his Apology, pag. 3.)
 that when he was imprison’d for his unsuccessful Attempt upon Lyn-Regis, in Norfolk, in the year 1644, “ The Lord’s—command“ ed Mills the Judge Advocate, to bring his Charge upon Wednes“ day ; he appear’d accordingly, but with an Excuse, that he “ wanted time to prepare it—however upon Friday it should be “ ready. It was then providentially demanded, whether they “ meant to hang me first, and then charge me ; and if they intended “ to execute me in the interim ? he told them, Yes : for the Commons
 “ had pass’d an Order, that no Reprieve should stand good, with“ out the Consent of Both Houses.” “ And nothing was so common “ at that time, as a Charge without an Accuser, a Sentence without “ a Judge, and Condemnation without Hearing.” (See Mr. James Howel’s Sober Inspections ; or Philanglus, p. 156.)

y. 439, 440. For all Philosophers, but the Sceptick,—Hold Whipping may be Sympathetic.] “ The Scepticks (says Dr. Middleton, Life of Cicero, 4^{to} edit. vol. 2. p. 540.) “ observ’d a perfect Neutrality “ towards All Opinions ; maintained All of them to be equally “ Uncertain : and that we could not affirm of Any Thing, that it “ was This or That, since there was as much reason to take it for “ the One, as for the Other, or Neither of them : thus they liv’d “ without engaging themselves on any side of the Question.”

- For one Man out of his own Skin,
 To frisk and whip another's Sin :
 465 As Pedants out of School-Boys Breeches
 Do claw and curry their own Itches.
 But in this Case it is profane,
 And sinful too, because in vain :
 For we must take our Oaths upon it
 470 You did the Deed, when I have done it.
 Quoth Hudibras, that's answer'd soon ;
 Give us the Whip, we'll lay it on.
 Quoth Ralpho, that we may swear true,
 'Twere properer that I whip'd you :
 475 For when with your Consent 'tis done,
 The Act is really your own.
 Quoth Hudibras, It is in vain
 (I see) to argue 'gainst the Grain ;
 Or, like the Stars, incline Men to

'Tis Interest still resolves the Doubt :
 But since no Reason can confute ye,
 I'll try to force you to your Duty ;
 485 For so it is, howe'er you mince it ;
 As e'er we part, I shall evince it ;
 And Curry (if you stand out) whether
 You will or no, your stubborn Leather.
 Canst thou refuse to bear thy Part
 490 I' th' publick Work, base as thou art ?
 To higgle thus, for a few Blows,
 To gain thy Knight an opulent Spouse ;
 Whose Wealth his Bowels yearn to purchase,
 Merely for th' Interest of the Churches ?
 495 And when he has it in his Claws,

Y' had best (quoth Ralpho) as the Ancients

And look before you ere you leap;
For as you Sow, y' are like to Reap:
 505 And were y' as good as George a Green,
 I should make bold to turn agen;
 Nor am I doubtful of the Issue
 In a just Quarrel, and mine is so.
 Is't fitting for a Man of Honour
 510 To whip the Saints, like Bishop Bonner?
 A Knight t' usurp the Beadle's Office,

ŷ. 502. — Have a care o' th' main Chance,] Ralpho is almost as fruitful in Proverbs, as Sancho Pancha: in this, and the whipping Debates, they both appear Superior in Sense to their Masters. (See Don Quixote, vol. 4. p. 669.)

ŷ. 505, 506. And were y' as good as George a Green,—I shall make bold to turn again.] George a Green, was the famous Pindar of Wakefield, who fought with Robin Hood, and Little John, (two famous Robbers during the Reign of Richard the First, see Echard's Hist. of England, vol. 1. p. 226.) both together, and got the better of them. Pepysian*. Ray's English Proverbs, p. 285.) Mr. Gayton, (Notes upon Don Quixote, b. 4. ch. 22. and elsewhere) mentions John a Green, with Bevis of Southampton, and Robin Hood.

More Spruce and Nimble, and more Gay to seem
Than some Attorney's Clerk, or George a Green.

(Hen. Stephens's Apology, for Herodotus; chap. 28. p. 236.)

I am not to tell a Tale
Of George a Green or Jack a Vale,
Or yet of Chitty Face.

(Panegyric upon Tom Coryat, and his Crudities. First Copy) Sancho Pancha actually used his Master, in the manner here mentioned, upon a like Occasion. (Don Quixote, vol. 4. chap. 60. p. 600.)

ψ. 519. Remember how in Arms, &c.] Ralpho's Party, the Independents, and Anabaptists, by getting the Army of their side, outwitted the Presbyterians. Though indeed, they contended for they knew not what : like the two Fellows, (see Sir R. L'Estrange's Fables, part. 1. fab. 494.) that went to Loggerheads about their Religion. The one was a Martinist, he said ; and the other said, all Martinists were Hereticks ; and for his part, he was a Lutheran. Now the poor wretches were both of a side, and knew it not : taking their respective denominations from Martin Luther. Or the two Paduan Brethren ; the one supposing, that he had a Pasture as large as the Heavens, and the other, that he had as many Oxen as there were Stars : the mortal Quarrel between them was, whether the one's conceited Oxen, might feed in the other's supposed Ground, (Bishop Bramhall's Serpent Salve ; Works, folio p. 592 :) Or the brace of Students, who fiercely disputed about an imaginary Purse of Gold. (Gayton's Notes upon Don Quixote, p. 3.)

ψ. 521. Trepann'd your Party with Intrigue.] This is fact ; for the Independents, in the Apologetical Narrative, presented to the Parliament 1643, shew'd themselves so humble, that they might gain which they'd been so long a sitting ;] That is from the first of July, 1643, being the first meeting of the Assembly of Divines, to the 28th of August, 1648 ; when their Discipline by Classes was establish'd.

 The Poet might have added a line or two more, as to the Expen-siveness of those curious productions to the Publick. For the As- sembly consisted of 120 Divines, and 30 Laymen ; and they were to have

On which they'd been so long a sitting;
 Decry'd it as a Holy Cheat,
 Grown out of Date and obsolete,
 And all the Saints of the first Grasse,
 540 As Castling Foles of Balam's Ass.
 At this the Knight grew high in Chafe,
 And staring furiously on Ralph,
 He trembled and look'd pale with Ire,
 Like Ashes first, then red as Fire.

 And for so many Moons lain by't?
 And when all other Means did fail,
 Have been exchange'd for Tubs of Ale?

have four Shillings a day, during their sitting, with other allowances; which with the Fees and Salaries to Scribes, Clerks, &c. must amount to a very great Sum. But whether their Productions of the Directory, Catechisms, and Annotations, were equivalent thereto, is left to the Reader's determination, (Mr. B.) Mr. Foulis, Hist. of Wicked Plots, &c. p. 207.) observes of them, as follows. "Our English Assembly sat Hum-drumming several years, and after all expectation, brought forth nothing worth a Mouse."

℣. 539. And all the Saints of the first Grasse,] The Presbyterians."

541. At this the Knight grew high in Chafe.] Whenever the Squire is provok'd by the Knight, he is sure to retaliate the Affront by a very Satyrical Harangue upon the Knight's Party: Thus when he was put in the Stocks with the Knight, he makes Synods (for which the Knight had a profound Veneration) the subject of his Satire: and his revenge at this time, when the Knight would impose a Whipping upon him, is grounded upon the Independents trepanning the Presbyterians. (Mr. B.)

℣. 543. He trembled, &c.] This and the following Line, not in the two first editions of 1664, added 1674.

℣. 548. Have been exchanged, &c.] * The Knight was kept Prisoner in Exeter, and after several Exchanges propos'd, but none accepted of, was at last releas'd for a Barrel of Ale, as he often us'd upon all Occasions to declare.

Not but they thought me worth a Ransome,
 550 Much more confid'able and handsome,
 But for their own Sakes, and for Fear
 They were not safe when I was there;
 Now to be baffled by a Scoundrel,
 An upstart Seēt'ry, and a Mungrel;
 555 Such as breed out of peccant Humours
 Of our own Church, like Wens, or Tumours,
 And like a Maggot in a Sore,
 Wou'd that which gave it Life devour;
 It never shall be done or said:
 560 With that he seiz'd upon his Blade;
 And Ralpho too, as quick and bold,
 Upon his Basket-bilt laid hold,
 With equal Readiness prepar'd
 To draw and stand upon his Guard:
 565 When both were parted on the sudden,
 With hideous Clamour, and a loud one,
 As if all sorts of Noise had been Contracted into one loud Din:

y. 560 With that he seiz'd upon his Blade, &c.] The Contrast betwixt Brutus and Cassius, was not much unlike this, (Shakespear's Julius Cæsar, Act 4.)

Cass. O Gods! ye Gods! must I endure all this?

Brutus. All this! ay more: fret till your proud Heart break;
 Go shew your Slaves how cholerick you are,
 And make your Bondsmen tremble: Must I budge?
 Must I observe you? must I stand and crouch
 Under your testy humour? By the Gods,
 You shall digest the Venom of your Spleen,
 Tho' it do split you: for, from this day forth,
 I'll use you for my mirth, yea, for my laughter,
 When you are waspish.——

Or that some Member to be chosen,
 570 Had got the Odds above a Thousand;
 And by the Greatness of his Noise,
 Prov'd fittest for his Country's Choice.
 This strange Surprisal put the Knight
 And wrathful Squire into a Fright;
 575 And though they stood prepar'd, with fatal
 Impetuous Rancour, to join Battel;
 Both thought it was the wisest Course,
 To wave the Fight, and mount to Horse,
 And to secure, by swift retreating,
 580 Themselves from Danger of worse beating.
 Yet neither of them would disparage,
 By utt'ring of his Mind, his Courage,
 Which made 'em stoutly keep their Ground,
 With Horror and Disdain, wind-bound.
 585 And now the Cause of all their Fear,
 By slow Degrees approach'd so near,
 They might distinguish diff'rent Noise
 Of Horns, and Pans, and Dogs, and Boys,

y. 565, 566. When both were parted on the sudden,—With hideous Clamour, and a loud one.] The Poet's Contrivance at this Critical Juncture, is wonderful: He has found out a way to cool his Heroes, very artfully, and to prevent a bloody Encounter between them, without calling either their Honour or Courage into question: all this is happily accomplish'd by an Antique Procession, which gives the Knight a fresh Opportunity of exerting the vigour of his Arms, for the service of his Country. (Mr. B.)

y. 587. They might distinguish, &c.] They might discern respective Noise, in the two first editions of 1664.

 As well-fee'd Lawyer on his Breviate;
 When over one another's Heads
 They charge (three Ranks at once) like Sweads.
 615 Next Pans, and Kettles of all Keys,
 From Trebles down to double Base.
 And after them, upon a Nag,
 That might pass for a forehand Stag,
 A Coronet rode, and on his Staff
 620 A Smock display'd did proudly wave:
 Then Bagpipes of the loudest Drones,
 With snuffing broken-winded Tones,
 Whose Blasts of Air in Pockets shut,
 Sound filthier than from the Gut,
 625 And make a viler Noise than Swine
 In windy Weather when they whine.
 Next one upon a Pair of Panniers, [ners
 Full fraught with that, which for good Man-
 Shall here be nameless, mixt with Grains,
 630 Which he dispenc'd among the Swains,
 And busily upon the Crowd
 At Random round about bestow'd.

ψ. 609, 610. ——— Cavalcate,—Flagellate,] In the four first editions, afterwards alter'd, to, Cavalcade, Flagellet.

ψ. 613, 614. When over one another's Heads—They charge (three Ranks at once) like Sweads.] These two Lines are not in the two first edit. of 1664. but added in 1674. ——— like Sweads—alter'd. 1684, to Sweddes. Mr. Cleveland speaking of the Authors of the Diurnals, (Works, p. 105.) says, "They write in the posture, that 'The Sweddes give fire in, over one another's Heads."

Then mounted on a horned Horse,
 One bore a Gauntlet and Gilt Spurs,
 635 Ty'd to the Pommel of a long Sword
 He held reverse, the Point turn'd downward:
 Next after, on a raw-bon'd Steed,
 The Conqueror's Standard-bearer rid,
 And bore aloft before the Champion
 640 A Petticoat display'd, and rampant;
 Near whom the Amazon triumphant
 Bestrid her Beast, and on the Rump on't
 Sat Face to Tail, and Bum to Bum,
 The Warrior whilom overcome;
 645 Arm'd with a Spindle and a Distaff,
 Which as he rode, she made him twist off;
 And when he loiter'd o'er her Shoulder
 Chastiz'd the Reformado Soldier.
 Before the Dame, and round about,
 650 March'd Whiffers, and Staffers on Foot,

 Of whom, some Torches bore, some Links,
 Before the proud Virago Minx,
 655 That was both Madam, and a Don,
 Like Nero's Sporus, or Pope Joan ;
 And at fit Periods the whole Rout
 Set up their Throats with clamorous Shout.
 The Knight transported, and the Squire,
 660 Put up their Weapons, and their Ire ;
 And Hudibras, who us'd to ponder,
 On such Sights, with judicious Wonder,
 Could hold no longer to impart
 His Animadversions, for his Heart.
 665 Quoth he, In all my Life till now
 I ne'er saw so prophane a Show,
 It is a Paganish Invention,
 Which Heathen Writers often mention :

Muliebrem Naturam transfigurare, conatus est: cum Dote et Flameo, per solenne Nuptiarum celeberrimo Officio, deductam ad se pro Uxore habuit, extatque cujusdam non inscitus Jocus, bene agi potuisse cum rebus humanis, si Domitius Pater talem habuisset Uxorem. (C. Suetonii lib. 6. Nero Claudius Cæsar. f. 28.)

ŷ. 665, 666. Quoth he, In all my Life till now—I ne'er saw so prophane a Show,] This Procession (common in England) with it's usual Attendants, has been exactly set in view by the Poet: but our trusty Knight could call it strange and prophane, and pretend to trace its original from Paganism: on these frantic Notions, he founds a pretence, that he, as a Saint and Reformer, is necessitated to prohibit this Diversion; notwithstanding all that Ralph can say to convince him of his Error. That unusual voluntary Collections were made both in Town and Country: the Seamstresses brought in her Silver Thimble, the Chamber-maid her Bodkin, the Cook her Silver Spoon, into the common Treasury of War.— and some sort of Females were freer in their Contributions, so far as to part with their Rings and Ear-Rings, as if some Golden Calf were to be molten and set up to be idoliz'd. (See Whitelock's Mem. p. 61. Hist. of Independency, part 2 p. 166.) nay the zealous Sisterhood address'd the House of Commons, Feb. 4. 1641, in a very great Body, headed by Anne Stag, a Brewer's Wife, in Westminster, (see Impartial Examination of Mr. Neal's 2^d vol. of the Hist. of the Puritans. p. 331.) *She that can sit three Sermons in a Day,
 And of those three, scarce bear three words away :
 She that can rob her Husband, to repair
 A Budget Priest, that noses a long Prayer :
 She that with Lam-Black purifies her Shoes,
 And with half Eyes, and Bible softly goes :
 She that her Pocket with Lay-Gospel stuffs,
 And edifies her looks with little Ruffs :
 She that loves Sermons, as she does the rest,
 Still standing stiff, that longest are the best ;
 She that will ly, yet swears she hates a Lyar,
 Except it be the Man that will lie by her :
 She that at Christmas thirsteth for more Sack,
 And draws the broadest Handkerchief for Cake :
 She that sings Psalms devoutly next the Street,
 And beats her Maid i' th' Kitchen, where none see't :
 She that will sit in Shop for Five Hours space,
 And register the sins of all that pass.
 Damn at first sight, and proudly dare to say,
 That none can possibly be saved, but They.
 That hangs Religion on a naked Ear,
 And judge Men's Hearts according to their Hair :
 That could afford to doubt who writes best Sense :
 Moses, or Dod, on the Commandements :
 She that can sigh, and cry Queen Elisabeth,
 Rail at the Pope, and scratch out sudden Death ;
 And for all this, can give no reason why ;
 This is an Holy Sister verily.*

 And if he name Gebenah, or the Dragon,
 Their Faith alas! was little then to brag on:
 Or if he did relate what little Wit
 The Foolish Virgins had, then do they sit Weeping with watery Eyes, and making Vows,
 One to have Preachers always in their House,
 To dine them with, and breakfast them with Jellies,
 And Cawdle hot, to warm their wambling Bellies:
 And if the Cash, where she could not unlock it,
 Were close secur'd, to pick her Husband's Pocket.
 A nother, something a more thrifty Sinner,

 Faln to their Pick-Axes, and Tools,
 And help'd the Men to dig like Moles?

ŷ. 801, 802, 803, 804. March'd Rank and File, with Drum and Ensign, — T' intrench the City for Defence in? — Rais'd Rampiers, with their own soft Hands, — To put the Enemy to Stands] The City upon a false Alarm, being ordered to be fortified, and the Train-Bands ordered out, it was wonderful to see how the Women, Children, and vast numbers of People would come to work about digging, and carrying of earth to make the new Fortifications. That the City good Wives, and others mindful of their Husbands and Friends, sent many Cart Loads of Provisions, and Wines, and good Things to Turnham-Green, with which the Soldiers were refresh'd, and made merry: and the more, when they understood that the King and his Army were retreated. (See Whitelock's Memorials, pag. 58, 60, 63.) This is confirmed by Mr. May (in his Hist. of Parliament, lib. 3. cap. 5. p. 91.) "It was the custom (says he) every day to go out by Thousands to dig: all Professions, Trades, and Occupations taking their Turns: and not only Inferior Tradesmen, but Gentlemen, and Ladies themselves, for the encouragement of others; carrying themselves Spades, Mattocks, and other Instruments of digging; so that it became a pleasant sight in London, to see them go out in such an order and number with Drums beating before them." (Mr. B.) See Collection of Loyal Songs reprinted, 1731. vol. 1. N^o 53. On demolishing the Forts.

ŷ. 807. Faln in the three first editions. Fell, edit. 1684.

ŷ. 809, 810. Have not the Handmaids of the City — Chose of their Members a Committee.] To this probably the Writer of A Letter sent to London, by a Spy at Oxford — 1643. alludes, pag. 12. "Call in the new Committee, where Madam Waller is Speaker, and Doctress of the Chair." It was a saying of Venner the Fifth Monarchy Man, "That

Have not the Handmaids of the City
 810 Chose of their Members a Committee?
 For raising of a Common Purse
 Out of their Wages to raise Horse?
 And do they not as Triers fit,
 To judge what Officers are fit?
 815 Have they—? At that an Egg let fly,
 Hit him directly o'er the Eye,
 And running down his Cheek, besmear'd
 With Orange-tawny Slime, his Beard;

“That the time would come, when the Handmaid of the Lord,
 “would make no more of killing a man, than of”—Thurloe's State Papers, vol. 6. pag. 185.

ŷ. 813, 814. And do they not as Triers fit, — To judge what Officers are fit?] “The House consider'd in the next place, that diverse weak persons have crept into Places beyond their Abilities; and to the end that men of greater Parts may be put into their rooms, they appointed the Lady Middlesex, Mrs. Dunch, the Lady Foster, the Lady Anne Waller, by reason of their great Experience in Soldiery in the Kingdom, to be a Committee of Tryers for the business.” (The Parliament of Ladies, or divers remarkable Passages of Ladies in Spring-Garden in Parliament assembled; printed in the years 1647. pag. 6.)

ŷ. 815, 816. — At that an Egg let fly, — Hit him directly o'er the Eye,] This is as merry an Adventure, as that of the Bear-Baiting: our Heroes are sooner assaulted than they expected, even before the Knight had ended his Eloquent Speech: it was a great Affront, and Breach of Good Manners in the Rabble, to use so worthy a Personage in this manner: they had no Talgol to make a Reply, but shew'd their Contempt of Authority, by immediately falling into Action with it's Representative: he indeed, had little reason to look for better Usage than he met with the day before, on a like Occasion: but he was of too obstinate a Temper, to learn any thing from Experience; this makes his case different from all other unfortunate Heroes: for, instead of pitying, we laugh at him. (Mr. B.)

ŷ. 818. With Orange-tawny Slime his Beard;] Alluding probably to Bottom the Weaver, in Shakespear (Midsummer Night's Dream vol. 1. p. 89.) who asks, in what Beard he shall play the part of

But Beard and Slime being of one Hue,
 820 The Wound the less appear'd in View.
 Then he that on the Panniers rod,
 Let fly on th' other Side a Load ;
 And quickly charg'd again, gave fully,
 In Ralpho's Face, another Volley.
 825 The Knight was startled with the Smell,
 And for his Sword began to feel :
 And Ralpho, smother'd with the Stink,
 Grasp'd his, when one that bore a Link,
 O' th' sudden clapp'd his flaming Cudgel,
 830 Like Linstock, to the Horse's Touch-hole ;
 And straight another with his Flambeaux,
 Gave Ralpho o'er the Eyes, a damn'd Blow.
 The Beasts began to kick, and fling,
 And forc'd the Rout to make a Ring :
 835 Thro' which they quickly broke their Way,
 And brought them off from further Fray ;
 And though disorder'd in Retreat,
 Each of them stoutly kept his Seat :

Pyramus ? whether in a perfect Yellow Beard, an Orange-Tawny Beard, or a Purple in-grain Beard.

ψ. 843, 844. And till all Four were out of Wind,—And Danger too, ne'er look'd behind.] See Don Quixote, vol. 3. chap. 27. p. 275.) This is a sneer propably upon the Earl of Argyle, who more than once fled from Montrose, and never look'd behind till he was quite out of Danger: as at Inverary 1644 Bishop Guthry's Memoirs, p. 136. at Innerlochbie where he betook himself to his Boat, Guthry, p. 140. at Kilsyth, he fled and never look'd over his shoulder, until after twenty miles riding, he reach'd the South Queen's Ferry, where he pos-

 Their Spirits, spent with Fight and Flying,
 And Hudibras recruited Force

 Quoth he, That Man is sure to lose,
 850 That fouls his Hands with dirty Foes:
 For where no Honour's to be gain'd,
 'Tis thrown away in being maintain'd;
 'Twas ill for us, we had to do
 With so dishonourable a Foe:

Mr. Strangeway's Panegyric upon Tom Coryat, and his Crudities.

And doubtless have been chew'd with Teeth
 860 Of some that had a stinking Breath ;
 Else when we put it to the push,
 They had not giv'n us such a Brush :
 But as those Poltroons that fling Durt,
 Do but defile, but cannot hurt ;
 865 So all the Honour they have won,
 Or we have lost, is much at one.
 'Twas well we made so resolute
 A brave Retreat, without pursuit:
 For if we had not, we had sped
 870 Much worse, to be in Triumph led ;
 Than which the Ancients held no state
 Of Man's Life more unfortunate.

ψ. 859, 860. And doubtless have been chew'd with Teeth—Of some that had a stinking Breath.] 'Tis probable, that Oldham had these Lines in view, when he wrote his Character of an Ugly Parson. (See Remains pag. 109. edit. 1703.) “ Who by his Scent might be “ winded by a good Nose at twelve score. I durst have ventured “ (says he) at first being in company, to have affirm'd that he dieted “ on Assa Fætida, &c.”

ψ. 868. — without Pursuit ;] T' avoid Pursuit, in the two first editions of 1664.

ψ. 877, 878. And as such homely Treats (they say,) — Portend good Fortune—] The Original of the coarse Proverb here alluded to, he took its rise from the glorious Battle of Azin-court, when the English were so afflicted with the Dysentry, that most of them chose to fight naked from the Girdle downward. (Mr. W.) See Rapin's History of England, by Tindal, folio vol. 1. p. 513. Lediard's Naval Hist. vol. 1. chap. 15. p. 65. Battle of Agin-court, Old Ballads 1723. vol. 2. p. 83. In Memory of this famous Victory, King Henry the Fifth, instituted a Herald for that part of France, subject to England, with the stile of Agin-court : as Edward the First had before

But if this bold Adventure e'er
 Do chance to reach the Widow's Ear,
 875 It may, being destin'd to assert
 Her Sex's Honour, reach her Heart.
 And as such homely Treats (they say)
 Portend good Fortune, so this may.
Vespasian being dawb'd with Durt,
 880 Was destin'd to the Empire for't;
 And from a Scavenger did come
 To be a mighty Prince in Rome:
 And why may not this foul Address
 Prefage in Love the same Success?
 885 Then let us straight, to cleanse our Wounds,
 Advance in quest of nearest Ponds;

fore given the title of Guyen, to another. (See Historical, and Critical Essay, on the true Rise of Nobility, &c. 2^d edit. 1720. vol. 2. p. 722.)

*There's another Proverb gives the Rump for his Crest,
 But Alderman Atkins made it a Jest.*

That of all kind of Luck, Sh-t-n Luck is the best.

(Re-Resurrection of the Rump, Loyal Songs, vol. 2. N^o 2. p. 39.)

ψ. 879. Vespasian being dawb'd with Durt &c.] This and the five following Lines, not in the two first editions of 1664, added in 1674. The Corcyrans of old, took a slovenly freedome, which occasion'd the Proverb.

Ἐλευθερά Κέρκυρα, Χέζ' ὅπως θέλεις;

Libera Corcyra, Caca ubi libet:

cum significamus libertatem quidvis agendi,

(Erasmi Adagior. chil. 4. Cant. 1. Prov. 2.)

Of this opinion Oliver Cromwell seems to have been, who dawb'd himself with something worse, upon the Revels kept by his Uncle Sir Oliver Cromwell; for the Entertainment of King James the First: for which his Uncle order'd him the Discipline of the Horse-Pond.) (See Heath's Flagellum: or Life of Oliver Cromwell. edit. 1672. p. 18.)

And after (as we first design'd)
Swear I've perform'd what she enjoin'd.

ψ. 887, 888. And after (as we first design'd) — Swear I've perform'd what she enjoin'd.] An honest Resolution truly, and a natural result from their Sophistical Arguments in defence of Perjury, lately debated by the Knight and his Squire: The Knight resolves to wash his Face, and dirty his Conscience: this is mighty agreeable to his Politics, in which Hypocrisy seems to be the predominant Principle: he was no longer for reducing Ralpho to a Whipping, but for deceiving the Widow by forswearing himself; and by the sequel we find he was as good as his word. part 3. canto 1. ψ. 167. &c.
